

PUBLISHERS' ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE DAILY JOURNAL is published Daily except Monday at $5.00 per year; $2.50 for six months. Delivered to city subscribers at 10 cents per month.

THE WEEKLY JOURNAL is published every Thursday at $1.00 per annum in advance. It contains all the news of local interest and is published for the benefit of the community.

THE JOURNAL,

G. T. HANCOCK - Local Reporter.
Entered as second-class matter.

Mr. J. SLOAT FASSET, of New York, is more candid than most Republicans in assigning reasons for the recent defeat of his party. He says: It seems to me that in view of the almost universal Democratic gains, the only reasonable explanation is incredible as it may seem, that the people of the United States, all things considered, preferred the party, platform and candidates of the Chicago Convention to the party, platform and candidates of the Minneapolis Convention.

Mr. S. M. INMAN, of Inman, Swan & Co., cotton merchants, in the Cotton Exchange building, who has recently returned from the South, estimates that the advance in the price of cotton, from the lowest figure last spring per bale, to be $20, and the advance from the lowest price at which the planters began selling this year's crop to be $14 per bale, and the advance in price from November 1, this year, to be $9 per bale. He also estimates that there were in the planters' hands on November 1 not less than 3,300,000 bales, which is about half of this year's estimated crop.

EVERY HOUR.

Every hour has its duties, every moment is freighted with responsibilities. There is always pressing upon us some paramount obligation. Sometimes patriotism summons us to the call of the country and bids personal concerns abate until the decisive hour is passed and imperiled liberty is saved. Through such a crisis we have just passed. During its existence no citizen had a right to disregard the inexorable demands of the hour. If money was needed it was the duty of those who had money to dedicate it upon the altar of their country. If speaking talent, writing ability or personal influence was in demand, no one was guileless who withheld his contribution to the public service.

The paramount claim of patriotism having been met, in the election of Cleveland and Stevenson and the complete triumph of the Democratic party throughout the Union, we may calmly rest in the confident assurance that the ship of State will ride out the storm and weigh anchor in a harbor of domestic peace and national safety. What duty now confronts us at the behest of patriotism? The United States occupies a commanding position among the nations of the earth, but she has not yet reached the high position to which nature and nature's God have destined her. Whatever tends to national exaltation and renown should be dear to every patriot heart.

In this country, of equal rights, every man influences national character, and it follows that the elevation of the masses through the benign influence of education and Christianity is a potential factor in the sum of National glory. When school houses and colleges shall be in every valley and on every hill, and our churches become vocal with unrestricted piety the people of these States will celebrate the golden age of the American Republic. While as Americans we rejoice in the prospect that spreads out before us, it is as North Carolinians that our hearts swell with exultation as we see the future advancing to crown the old North State with the richest blessings of Heaven. God has abundantly blessed us and ours is a goodly heritage.

A glorious climate and fertile soil opens to us avenues of wealth and enjoyment, and we have but to make a proper use of the means within our reach to become a prosperous and happy people.

Sister States with few of our advantages have become empires of wealth and realms of culture and refinement, and if, for any reason, we fail to attain equality with the foremost American States we will be recreant to the trusts committed to us and will deserve the censure, if not the execrations of mankind.

Nor is this all. Not only does the Nation and the State levy their exactions upon us, but it is the highest duty of every citizen to contribute his share to the advancement of the community in which he lives. The man who is unwilling to work for the good of his town or his neighborhood is unworthy of the privileges and blessings it confers upon him. Then, let us, with one accord, dedicate ourselves to the duties before us, remembering that every hour has its demands that cannot be violated without forfeiting our self-respect and the approbation of our fellow men.
