ty emancipated, but in my recollection I remember but two, John Good and Lewis Williams. They were emancipated by the legislature of 1801 and 1803. Another thing, Mr. Williams said, if any person had been ever a Democrat, he would not have been a slave.
 The next speaker was James J. O'Hara, who entered the arena with vigor and in his vehement denunciation of the Democratic party, and rapped at the Democratic Democracy, and urged the acceptance of his platform. He said that the Democratic party were the enemies of the people, and that they were the cause of the present state of affairs.

According to tradition,
 the first of the
 slaves who were brought to this country were
 the children of Africa. They
 were sold to the planters
 and used as laborers on
 the plantations.
 They were
 treated as property and
 not as human beings. They were forced to work from dawn till
 dusk, and
 were given
 no rest or recreation.
 They were
 whipped and
 punished
 without mercy.
 sold from one owner to another, and their families
 were torn apart. They were treated
 as beasts of
 burden, and
 their lives
 were of no value in the eyes of their owners.
