A DISPATCH from Paris to the Central News says: "The rumors that President Carnot will resign shortly are confirmed this evening. At Tuesday's cabinet meeting, during the heated debate between M. and Ribot M. Rouvier, the President interposed the remark: 'The action of certain ministers render my retention of office almost impossible.' M. Rouvier thereupon left the meeting, declaring that he would resign. President Carnot's difficulty is increased by the report that his father and his brothers are involved in the Panama Canal scandal. President Carnot himself and not M. Ribot was the one who went to M. Tirard the dispatch: 'I will upon you as a friend of my family; not a refuse office. If you do I will resign tomorrow.'"

The schooner Hannah E. Fredmore will be sold at auction on Tuesday, Dec. 27th by Deputy Marshall C. R. Hill, back of this feed store in Brinson's dock to satisfy claims against her.

The State Chronicle tells that three penitentiary convicts from Buncombe county escaped from a chain gang at Morgan Hill. During the night they freed themselves from their shackles and left at the first opportunity. They were in for burglary. Perhaps their past experience was an aid to them.

The breaking of a piece of machinery under the engine when the train was near Kinston caused a delay of nearly two hours last night. With all that could be done to remedy the matter on the road the train was making slow progress, and a special engine was run up which met the train about Core Creek and brought it down.

The Washington Gazette tells the following big collard story: "Collards are collards, but when they measure 6 feet across they are collards, sure enough; yet Mr. J. C. McClaud, of Lake Landing, Hyde county, raises them of the above dimensions. Our agent, Mr. L. H. Ross, has seen them, and vouches for the fact." Send some of them to the New Berne Fair neighbor.

Mr. C. C. Brown is canvassing the city for what appears to be a valuable invention, a force sprinkler that for a hand apparatus is remarkably effective. Its power to throw a stream of water to a considerable distance or to spray as desired makes it very serviceable for washing windows or carriages or even for putting out conflagrations in their incipency.

The Y. M. C. A. entertainment last night gave a very large amount of fun for a small amount of money. There were over two dozen characters in the "Breach of Promise" case, and merriment prevailed from the opening scene to the close. The performance was about two hours in length. It is hoped the attorneys will move for a new trial. It is a pity for so good a piece so excellently performed to stop with only one rendition. Notwithstanding the small charge a neat little sum was raised and it is likely that still greater success would attend a repetition.

The continuous use of the city roller for the past day or two on the portion of South Front street on which marl has recently been spread is getting it compact and in very good shape generally. Yesterday a beginning was made towards putting the additional coating of marl on Middle street. A little later more will be on also where the roller is now at work, it being found that repeated layer, each one well rolled, do better than a single thick one.

The news says that during the two weeks that Rev. J. W. Lee who held a protracted meeting in New Berne a few months ago, has been preaching in the Methodist church in Mt. Airy there have been about 50 conversions, 14 backsliders reclaimed, and 40 have connected themselves with the Methodist church. During the past year, he has preached 514 sermons, has been instrumental in the conversion of 1,211, has helped reclaim 450, and 551 of the converts joined the Methodist church.

Without a Doubt.
The ladies all say C. Disoway & Bro. are simply giving Valentine's Handsome Japanese wares away. The many tasty articles to be found in their stock for the holiday trade, are meeting with the same fate. Whittings Fine Writing Paper, France's Handsome Christmas Cards and Booklets, Picture Frames (hand painted), Brownie Stamps (nothing more amusing) and suitable presents for gentlemen.

We think you will make the mistake of your life to purchase elsewhere before visiting their store and getting their prices. (Under the sign)

Coming and Going.

Miss Etta Nunn, who has been taking a course at the New York Conservatory of Music, arrived last night.

Mrs. Joel Kinsey returned to the city last night.

Mrs. Fred. Thomas arrived to visit relatives in the city.

Home Raised Horses.

Nothing would give us greater pleasure than see our State, especially this portion of it, fairly embarked in raising live stock of every description.

It is a matter of surprise that every farmer does not have one or more colts being raised on his farm constantly. Why not have colts as well as calves? Think how much more money the former will save you when grown in case if you need to increase your working force, or how much more money it would bring in case your old supply was sufficient and you put your young horse on the market.

Try your hand at horse raising and see how well it will pay you and bear in mind that as the town that has the greatest variety of industries is the most likely to flourish, so the farming community that raises the greatest variety of products has the soundest basis for prosperity.

The Premium.

Remember that the East Carolina Fair premium books are ready for mailing and if you have friends elsewhere who feel an interest in the Fair, or whom you believe would take an interest if it was brought to their direct notice, it will be taken as a favor if you will hand in their names to Mr. Chas. Reizenstein, secretary of the Fair and he will take pleasure in sending them a copy of the premium list.

This year's premium lists are, as we have said before, larger in size and contain a greater number of premiums and the premiums are larger than ever before. In their make up the lists are beauties.

They are somewhat different from any heretofore used both in the design on the covers and in the material. They are nearly all on elegant embossed paper. In the entire number numerous colors are used but unlike those of the last Fair each cover is one solid color of some beautiful tint, pink red, different shades of blue and buff, old gold, &c. The workmanship on the books could not have been surpassed. It is a great credit to the firm of Messrs. Richardson & Son in whose job office the books were made and another proof of the superior manner in which our people perform what they undertake.

The Glass Front Boxes.

The glass front key boxes one of which is now along side each fire alarm box will considerably expedite matters when it is necessary to send in alarm. Instead of as formerly, having to find out who kept a key to the nearest, and then find him, and then possibly lose a little more time while he was getting the key, all that is necessary is for the one discovering a fire to break the glass, take out the key and send in the alarm.

