Cotton Futures.

NEW YORK; Dec. 1 .- Hubbard, Price & Co.'s cotton review says: verpool this morning as a result of yesterday's market. This morning's quotations surprised the bears and disappoint-ed bills. The first cables from the other side reported a loss, the price of futures, latter cables advised a further decline. The London Times, in its financial ar ticle yesterday, published a statement, according to press dispatches printed in present rise in cotton is without precedent except during the American civil war, and that the movement is wholly speculative. Middlemen, it says, are buying as fast as they can in the teeth of the bad state of trade and the strike in Lancashire and in the absence of any proof of the diminution of supplies, the estimate of the American crop at 6,300,000 bales is probably, as was the case last year, greatly under the mark. Ih conclusion, the article says that inasmuch as at least 5,000,000 bales must have changed hands in gambling opera tions, it may not be out of place to utter a word of caution. Our cables advise that this expression of opinion from such a source has had an important effect upon the market today, and is doubtless responsible for part of the decline estab

No opportunity is missed to reduce balues, but unless a more decided impression can be made upon the Southern markets for spot cotton than is as yet ap parent, it is reasonable to assume that the reaction in the market for futures is about all the decline that is to be expected as incidental to the recent activity in specu-

The total frading on the New York Exchange during the month of November was 8,107,000 bales, which surpasses by far any previous record. During the n the market was nervous and uusettled, March contracts selling down as low as 9.60c, and recovering to 9.67c. just before the close, which was steady at these figures. The final prices are down fourteen points under yesterday.
