The City of Paris makes the trip from Queenstown to New York in 5 days, 15 minutes and 58 seconds, which is the quickest westward trip ever made.

COTTON milling in the two Carolinas and in Georgia show better results than the mills of the North. For the year 1891, they earned dividends ranging from 6 to 20 per cent. With better machinery they would earn more.

MOUNT Etina has again become unusually active. The rumblings are severe enough to shake the windows in adjacent villages. Large stones are thrown to a great height and the streams of lava are encroaching on the villages.

DURING the whole period of free coinage only $3,000,000 of silver dollars were coined. Since free coinage stopped there has been coined nearly $400,000,000 of silver, nearly fifty times as much as under free coinage.—News and Observer.

In South Carolina there is a warm canvass for delegates to the State Convention. The Columbia correspondent of the New York World telegraphed on the 24th inst. "The State is wild. Every man is on one side or the other, and in the language of the South Carolinian he is 'hell-bent' for his man and mathematics the other. No man goes to a joint debate unsmiled."

The Democrats of the second Congressional district nominated F. A. Woodard, of Wilson, for Congress, and N. J. Rouse, of Lenoir, for elector. Both good men. Our friends in the second will make a gallant fight, and we hope it will be successful.

An eminent authority on the metal trade announces that one effect of the tin-plate duty has been light plates. The Welsh makers meet the increased duty which is based on the pound by making the plates lighter. So that the result of the increased tax on tin-plate is an annual tax of from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 for a bad quality of plate. The experience of tin is that of woollens. High taxes on woollens encourage shoddy wool and high taxes on tin-plates encourage thin plates.—N. Y. World.

LOCAL NEWS.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Howard. Hackburn & Willett—Get in the swim.

Weather fair, followed by local showers this afternoon or tonight in the southern portion of the State.

Rev. John T. Hawkins, an able divine of Louisville, Ky., came in on the steamer Neuse yesterday, and will conduct a protracted meeting of the Church of Christ, commencing tomorrow.

You might not have known it if you did not look at the thermometer, but it was not quite as hot yesterday as the day before. The government thermometer at the depot registered 85—nearly two degrees less than the previous day.

The Washington Gazette says a Hyde county man named Noah Gibbs died while in jail there for drunkenness. A post-mortem examination revealed the fact that death was caused by paralysis of the heart, superinduced by whiskey.

Rev. John B. Gibble, of Beaufort, is expected to conduct the services and preach in Christ Episcopal church tomorrow at the usual hours, in the absence of the rector, Rev. T. M. N. George, who went down last night to spend some time at Beaufort.

Several of the Knights Templars belonging to St. John's Commandery, No. 10, of New Berne, will attend the grand convocation of Knight Templars at Denver, Colorado, which commences August 9th. 75,000 Knight Templars are expected to be in line.

The Asheville Citizen says: George Murphy, 102 years of age, of Burke county, has just filed his application as a pensioner of the war of 1812. He said that until a very recent date he did not need aid and was healthy, and adds that he is only now beginning to feel his great age.

Mr. Ed. G. Wise was to have had a preliminary examination at Pamlico, yesterday, but we have no information of the result. He was arrested on a statement of Mr. Jos. Clark, who is in Pamlico county jail charged with the murder of Mr. R. D. McCotter, implicating Mr. Wise in the crime.

The Morganton Herald says there is a curiosity in the State Hospital piggery that is attracting no little attention. It is a "mule-footed" pig, which instead of parting the hoof as the ordinary pig does has a hoof like a mule. It is claimed that for some reason this variety of the pig will not take the cholera.

On September 1st, Col. A. Fairbrother, of the Durham Globe, and Mr. A. Hatchett will begin the publication of a twenty-page journal called the Tobacco Plant, in Durham, devoted specially to tobacco news, but also to the general trade interests of its section. The editors announce that they intend to give more matter, more neatly printed, than any other journal of the kind in the South.

Death and Burial of Mr. Sooby. Mr. Jas. Sooby, who was attacked with sunstroke Thursday, lingered until 4:30 yesterday morning, and then breathed his last. By direction of his relatives in Starkville, N. Y., he was buried here, the funeral services being held yesterday afternoon at 6:30 o'clock, Rev. R. A. Willis officiating, and Mr. J. A. Simpson being the undertaker. The remains were followed to the grave by a number of friends whom Mr. Sooby had made while here, and he was buried in a good site in Cedar Grove Cemetery purchased by Mr. Steward for the purpose, which will be properly marked.

The deceased though here by himself among comparative strangers—having been here only seven months—had as good attention from the time the attack commenced until the last shovelful of earth was placed on his grave, as he could have received in his own home. Dr. Primrose, assisted by Drs. Ribem and Doguid, could not have attended and watched any one more closely and worked more faithfully than they did. They were with him nearly the entire time from 8 o'clock Thursday evening, when he was taken ill, until 9:30 yesterday morning, but all that their best skill could do, combined with the best nursing of others, was to ease his passing away.

