A HUMAN ALIGATOR.

Curious and Revolting Spectacle of Physical Deformity.
 One of the most curious and revolting spectacles of human deformity is to be found near Waycross, Ga., in the form of a human aligator. The monstrously is a boy 14 years of age, who not only bears a close resemblance to a snarling, but hisses, bellows with anger and foams at the mouth when enraged. He can neither talk nor walk and is practically an idiot. When hungry, however, he can make known his wants by growling and searching around the room, half rolling and half crawling on his belly.
 The boy's body is almost entirely covered with scales of a delicate texture. His head is long and flat, and his eyes are round and beady and blink with a superficial lid or film like those of an aligator. His mouth is long and wide and is filled with an unusually large number of big teeth. His legs and arms are flat and crook sideways from the joints. Altogether he is as near a blending of human and beast as one ever saw.
 The boy has a great fondness for water, which seems to delight him immensely. He knows of its presence by instinct. A few days ago he was taken before the Grand Jury for medical examination. The jury pronounced him harmless and allowed him to remain with his mother.

Kindly Advice.
 First Blue Ribbon Man—I saw you coming out of a barroom the other day.
 Second Blue Ribbon Man—Yes, I was in there gathering materials for a "Sketch on Life in the Saloon."
 First Blue Ribbon Man—I did not notice that you were, or had been, making any notes.
 Second Blue Ribbon Man—No; the materials I get there I carry in my head.
 First Blue Ribbon Man—Well, my friend, my advice is, don't get too many of these materials into your head or you'll be having the delirium tremens.

Unsophisticated.
 Mr. Ashdale Flate—Yes, sir, we can always spot a hayseed on sight.
 Mr. Drexel Houser—Of course. There's one now standing on the corner, I'd bet my last dollar.
 The Hayseed (approaching)—Gents, can I have your attention for a few minutes in a little entertainment of mine? I have here three shells, and here, as you see, a tiny rubber ball. Now I put the rubber ball, etc., etc.

HOUSE AND HOME.
The Housewife and Subjects to Interest Her.
 Indiana's Generous Laws for Women.
 Mrs. Washington's Housekeeping—Food that Beautifies—One Way to Cook Tomatoes.
 The laws of Indiana treat women with great generosity, and have done so long before it was done in other States prouder and more important, and whose inhabitants are not called Hoosiers. That this was so was due mainly to two people who have now gone to their reward, Mrs. Allen Hamilton, the sister of Judge Holman, the watch dog of the Treasury, and Robert Dale Owen. The impetus to a slowly gathering movement was given by the fortunes of a humble boarding-house keeper. She had a drunken husband and a small family of children. To rear these she worked early and late. When she refused to give her husband money he collected it of the boarders. The woman requested the boarders to pay their money to her, when her husband, inspired by an accommodating lawyer, brought suit. It was decided in his favor. The circumstances of the case were known. Mrs. Hamilton, to whose knowledge they came, anticipated the sensible opinions expressed by Mr. Bumble. When Mr. Bumble was arrested for something his wife had said he remonstrated. "But it's the law," said the constable. "Then the law's an ass," said Mr. Bumble. Communicating with Robert Dale Owen, the two began an active canvass, which the social position and the personal prominence of the two principals greatly aided, and thus began those modifications of the legal position of women that, carried forward from year to year, placed Indiana among the pioneers of the enlightened States.

Mrs. Washington's Housekeeping.
 Edward Everett Hale says Mrs. George Washington was a model housekeeper. In a set of books kept expressly for that purpose Mrs. Washington made entry of housekeeping duties accomplished from day to day, and noted how she superintended the preparing of the supply of smoked meats for the plantation, how, with her own hands, she cut out the clothing of the slaves and so on. Letters of Lady Washington's daughter and others testify that after the death of her husband the hospitality of the Mount Vernon home was kept up.
How to Wash Windows.
 There is a knack even in washing windows. Choose a dull day or at least a time when the sun is not shining on the window, for then it causes it to be streaked, no matter how much it is rubbed. Take a painter's brush and dust the windows inside and out, washing all the woodwork inside before touching the glass. The latter must be washed simply in warm water and diluted ammonia—do not use soap. Take a small cloth with a pointed stick to get the dust out of the corners; wipe dry with a cotton cloth—do not use linen, as it makes the glass lumpy and dry. Polish with tissue paper or old newspaper. This can be done in half the time taken where soap is used.
Give Baby a Drink.
 An eminent children's physician is reported as saying that infants, generally, whether brought up at breast or artificially, will in warm, dry weather take water every hour with advantage, and their frequent fretfulness and rise of temperature are often due to their not having it. In teething, spoonfuls of water given every hour or oftener, cool and soothe the gums, and this, with larger cooling evaporations, often stops the fretting and restlessness so universal at this period.
Food That Beautifies.
 The green salad in any shape, from the long curling lettuce leaf to the crisp little watercress, is a constant beautifier, and more than this, regularly eaten, it quiets your nerves and gives you a pleasant sleep. But if you flood it with vinegar and powder it with sugar you have simply made yourself a dish that will have no effect upon you whatever, unless it should be by the force of the vinegar to break the enamel of your teeth.
 The right way for you to eat this most beautifying of dishes is to have upon it a good French dressing, that is, one formed of pepper, salt, a small portion of vinegar and a large portion of good, sweet olive oil; if you do not care for this, then eat your salad as did the hermits of old, dipping a leaf in some salt and having with it a piece of bread and butter. All fresh vegetables, especially asparagus, tend to improve the skin.
