NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Lost—Keys.
Big Ike—Important.
J. C. Harrison—Adm's notice.

School vacation is over.

Come out to the Y. M. C. A. service at 6 o'clock this afternoon.

Showers today. Cooler in extreme western portion of the State.

Collegiate Institute, Graded School and private schools begin today.

The pastors of the city will preach today on the subject of "Education."

Students are arriving already to enter the Collegiate Institute, which opens tomorrow morning.

At the meeting of the Directors of the New Berne Ice Factory, just held, Mr. B. S. Guion, who has recently been attending to the business of the company, was elected Secretary, Treasurer and General Manager.

A Mr. Abernethy is expected to deliver a Third Party address at Riverdale, Wednesday, probably beginning about 11 o'clock. We have been told that his main aim is to try to decoy Alliance men into the Third Party. It is said he also sells a life of Weaver.

Orders have been received from the authorities at Raleigh to hold Reid Underwood, the colored man in jail here charged with killing a man in Georgia, until the authorities at that State act in the matter. A telegram has also been received from Fayetteville indicating that he is wanted there also.

The article on cholera should be read throughout by every one. Its teachings on the power of cleanliness towards keeping off diseases and epidemics even when a few cases of the most dreaded maladies effect an entrance into a locality makes it worth preserving. The truths it contains should be remembered and practiced.

Rev. Mr. Lewis, of Core Creek, Carteret county, closed a protracted meeting at Trent church (Free-Will Baptist), near Stoneville, which he and the pastor, Rev. Jesse Bennett, have been conducting for a week past. There were eighteen conversions. All joined at once and the whole eighteen were baptized yesterday morning.

Henry James, col., brought to the office last night a fish that was of a variety strange in New Berne, which was caught near the mouth of Neuse river. It was about two and a half feet long, two inches wide, and a half inch thick from side to side. He had fins but no scales. Some say he is of the kind known as the king of salmon.

We are requested to state that E. R. Dudley, col., who at the court house at the time of the Republican convention as a spectator and addressed the meeting simple because he was urged to do so—not as a participant or sympathizer. He informed the convention at the beginning of his remarks that his speech might throw a coldness over the meeting.

Dr. N. H. Street, city physician, does not think it necessary as yet to put quarantine regulations in force, as foreign vessels do not come here and there has not been any case of sickness in the United States that has unmistakably been pronounced cholera, except on vessels whose passengers have not been permitted to land. If a case of cholera, about which there is doubt, should develop anywhere on shore he will recommend putting the quarantine in force immediately.

We are informed that about 300 people greeted Messrs. Henry and Fox at Riverdale yesterday. The speaking began at noon. Each spoke about an hour, and then Mr. J. P. Brinson, a Third Party canvasser in the audience, was called on. He also spoke for an hour. Mr. Fox claimed the privilege of asking Mr. Brinson questions and granted him the same. Mr. Fox's questions tangled Mr. Brinson so that he had no option left to save himself except to decline to answer, but when Mr. Fox replied he answered Mr. Brinson's questions every one as rapidly as they were asked. It was the judgment of a lawyer that in the half hour Mr. Fox gave him one of the worst trouncings that was ever given anywhere.

Accidentally Killed.
Frank Atkinson, the colored fireman at Mr. Clifford Simpson's brick mill at Riverdale, was caught in the main belt Friday and carried partly around a pulley. His head struck the end of a mill and passing that struck an iron bar 1-3 inch thick and 3 inches wide. The force of the blow bent the bar and broke the belt, which was 14 inches wide.

He was terribly crushed and unconscious but lived three hours and a half afterward—a remarkable case of tenacious vitality, considering the severity of his injuries.

Coming and Going.
Mr. C. R. Thomas and family, who have been visiting relatives at Beaufort, returned to the city yesterday morning.

Mrs. Thomas' sister, Miss Ella Davis came up also to visit them.

Miss Ella Dill of Beaufort, came up to visit her aunt, Mrs. S. L. Dill.

Mr. Robt. Hancock, U. S. Revenue Collector, left to spend a month's vacation at Asheville.

Mr. H. W. Wahab left on a Northern business trip.

Miss Nellie Colligan has left to attend Notre Dame College, Baltimore.

Her father, Mr. Wm. Colligan accompanied her. He will go on to Chicago on a pleasure trip and take a view of the grand preparations in progress for the World's Fair.

Mr. F. S. Aldridge of Oriental, who has been in the city a day or two, left yesterday morning to enter Trinity college.

Rev. Mr. George has returned to the city.

Mr. W. S. Blount, who has been spending the summer in Pitt county, returned to the city yesterday.

Miss Janie Brown returned last night from a visit to the family of Capt. W. W. Carraway, near Kinston.

Fire Insurance Reform.
EDITOR JOURNAL—"H" in the JOURNAL of 2d inst., does not sufficiently explain how fire insurance reform can be obtained. I would suggest that New Berne, Washington and Goldsboro start out together and each town organize a Mutual Fire Insurance Company. Then after organized, each company insure about one third in each town or other prominent town in the district throughout the country. Each company operates in its own section.

