SUCCESS! SUCCESS!!

Good Wishes and Praise for the Fair -Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

A correspondent writes us as follows EDITOR NEW BERNE JOURNAL:-"The old folks, and the young folks have all returned from the New Berne Fair, and all say success, success to the pride of all, and to the pride of Eastern North Carolins. We all with one voluminous voice say, much success to the Journal which has labored industriously to secure such good results.

With the new anticipated railroad routes, in the near future to unlap themselves in the city of Elms with Eastern products, in connection with other anticipated local enterprises, and with the annual Fairs, what a great city in the near future New Berne will be Such a result is the prayer of an isolated man.

As the correspondent says, the East Carolina Fair is the pride of all. All people generally raise plenty of food classes of people, the poor and the wealthy, of every occupation and calling have come together with hearty accord to make it the grand success that it is standing as it now does the acknowledged foremost exhibition of the kind in North Carolina and ranking

The Curse of Gambling.

The attack of the Raleigh Christian Advocate and of the Raleigh corredeed is supposed to have been instigated spondent of the North Carolina Baptist through a land feud existing in that of Fayetteville on a social club for indulging in gambling, and the oft repeated condemnation by the secular press of permitting wrong and questionable games at fairs and other public gatherings and their likewise oft repeated hearty approval of an opposite course has caused considerable attention to be directed to the evils of gambling and the tendency of social or other small games of chance to awaken and foster gambling propensities in those who are brought under their influence whether the indulgence is tegun merely as a pastime or for other objects, and the surroundings do not change the character or harmfulness of the act, for table, absolutely harmless, and safe to gambling is gambling, whether carried on by the purchase of a ticket from the Louisians lottery company, by dice and Grip. Consequently he is selling more cards in dens of vice, by novel games of it than ever before since he has been at public gatherings, or by raffling for in business. He has a big job in cakes at church fairs or other articles at stores.

Gambling is any kind of game or scheme in which those who participate invest in the hope of gaining something without rendering value received therefor, and for this chance of wrongful gain agree by tacit or expressed understanding to entirely forfest what they invest or receive less than its worth it they should be unsuccessful in the ensuing contest.

Gambling is one of the great curses of the day, and the growth of the habit, like many others, is insidious and is strengthened by both looking on and practicing, therefore even the smallest and most insignificant devices of the gual perhaps of the sure approach of kind, and the places where they are practiced should be carefully shunned.
