who are now attacking and cursing us for upholding the truth and sound political ethics are safely knocked in a little Radical t-nuckle-bed and found sucking pap from the Republican breast. The Messenger is now and ever will be against all of the nonsense embodied in the St. Louis clap-trap deadfall, and the wild cat scheme of relieving the farmers by setting up a huge Pawnbroker's shop in Washington called the Sub-Treasury. We wonder if the News has never subscribed to that fine Democratic (!) doctrine? We do not know.—Wilmington Messenger.

Mr. Gaston Manly, of Baltimore, who is on a visit to his old home in this city, went down to Morehead last week for a little piscatorial sport.

He took a troll up the coast towards Cape Lookout and met with splendid "luck." He caught a fine lot of Spanish mackerel and two "searo," or horse mackerel, each measuring about three and a half feet in length and weighing together forty pounds.

Besides this he took while there a large number of other fish by hook and line. He speaks highly of the fine sport and exhilarating amusements of the trip.

Major Jos. W. Jones died suddenly at his home in Sparr, Fla., on Sunday the 8d. inst., aged 65 years.

Mr. Jones was a native of this city and has a sister Mrs. Wm. P. Moore, and also other relatives still living here. He was a major in the late war and participated in the battle of New Berne. He was at one time proprietor of a turpentine distillery in New Berne and was also for awhile in the hotel business at Charlotte with his brother-in-law, Mr. Wm. P. Moore.

After the war he returned to his native home and remained a number of years but finally moved to Florida. He afterwards moved back for a short time and then returned to Florida and remained until his death. He was there in charge of the railroad office at Sparr.

Mr. Jones was a courteous and kindly gentleman, highly esteemed by all.

MINNEAPOLIS CONVENTION.

Organization Effected—Both Sides are Confident.
The convention at Minneapolis met at noon yesterday, but made no nomination. After a short session, during which a temporary organization was effected, it adjourned till eleven o'clock today.

Short speeches were made by Fassett, Reed and others.

Both the Harrison and Blaine factions are confident. Some of them say Blaine resigned too late.

McKinley and Alger's names have also loomed up.

The Collegiate Entertainment.
The musical entertainment last night was highly enjoyable. It eclipsed previous efforts of a similar character. It was a fine return for the money invested.

Both vocal and instrumental music was of high order and all was well rendered. Miss Rosa Dail won the Morton gold medal for greatest progress during the year and it was presented by Hon. Chas. B. Thomas with a pleasing and appropriate speech. This is the second time Miss Dail has taken the medal; it will be remembered that it was awarded to her last year, also.

The literary exercises tonight will also be excellent and will give some evidence to all who attend of the superior training given at the New Berne Collegiate Institute. The same low charge will be made, 10 cents for adults and 10 cents for children and the money will be devoted to increasing the school library.

The house was filled last night—the gallery as well as the lower floor. Tonight's exercises will be equally interesting as last night's, so go early in order to secure your choice of a seat.

AN APPEAL TO THE WOMEN OF NORTH CAROLINA.

They are Asked to Come to the Support of the Lady Managers Who Are Trying to Raise a Fund for the Erection of a State Building at the World's Fair.

The Ladies of the New Berne World's Fair Auxiliary held a meeting Monday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Manly. The following are the officers: President—Miss M. H. Manly, Vice Pres.—Miss Laura Embury, Sec. & Treas.—Mrs. M. McK. Nash, Chairman Exec. Com.—Miss Leah Jones.

A letter from Mrs. Cotten was read and enthusiastically received. The ladies voting that it should be published.

The ladies of the Committee will be around within the next few days soliciting funds for our State building, and we feel sure that after reading Mrs. Cotten's letter, no citizen of our old historic town will fail to respond liberally and cheerfully.

That great needs prepare the way for great deeds, is a very true, and the women of North Carolina have now an opportunity to prove this true by coming to the support of the lady managers, who are trying to raise a fund for the erection of a State building at the World's Fair in Chicago next year. In these efforts they are relying on the cooperation of their sisters in the State, because this is an hour of need, and the patriotism and pluck of our women who are trying to raise a fund for the erection of a State building will not fail the State in any dark hour of real emergency.

