SINCE the enforcement of the Anti-Lottery law the receipt of the postoffice at New Orleans have fallen off so greatly that the Postmaster General has ordered the postmaster there to reduce the salaries of his assistants.

Gov. JARVIS arrived at the Central today after a tour through Gaston, Cleveland, Lincoln, Rutherford, and Burke counties. He speaks to-morrow at Concord, Gov. Jarvis gives an encouraging report from the counties which he has canvassed.—Charlotte News.

THE Democratic House voted no subsidy; authorized no corporation bonuses; encouraged no land grants; passed no Force bills or McKinley bills; counted no quorums; unseated no Republicans who had been elected; passed no laws increasing class privileges, and did all that could be done against Pinkerton plottings. This is record enough for any Democratic House.—St. Louis Republic.

Our people should bear in mind that the force bill gives United States Court judges the power to appoint canvassing or returning boards for each State and that these boards can certify whom they have elected to Congress. Under such a bill a republican United States Court judge could appoint republican canvassing boards in every Congressional district in the State, and such boards could easily elect every republican candidate for Congress. What could prevent it?

DUN & Co.'s weekly report says that crop reports are not quite up to the expectations, and that there may be a shortage in oats, and corn; that the great industries are doing remarkably well; that in textile industries the great activity prevails; that the purchases of wool are greatly in excess of last year; that the boot and shoe manufacturers are pressed to their utmost; that Southern reports show general improvement; that silver is lower than ever before quoted.

PRESIDENT HARRISON, standing on the radical resolutions adopted at Minneapolis, is the gentleman to look to for official Republican doctrine in the force bill question. He opened his administration with flouting, almost domineering advice to Congress to take charge of elections for presidential electors and representatives in Congress, and incidentally, of course, of all other elections taking place coincidentally. All that prevented obedience to his command was a remarkable trade in the Senate with free silver Republicans—something that, in the nature of things, can probably never take place again.—Cincinnati (O.) Enquirer.

LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. U. S. Mace has commenced proceedings in an action against Mr. J. F. Taylor on a charge of slander.

The Third Party county convention of Pamlico county was held at Bayboro Friday and delegates elected to the several conventions.

The house of Mr. F. J. Sawyer, of Bayboro, was struck by lightning Friday afternoon and some shingles knocked off. No material damage resulted, however.

The work of raising the steamer L. H. Cutler, which was sunk at Congdon & Co.'s mill last week, is in progress. She will no doubt in a short time be running as usual.

We are informed that Mr. F. D. Koonce was announced to deliver a Third Party speech at Jarman's carriage shop on the Core Creek road, a few miles from Trenton, Saturday, and that Hon. W. H. Kitchen, being in Kingston and being sent for, came down unexpectedly to Mr. Koonce and replied to him, and that he used him up well.

The fishing at Morehead is good and there is a pleasant party there enjoying that and other delights of the ocean as well as the royal fare at the charmingly cool and well kept Atlantic Hotel. However as September 1st, is the closing day, less than three weeks remain of the season, so those who wish to have more of the seaside sport and pleasures this year will do well to make the most of the opportunity.

Hon. F. M. Simmons called on ex-President Cleveland Saturday. His main object was to invite Mr. Cleveland to address the people of the State during the campaign, but as Mr. Cleveland's plans are not perfected no decisive answer could be given. Mr. Simmons expressed confidence that the State would go Democratic though a hard fight was certain.

The executive committee of the Craven county Cleveland and Carr Club is hereby called to meet at Gerock's Gallery, on Middle street, this afternoon at five o'clock, for the transaction of important business. The committee is as follows: C. A. Battle, Edw. Gerock, H. J. Lovick, F. G. Simmons and S. R. Ball. J. A. Biddle, chairman of the county executive committee, and C. R. Thomas, of the State executive committee, are requested to be present.

Mr. J. M. Howard and family have returned from a week's visit to relatives at Comfort. Mr. Howard informs us that he never saw a Third Party man while he was gone. Mr. J. B. French, of Bellair, tells us there is not a Third Party man in New Berne, however, that are very set in the positions they have taken. They should remember that a very few votes taken in each county in the State from the Democratic party will place it in the hands of the Republicans once more. Not a vote should be lost.

The meeting closed.

The series of meetings held at the Church of Christ by Rev. J. T. Hawkins have closed with nine accessions. The last sermon was attended by a large audience that gave close attention to the entire discourse, which was a concise and frank review of the great religious changes that have characterized the church since the days of the apostles. The subject was, "Are They Campbellites?" Mr. Hawkins spoke about an hour and a half, giving historical facts showing how these changes were brought about and had created division in the church. The great leaders in the Reformation, from Luther to Campbell, were beautifully presented for their manhood and devotion in adhering to the teachings of the Bible at such times when even their lives were in jeopardy.

This was Mr. Hawkins' first visit to North Carolina, and he has made a fine impression upon many who heard him as a gentleman of honest convictions and sterling worth.

