"When They Go South."

Just before the opening of every nalove of talk exceeds his information

Last Friday evening, at Delmon Amon Parker Wilder talked to his fel low alumni of Yale College about what kept its hands off, and in this he was right. But, when he undertook to say, that "the Southern understanding wa stood and considering that Mr. Baxter | that the black man and the white man should each follow his own way, inde pendent of the other, and that the situation to day is cruel to the former," he was all wrong.

The interest of the two races are identical, and the better class of the colored people of the South realize the fact.

"And it does not stop here," said he. "When a white was record it as a very serious offence, man from the North goes South, before voted for Mr. Ellis applaud him for his white man against the negro, it matters long he joins in helping the native not how good a Republican he may have been in the North."

Mr. Depew evidently thinks "the man and brother" is in a bad way, but is mistaken in the opinion that one race is arrayed as against the other, and should he come this way his judgment will be corrected. He will also learn the reason why so many white Republicans from the North affiliate with the 175 Nickel Alarm Clocks at people of their own race, after being for a time among us, in preference to the other and the lesson will not be difficult to learn.—Virginian.