IT PAYS. Men who are wise will advertise To push along their trade; No business man but finds the plan Has heaps of profit made. Those who have tried are satisfied That wealth to "ads" is traced; They pay quite well, so merchants tell When in the JOURNAL placed.

'Tis widely read and long has led Newspapers in the race; A medium great to circulate In every country place. In cities, too, it meets your view, By everyone "is read"; And everywhere the people share The news that it has spread!

Advantages of Diversified Farming. The advantage of a farmer's making the production of all his home supplies his first consideration and money crops the secondary ones and the troubles likely to arise from an opposite course has often been ventilated, but seldom in a plain manner than by the Texas Live Stock Journal in the following article:

The farmer who fattens his own beef and pork, mutton and poultry upon his own home-grown hay and corn and oats, and who has no milk or eggs, butter, or cheese to buy, whose cellar contains a sufficient supply of all the varieties of fruits and vegetables that his family requires, and whose sheds are supplied with fuel from his own forests, can afford to sell his surplus products at low prices if necessary. He needs a little money for taxes and clothing. His tea and coffee and sugar can be produced at home, but such a farmer has but little to pay out compared to the specialist who devotes his year's labor to one thing alone. With only one crop to sell at low prices and all others to buy, he is dependent upon the season and subject to the whole chapter of accidents for his means, and the era of high prices that benefits his neighbor, who has a greater variety of crops, may prove his financial ruin.

Having this in mind, will it not be well for each and every farmer to so diversify his crops and his products that he is sure of having abundance of all that he can produce for the wants of his own family first? Then he can provide for a surplus for his home market, and after that take his favorite special crop as a means of procuring that surplus of income above expenditure which should be the result of his knowledge and his labor.

Thus he will limit production to his own benefit, and thus will reduce his hours of labor when he desires, without feeling that he is likely to be limited in his support of his family. He will be more independent of the buyers, and he will begin to feel that he owns his farm, his stock and his crops and that they administer to his wants instead of feeling that he is a slave to them, inexorably bound to make them produce a certain sum of money necessary to meet expenses each year.—Texas Live Stock Journal.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The Editors and their Doings. Over fifty North Carolina editors were in Charlotte attending the twentieth annual session of the North Carolina Press Association.

Resolutions have been adopted by the association commending the efforts of the State Agricultural Society, the State Tobacco Association and the Women's Auxiliary to have North Carolina fully represented at Chicago in 1893, and they further recommended that the association use its influence in making the institution a success.

The association also tendered its sympathies to Hon. J. J. Davis, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina and expressed a hope for his full and speedy recovery and return to the position on the bench which he honors.

Earnest sympathy was also extended to our Senator, Hon. Z. B. Vance in his present impaired health and echoed the sentiment of every patriotic North Carolinian when it expressed the wish for his complete recovery and desire to record appreciation of his long, faithful and unselfish services in behalf of the people of North Carolina.

Regular business was gone through with in the morning and afternoon session on Wednesday. An excursion taken around the city after the adjournment of the latter, many of the principle industries visited, also the public building.

Visitors and home folks gathered alike at night in the Y. M. C. A. Hall and were addressed by an interesting address on the city of Charlotte by Mr. J. L. Chambers, President of the Chamber of Commerce. Fine instrumental and vocal music by the young ladies increased the delight of the occasion.

In his introductory remarks Mr. Chambers paid the following compliment to the educational features of journalism:

We look to the press of North Carolina, more than the courts, for the preservation of peace and order. The law which punishes crime and injustice is of less value than the public sentiment which prevents it. Education—moral, intellectual and spiritual—the development and exaltation of individual character is the only hope of a democratic country. The restraints of the church, guided by intelligence and honor, have not always been equal to the emergencies of the past.

"The campaign of education" does not end with present political contests, but in a country where the people rule, is, and must be especially from this time on, a perpetual movement. The commercial interest and the leaders in the movement and bids them a hearty God speed.

(We will notice some of the remarks of Mr. Chambers on commercial and industrial matters tomorrow.)

Mr. W. F. Marshall, editor of the Gastonia Gazette, who was elected the poet for the occasion last year made a witty speech on the suffering he had endured for a twelve month on that account and read a poem of welcome to the city of Charlotte by Miss Lisette Clayton Hood.

After this Dr. J. B. Shearer, President of Davidson College, made an address on "The Incurable Habit of Bad Writing,"—not hand-writing, but authorship. The address is highly complimented by the Charlotte Observer for its happy illustrations and anecdotes, its humor, and more than that its characteristic of being thoughtful, meaty and suggestive. It was listened to closely, heard with profit as well as pleasure, and made a deep impression.