TOULOUSE GEENSE.

BY W. H. DRAY, NEW BERNE.

I was very much amused a few days ago. I received a letter from a gentleman in Kentucky wanting a trio of Toulouse Geese. I sent him one of my circulars, also prices, and he writes thus: "I see in your circular you describe them as being a uniform handsome gray. Some poultry journals and books say Toulouse Geese are green." Now, I would like to ask the readers of your paper if they ever saw or heard of "green" Toulouse Geese? I never did, and have been breeding them for several years. I am of the opinion the brother had on "green eye glasses."

When we revert to our grandmothers' day—but I won't go back so far. I will say to our mothers' early days, we see a vast improvement since then in domestic poultry. The common goose of "ye olden time" was a sorrowful picture of neglect and degeneracy. Eight, ten and perchance twelve pounds was the maximum weight of madame aners. The ordinary goose that weighed fifteen pounds was a wonder, and to this present day three-fourths of our very young mothers don't know that we have geese that will weigh from forty to fifty pounds per pair. They still think what grandmother did and had, they must have.

The Toulouse Geese originated at a city of that name on the Garonne River in the south of France. They are extremely large, weighing when fattened and matured, at three years old, forty-five and fifty pounds. I have heard of them reaching sixty-five pounds per pair, the goose lays thirty to forty eggs each in a season. I had one last season that laid forty-seven eggs. I have but one objection to the Toulouse Geese and that is she lays too many eggs, which makes it late for the young. To have them hatch early you must sit them under hens and you must turn the eggs every day yourself as the eggs are too large for the hen to turn. The goose seldom offers to sit. I find them good to hatch, easy to raise, and much stronger when young than common goslings.

They grow so rapidly that at four weeks they will weigh from six to eight pounds each, and at three months, fifteen to eighteen pounds. They yield half a pound of feathers to a picking. They are small feeders for their size, and require no food but pasture except in winter. In color geese and ganders are alike. To a uniform, handsome gray, with breasts and underparts a slaty lighter. They are gentle in disposition, not unruly, and can be fenced easier than sheep. They breed at an early age, and in all respects are very profitable and would pay well almost anywhere, and especially in sections where grass grows plentifully. The sexes can be distinguished by their form and voices. Ganders are taller, more upright and larger necks, and gobble in higher, finer and more rapid tones than the geese, the voice of which is low deep bass and slow. I have bred several kinds of geese, the Bremen, Brown and White China, also what I call the Pipey Woods, and I find the Toulouse to be the most profitable of all geese. To secure the fertility of goose eggs there must be but one gander to four females, some say six but I find one to four best. It is always well to give them separate apartments from those where other fowls are kept and water should be accessible at all times in the breeding pens. Don't disturb the geese when setting. She will leave her nest long enough to feed and drink, when she desires. To keep her from going away too far for food and drink, both should be placed near enough to be readily accessible, and yet not attract her attention to the feeder. After the eggs are hatched it is best to confine the mother some days in a pen or coop. The pen should be made so as to move it twice or three times a week, and placed on a dry grassy spot, allowing the goslings no access to water beyond what they need to drink, which can be placed in a shallow pan until they are ten or twelve days old after which the mother and young may have their liberty upon clean grass. Never allow the goslings to be caught in the mud. The food should be first, meal scalded and a few cabbage and turnip leaves cut fine will prove very beneficial. When they get the down off they will live upon grass but I always feed my goslings on meal or hominy until they are quite grown, which makes them grow very rapidly. When young the gosling is subject to cramp caused by getting wet and cold; this is more particularly the case with spring broods. Early spring or late never allow them to get wet.—Poultry Pancier.

Death of Mrs. Broadfoot.

The community of Fayetteville was startled on Thursday last to hear of the death of Mrs. Francis R. Broadfoot, which occurred early that morning. Mrs. Broadfoot was the widow of William G. Broadfoot, Esq., long engaged in the banking business in this city, a man of great learning and a leader in its life a generation or two ago. Her father was the late Ichabod Wetmore, for so many years at the head of the branch Bank of the State in Fayetteville; and her mother was the only sister of Mr. Badger, to whom she bore a striking resemblance, particularly in the strong lines that gave such distinctive expression to her great kinsman's face.

Mrs. Broadfoot, like the most of her family, possessed a strong intellect, which was cultivated by much reading. She possessed also a strong character, chastened by many sorrows, which found expression in a lofty christian demeanor. She was the mother of Col. Chas. W. Broadfoot, Maj. John B. Broadfoot, and Mr. Andrew Broadfoot.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Huske and Rev. Mr. Atkinson from St. John's Church and the body was interred in Cross Creek cemetery—Fayetteville Observer.

For more than 23 years Mr. Russell has been bed-ridden, the result a separation of the spinal cord, caused by a concussion received from a falling deer while erecting a windmill.