In this manner every one worthy of having his property insured can do so at a low rate of insurance. I venture to say that the rate of insurance will not exceed one dollar for every one thousand dollars insurance per year. I know of an instance where it did only reach 50 cents for the $1,000 for buildings and 75 cents for every $1,000 on personal property for two years.

Every building worthy of insurance in the district would be insured and every member is a detective upon other members. Each of the companies might carry from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 worth of insurance in the large districts they could operate in.

Minstrel Entertainment.
All the latest songs and dances, also expert tumbling will be rendered at the New Berne Theatre Tuesday night by the Black Diamond Minstrels.

Tickets on sale at New Berne Drug Store.

See the grand street parade Tuesday afternoon headed by the famous Star band.

Mr. Calvary Temple is now well seated and a large crowd is expected at the services at 5:14 p. m. Meeting led by Rev. J. P. Butt.

Notice.
On and after this date Shaving will be done at my shop, Middle street. John Brown.

ABOUT CHOLERA.

It Cannot Flourish in Pure Surroundings—Sanitary Regulations are More Important Than Quarantine—A Remedy for the Disease.

There is danger that the authorities of this and other cities will spend all their energies at quarantine to repel the attack of disease, and fail in the only available means of preserving the public health. Epidemics do not come as an invading army either by land or water. Smallpox and measles and whooping cough are contagious, and to guard against such diseases the health officer with a vigilant quarantine will be found useful. Yellow fever, typhus fever and cholera are not contagious. Place a sufferer from any one of these diseases in a perfectly healthy locality, and he cannot communicate the maldy to a well person who comes in contact with him. We have seen this tested time and time again with the one unvarying result.

Take fifty passengers from a ship arriving at the port in which the yellow fever during the voyage has been fatal in a majority of cases and transport them to fifty different inland localities where the complaint is wholly unknown. Some of them may die, but they will not communicate the disease to their most intimate attendant. It is so with the cholera. The pestilential wave will travel from one country to another, the foul atmosphere always infecting those subject to it, but staying to be prevalent and disastrous chiefly where sanitary precautions are neglected and filth and foul drinking water invite its attacks and make provision for its residence. We know all that has been written about its travels. It is true that a body of pilgrims or a legion of soldiers have carried the cholera with them in their march and made it a companion of their journey. But break up the party and scatter it into healthy localities and the members do not take the contagion with them.

This shows the means of prevention and the method of treatment. The disease will not abide in a place with clean streets and a pure air and wholesome water unless a body of people already foul with it arrive and create the pestilential atmosphere in which it flourishes.

It is well enough to watch at the entrance of the harbor and to inspect arriving ships, but far more important to sweep the thoroughfares and cleanse the gutters. We saw very much of the cholera on its most fatal visit to this country, and suffered in person from its attack. We were carried fourteen miles on a bed from the foul quarter in which it raged, and neither the woman in whose lap our head was cradled, the man who drove the vehicle, nor the good people who nursed us back to life and waited on our convalescence suffered from contact with us. This was not an isolated case. Not every one recovered who was thus removed, but in no case was the disease communicated to another person outside of the area where it had been so fatal.

A strong, healthy diet, active habits and a courageous will are the best personal safeguards. There is no disease to the prevalence of which faithfulness and a depression of spirits contribute so largely. We saw cases in which the victim never spoke an intelligible word after he was first seized with the cramps, and went out of life almost without a struggle. Fear, in a person otherwise free from disease, will produce symptoms somewhat akin to the cholera, and wherever this is prevalent the timid and irresolute are generally the first attacked. The excessive humidity in the atmosphere for this class of diseases. Unripe fruit and an insufficient quantity of nourishing food lead the way to it.

There is a famous remedy for the cholera devised by the combined skill of the most eminent physicians when the disease was here at its worst, which ought to be kept in every household. It is very useful in ordinary summer complaints, and in every case where it was used in the cholera season it prevented the sudden collapse from which so many never recovered. It was first published in the Sun, and is known as the "Sun Cholera Medicine." It consists of equal parts of the tinctures of opium, capsicum, peppermint, rhubarb and camphor. The dose for an adult is fifteen to twenty drops, and less for a child. This may be repeated twice in extreme cases. It affords instant relief in attacks less serious than that of Asiatic cholera, and may be purchased at many druggists' already compounded.—N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Gaston House Barber Shop.
To the gentlemen whom I have heretofore served at John Brown's Barber Shop, and to the public generally, I respectfully announce that I shall for the future do business at the Gaston House Barber Shop. It will be my endeavor, as it has in the past to give satisfaction to such as with a good shave, haircut or shampoo. Gentlemen may assure themselves that they will find at this place sober, respectful, attentive barbers, and quiet, orderly conduct. I respectfully solicit a share of the public patronage.

T. H. H. RICHARDSON.

From North to South, from East to West, Come throngs of buyers eager, Because my prices are the best. To suit the means when meagre.

Here comes the toiling artisan To save an honest penny, The horny handed farmer, too, To see the bargains many.

The rich, the poor, they throng my doors, Each one the chances to embrace, They buy their goods from Bro. Ike's famous stores, And go home with a happy face.

Bro. Ike wages war on prices high, Bro. Ike with his mammoth stock, and prices low, Can surely beat the world.
