CONSIDERING that the agitators who met in convention at Omaha believe, that the ticket they should put forth would derive a large measure of its support from the Southern Democracy, it is passing strange that they selected a man whose nomination is little less than an insult to the South, not because of his war record, but because since the war he has evinced toward the South a spirit of bitter and unrelenting hostility, and has reviled Southern Democrats with no more regard for decency and truth than have characterized the utterances of Sheppard and Torgue.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

In various exchanges, at this season, one reads the accounts of many cases in which persons are rescued from drowning, and he cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that the succored person is going down "for the last time." This may be strictly true, as he is rescued before he has a chance to go down again, but we are watching for the story of the rescue of a man when he is making his first plunge.

The Rural Plant asks what shall be done to improve our roads? The laws should be changed in relation to road-making, so as to conform to the present age of progress. The times have changed and all road taxes should be collected in money, and not commuted in labor. The making and repairing of roads should be let out to the lowest competent and responsible bidder for a term of years, who should act under the instructions of a county road commissioner, who should be a surveyor and civil engineer.

Matthew York, a old one-armed colored man who was peddling fruit at the depot, tells us of a petty swindle perpetrated upon him by one of the men on the stockholder's train. He made a five cent purchase from him, asked for change for half a dollar which was given to him and then he handed Matthew an old thin Spanish coin of the last century, worth, it is said, only fifteen cents, jumped immediately on the train and went on his way with the profits of his little transaction. What a small souled fellow he must be!

Fishermen's Luck.

Captain Reuben Smith, with one assistant, caught two boat loads of elegant rock fish at Port Point, four miles below the city, yesterday at a single haul. Their weight was near 1,200 of them, and their weight was near 4,000 pounds.

Even at the low price of fish that prevails in the summer season the catch brought Mr. Smith $50 at wholesale. Messrs. B. B. Lane and Haywood Tooker were the purchasers. In January this same lot of fish would have been good for $200. The school was a large one, the fish that escaped being vastly in excess of those taken.

Democratic Meeting.

All Democrats in the city tonight are invited and urged to attend the meeting at the court house. It will be for the purpose of completing the organization of the Cleveland and Carr club, hearing the reports of committees, deciding upon a place of meeting during the campaign, etc. The indication is that a wigwag will be built for the purpose in the central part of the city.

The present campaign is an important one. Momentous issues are involved. Organized effort is indispensable. Let every lover of good government be on hand.

It will help forward the cause of Democracy materially for every Democrat to come forward promptly, join the club, and thus give his name and influence to the work. It will encourage others to do so and thus arouse enthusiasm and an interest that otherwise would not be developed. Democrats, Rally!

TIMBER LANDS.

Their Rapidly Increasing Value and the Great Extent to which They Have Been Bought Up.

A Wheeling correspondent, speaking of West Virginia timber, says: "Another indication of the desirability of West Virginia timber land is the rapid rise in price. In some counties the values have increased as much as five hundred per cent. in the past year. There is not a timber county in the State that has not had its assessed valuation increased one-half. There is hardly a day that there are not representatives of syndicates offering prices for land that would have been thought fabulous five years ago.

Nearly all the large tracts of land have passed from the possession of the original owners and the purchasers are now taking hundred acre tracts that can be picked up here and there. The days of sales of land in West Virginia in tracts of 100,000 acres are paid for the reason that there are very few tracts of that size held now except here and there where a syndicate has provided for the operation of saw mill plants for the next decade or two. The land is rapidly getting into the hands of the men who will cut the timber and send it to market. Wild land as the undeveloped sections were called a few years ago is not spoken of in that way any more, for nearly all land is within reach of some railroad or navigable stream and can be used.—Tradesman.

The above article gives some idea of how valuable timber lands are passing from the hands of those who have long owned them into the hands of capitalist speculators and mill men. The time may not be so far away when people of the South, as wood working factories spring up more and more and the country generally gets to developing more rapidly, will feel the need of having at command a good supply of the fine native wood, to which comparatively so little value is attached now.

The outward forms the inner man reveals.—HOLMES.