Thursday morning a number of honorary delegates were taken in, and officers for the ensuing year elected.

Discussions were held at the morning and afternoon sessions on various subjects pertaining to the profession.

Resolutions were passed favoring hearty work for the Columbian Exposition, and pledging their efforts to help it forward. Also resolutions urging the National Editorial Convention to accept Asheville's invitation to meet there in 1894.

The passing of resolutions of thanks to the people of Charlotte for their royal entertainment and care for their comfort and pleasure, and also to the railroads for courtesies, was the concluding work of the session.

A drive to the park and entertainment then followed—also the photographing of the group.

The visitors were also given an exhibition of the quickness of response by the fire department to an alarm. It was astonishing and delighted all.

A banquet, beginning at 10 p. m., was a crowning success, and that ended one of the most delightful gatherings the editors of North Carolina have ever had.

Southern Seed Beats Northern. The experiments as to the raising of Irish potatoes from home-grown seed as compared with seed from the north have been completed. The result is simply astonishing. The northern seed used were from New York, and the home-grown were from Raleigh. The products of the latter are many times finer in appearance and much heavier. They are also more uniform in size. They show that the southern Irish potato is the best for seed. This year the latter were to a considerable extent used in New Jersey. There was as marked a difference in the size and appearance of the vines when growing as there is in the ripened potatoes.—State Chronicle.

The Winston Sentinel tells of the marriage of J. C. Lawrence and Miss Antoinette Flynn, after a courtship of twenty-seven years. The groom has just completed a handsome residence in which the bride is practicing lessons in housekeeping.

Cotton and Knitting Factories. There are reports to the effect that before the year ends there will be the beginning of work on another cotton mill in Raleigh. The Raleigh correspondent of the Goldsboro Messenger says several sites have been inspected for it. Thus it is. Whenever a city, town or village gets one cotton factory in operation its paying qualities, and its general benefits are so apparent that others are more likely to follow than other places of similar size without any factory at all are to commence building the first one.

A prominent good result from cotton and knitting factories is that they give steady employment to so many worthy young girls who need work of that kind.

The Kinston Knitting factory gives employment to nearly 100 hands and all the factory department are young ladies who are enabled by the factory to earn a constant income at the work it affords.

How good it would be for New Berne if we had a factory of each kind. They will be built sometime and let that event happen when it may, the wonder with our people afterwards will be, why they got along without them so long!

Cheese Making Within the Reach of any Farmer. Mr. E. E. Emery, Agriculturist at the North Carolina Experiment Station, is sending out the following letter in reference to the possibilities of cheese-making in small quantities, by which every farmer can make all that he needs at home.

During the spring of 1892 Mr. C. E. Dittinger, Powell, S. Dakota, advertised remnant and directions for making cheese in the Progressive Farmer. A sample package of the remnant lozenges was sent to that paper and by the editor sent to the experiment farm for trial.

A cheese was made following the directions which we consider entirely satisfactory.

The directions are short, plain and pointed, and it seems true as Mr. K. says that any person of ordinary intelligence can make good cheese by following the directions from good milk to start with.

Cheese making would be quite a novelty in many a North Carolina town. It is simple and so little outlay need be made in preparation for it that every family having milk can well afford to make cheese for home consumption at least. Where there is too little milk for a moderate sized cheese two or three families could pool their milk, and alternate in making first at one place, then at another, or get one of the members to make for all. Almost no apparatus required. We had only a tin hoop made; a peck measure would have done as well, we made our own knife.

This would be a capital way to dispose of surplus milk during the hot weather when butter is so low in price.

Cheese improves with age and is a valuable article, while on our market it is worth the freight and wholesaler's profit more than on the northern markets where most of the cheese consumed in this State is made.

This should be something of an incentive to try cheese making and save trouble with soft butter in hot weather.

A Strange Woman. The death of Miss Mary Vaughn, which a few days ago occurred near Stone, Greene county, brings to light some of her astounding peculiarities. She lived within three miles of a church, yet had never been inside of one, had never been a mile from home and never saw a train. Although reaching the age of 70, never had a sweetheart and had never been courted. She owned a farm, to which she gave undivided attention, and seemed perfectly contented and happy in her possessions and condition.

People's Party Convention. A convention of the People's Party of Craven county has been called to meet at the Court House, in the city of New Berne, Saturday, August 6th, '92, at 12 o'clock, M., for the purpose of organizing and electing a delegate to the State Convention to be held at Raleigh, August 16, 1892.

Townships are requested to hold First Meetings on July 30th, and elect one delegate for every fifty votes cast for Governor (all parties) 1888.

Come one! come all! and join in the grand cause of reform.

Wm. H. Satter, Chairman, People's Party Ex. Com., Craven county.