The last Legislature made an appropriation of $25,000, presumably for the purpose of a North Carolina exhibit at Chicago, but a technicality in the bill rendered it unavailable, and our only legacy from the Legislature was regret and disappointment. Now the stern fact remains that we have no funds wherewith to place our beloved State in an honorable position among other States at the Columbian Exposition.

The Board of Agriculture, with patriotic impulses, has undertaken to lift the State from the quagmire of reproach, which threatened to engulf her, and has assumed the responsibility of showing our resources at Chicago, in a way which will reflect credit upon the State and upon that board.

The exhibition is international, and it is required that the exhibits be erected and arranged in the main building, according to certain classifications. So this exhibit from North Carolina will go into these buildings and we are not afraid of the result, for wherever it is placed it will be sure to attract long lines of admirers, and the great value of our resources. But this is not enough. We possess many advantages beyond these products of farm, factory, and mine, and it is for the exhibition of these other things not admissible in the exposition buildings, that we need a separate building.

Our wonders of mountain and sea and soil do not surpass our wonders of air and flora and scenery and water-power. These things cannot be "classified," hence we must make a special exhibit of them, or else of necessity they will remain unknown, unappreciated and unutilized. I understand that the estimate is yet to prove the essence which will open to us the benefits of desirability. Necessary irrigation in the far West, the fatal blizzard of the Northwest, the rigors of the North, cause the people to turn with eager longing toward the South, where the balmy climate with fertile soil, seems to rest under God's smile.

In this State building we can show in many ways this climate, which gives so much and withholds so little of blessing. There we can show our flora, our great water-power, our lovely scenery which has long made us known as the Switzerland of America. We must show these things well, because the manner in which they are shown will illustrate the character of our people. Then this building will be a rendezvous for North Carolinians visiting Chicago—a picture of home life transferred to the land of strangers, which will bring a thrill of pleasure to our hearts, and where we can receive and answer letters; there we can meet our friends by appointment, there find guides to steer us through the mazes of immense grounds and stately buildings, and there we can rest when sick or weary, sure of help and loving care, which, while others might accord the same, is more acceptable from our own ilk. There are so many things, useful and beneficial to North Carolina for which this building can be used, that the lady managers earnestly call upon the women of the State to help us raise money for this purpose. We ask you to give something—no matter how small the contribution is—it will help swell the total. We will make an effort to reach as many as possible by visiting the towns and villages and auxiliary clubs and thus making the movement general. Co-operation means success, and what to a few seems a burden in the hands of many becomes light.

I wish I knew that every woman in North Carolina would attend the Exposition, and reap some benefit from its marvelous opportunities, and I know they would thrill with pride and pleasure in the sight and enjoyment of the State building, and the consciousness of knowing that they helped to build it.

It is deplored that the name Tryon became associated with this historic edifice. It is a name associated in our history, with the egotism, ostentation, and misdeeds of a man whom we all execrate. In these personal attributes the house took no part. The man we condemn to obloquy, but the building we wish to reproduce as a colonial legacy from our wrong-opposing ancestors, to emphasize the advance of architecture and as a landmark in the evolution of the colony into a State.

Virginia proudly claims to be the Mother of States. We claim that North Carolina is the Mother of Colonies.

ROYAL MAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

Here was planted the first colony in North America. Here was born the first white native American. Here was shed the first blood of the Revolution. Here was made the first Declaration of Independence. Here was the first general cessation of territory to make another State.

Ever first for the right and against a wrong can such a State, with such a people, stand idle, while the procession of States passes on their rights into the hands of progress and development? It must not be.

As an original colony—as the mother of all the colonies, North Carolina must take her rightful position in this Columbian celebration.

Call upon the women of the State to join in the effort to secure a State building for the World's Fair in Chicago next year. It is necessary to its success, and we ask all to give something and thus make the result great.

Dear Sirs, I call upon the women of the State to join in the effort to secure a State building for the World's Fair in Chicago next year. It is necessary to its success, and we ask all to give something and thus make the result great.

SALLIE S. COTTEN, Chairman Ladies' Committee.
