THE JOURNAL.

E. E. HARPER, - Proprietor.
G. T. HANCOCK, - Local Reporter.
Entered at the Postoffice at New Bern, N. C., as second-class matter.

THE London Standard asserts that the preparations for war in Russia have never been more active than now. The movement of troops to the western frontier of that country is continuous, and the successive categories of reserves in the interior are now being called out. The manufacturers of European war rumors were never more active than at present.

THE reaction against the Chinese Exclusion law has promptly shown itself in the Methodist General Conference, the enactment of the bill and the signing of it by the President having been made a subject of criticism. Several of the delegates foresee the disaster which it invites to missionary work in China. There may not, it is true, be much religion in the measure, but there's a heap of politics in it—and politics is what tells in a Presidential year.

It is charged by Objecter Holman that the River and Harbor bill report to the House not only appropriates more than $21,000,000, but also authorizes contracts to be made which would involve the expenditure of $26,000,000 more. The two sums together constitute an amount sufficiently large to command attention and respect even in these days of multi-millionaires and billion-dollar Congresses. Go slow, gentlemen of the House; that is, if you want your constituents to send you back to Washington for another term.

We do not wonder that the diplomatic representative in this country of the Chinese Empire has protested against the exclusion law just enacted by Congress and so promptly signed by the President. As we have repeatedly shown on various occasions in the past, that measure is in the last degree insulting to China and unjust to the Chinese people. Especially is it oppressive as regards those already resident in the United States and, presumably, protected by treaty formulated and ratified since their advent here. It would have been strange, indeed, had China not objected to action so sweeping and so severe.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The present Congress was elected as a protest against the revolutionary methods of the "Reed Congress," the extravagance of the "Billion Congress," and the iniquitous McKinley bill.

The Democratic majority is pledged to deliberation, economy and tariff reform.

These pledges are being redeemed. The House is the scene of activity, and it cannot be expected that it will always observe the rules of decorum, nevertheless the Congress is a deliberative body meeting the demands of national legislation.

In the matter of appropriations and expenditures, the people's Representatives are neither parsimonious nor extravagant. A wise moderation avoids either extreme and adjusts all questions of finance on principles of justice and equity. Some appropriations are increased because the public good demands it, others are diminished to prevent useless extravagance.

But it may be asked, "Is the pledge of tariff reform being redeemed?" Most certainly it is. True, no general measure has been introduced, such as the Mill's bill, but relief from the oppression of the McKinley law is found in the passage of such bills as place wool, bagging and ties on the free list. Much more could be done, but for the Republican senate. The House, and in this it represents the Democratic party, is anxious to give the full measure of relief. When, in the fullness of time, the party elects a President and the Senate, the oppressive measures will all be repealed, and the Government be restored to its legitimate object, the happiness of the people.

It is pleasing to know that the Democratic Representatives from North Carolina are living in the full discharge of their official duties.

We do not know that it is desirable to make any change in the delegation at the approaching election. There are always plenty of men "ready to serve the country," but it is usually wise to "let well enough alone."

At all events, we hear no objection to Mr. Grady for a second term. Of course the friends of Mr. Simmons would like to see him in Congress again, but that excellent gentleman, statesman and patriot, is making no effort to secure the nomination.

The Effect of Christian Science and Mind Cure on "the Regular Practice."

It is a very old observation that a dominant idea is valuable in controlling the human being, and whether it be in the bearing of pain or in the devotion which leads the Turk to die contentedly before the Russian bullets, belief is a factor that may be turned to great advantage. Indirectly, Christian Science may prove an aid to medical science.

The intelligent physician of today could receive no greater aid in the scientific practice of his profession than to be emancipated by his patients from the obligation invariably to prescribe a drug.

When people are willing to employ physicians to order their lives so that they may live in health, the custom which binds the physician to prescribe something for his patient will be unnecessary. As we have become more civilized this state of affairs is gradually coming into place; but there still lingers the expectation that the doctor's visit means drugs.

Christian Science and Faith-cure more refined than the spiritualistic beliefs which have preceded them, form an interesting study in mental pathology, and mark an advance from the grosser stage of table-tipping and magnetic doctors to a recognition of the fact that among the weapons employed by the scientific physician of today an appeal to a determined purpose to overcome pain is worthy of a place besides antiseptics and anodynes and tonics.—Century.