As reason why this arrangement was not adopted at first was the fear that if the keys were left thus so any one could make use of them, false alarms would be sent in, but there is but little apprehension felt along this line. Wilmington has had this arrangement in use a good while and during all the time only one false alarm has been sent in.

The interest that all citizens must feel in the preservation of property would tend to keep down any abuse of the freedom whether through carelessness or willfulness.

Besides, there is such a fine against the malicious breaking of a box or intentional sending in of a false alarm that it would be a costly piece of business if one thoughtless or evil disposed enough for the purpose should do so. The fine is $50, and the necessity for keeping the system working harmoniously and so that dependence can be put in it would make it necessary that the ordinance should be rigidly enforced if occasion arose.

Occasionally the inquiry is still made how to send in alarm. All that is necessary is to open the box with the key, pull down the lever that is in plain sight, and the work is done. Electricity fixes the rest.

East Carolina Fair.

The Kinston Free Press has the following in regard to the approaching Fair:

Mr. Chas. Reizenstein, the very efficient secretary and treasurer of the New Berne Fair, writes us that the next fair will be the best and biggest ever held. He also writes us that we can put it as strong as we please: "That we certainly will not have any games of chance of any kind, nature or description under any circumstances." The New Berne Fair should be patronized by all our people. It has been and we believe will continue to be by far the best fair in the State.

Mr. Reizenstein asks us if we can't induce some of our people to send some exhibits. The Free Press wants to see Lenoir and the surrounding counties well represented at the Fair both in attendance and exhibits. Begin early to select something for exhibition.

The races at the next fair will be unusually fine. The premiums offered for races alone amount to $2,000.

Last.
Between New Berne and Washington, a value containing clothing, one pair spectacles and a letter addressed to Mr. A. Berry, Swan Quarter. Finder will be liberally rewarded upon returning same to W. B. Gwynn, d1792

OUR RESOURCES.

No Other Seven Thousand Square Miles Comparable to This.

The Best Trucking Region in the United States, also the greatest Timber Section.

The country through which the Norfolk, Wilmington and Charleston Railroad is to run in the best trucking region in the United States, and already sends many million dollars worth of vegetables and fruits to the North, and it is the greatest timber section. Cotton, rice, corn, potatoes, peanuts, and other staple products are raised in large quantities, and shipped away, largely by boat. The streams abound in fish, which form an important article of trade, and the entire country needs only better transportation facilities than it now possesses to make it blossom like the rose, and to attract to it a much larger population than it now supports. Even as it is it may be called a fairly populous section, with many important cities and towns. Among those that are either on the line of the new road, or easily reached from it, may be mentioned Norfolk and Wallington, Va.; Yardley, Gatesville, Coleraine, Windsor, Williamston, Pactolus, Greenville, Washington, New Berne, Johnson's Mills, Dover, Pink Hill, South Washington, Burgaw, Wilmington, Point Caswell, and Erasmie, N. C.; and Conway, Fraser, Georgetown, Santee, McClellandville, and Charleston, S. C. The cities and counties along the line of the railroad have a population of about 400,000, a sufficient number, with the large amount of freight they would supply, to give the road a good passenger trade, irrespective of through business. Norfolk, New Berne, Washington, Wilmington, Georgetown, and Charleston are especially large centers of native products, the trade in which is bound to increase largely with the increase of developments.

It almost goes without saying, that there are no grades of importance in the entire stretch of country from Norfolk to Charleston, and that the character of the land greatly favors easy and economical railroad construction. For long distances, almost no grading will be required, and the track can be laid with scarcely any cost beyond that of the rails, ties, and ballast. The abundance of timber insures a supply of the best ties at the least possible cost, and the freight charges upon rails, delivered at numerous points by water, will be low. The right of way has been given free, and township and borough subscriptions already made, and many subscriptions have been promised by communities and individuals anxious to secure the benefits which railroad facilities give.

The country from Charleston Harbor, north to Norfolk, for variety and extent of resources, for fertility of soil, and productive capacity, as regards both quality and quantity, for its cotton, varieties of fruit and vegetables, and for its healthful and agreeable climatic conditions, is a region with which no other seven thousand square miles of the territory of the United States is fairly comparable.

Millions of acres of the finest forest of all kinds of timber are tributary to the railroad, and are capable of supplying immediate and continuous trade. The trade on the several thousand miles of river navigation will seek rail transportation at every point at which the railroad will cross the several important streams. It is safely computed that the commerce of the several rivers which the new railroad crosses, near their outlet to the sea, is sufficient to insure its support.

Respectfully submitted,
JOHN RUSK, Chief Engineer
Approved,
CHAMBERS H. McKINBIE,
General Manager.

Washington's New Bank.

The Washington Gazette gives the following account of the organization of a new bank there:

At a meeting of the subscribers to the stock of the new bank to be started in the town of Washington, N. C. in January next, which was held on the 10th inst. the organization was perfected as follows: Mr. Seth Bridgman, of Washington, N. C. was elected President, and Mr. Thomas J. Latham, of Norfolk, Va., was elected Cashier, and the following gentlemen were elected as directors—Messrs. Seth Bridgman, W. P. Baughman, E. M. Short, John Havens, Jr., N. S. Fulford, Sr., Dr. W. A. Blount, all of Washington, N. C. and Mr. Lewis Latham, of Pantego, N. C. with two more to be supplied.

The Bank of Washington building was purchased, which was used for a bank of the same name before the war, and is one of the best buildings in the State, being fireproof and well located. The capital stock will be $50,000, with privilege to increase at any time, and it is quite sure that the stock will have to be put at $60,000 to enable all who want stock to get it. The bank will be supplied with all the funds necessary to supply all the demands of the people of the county and this section of the State, and at reasonable rates.

The bank will open for business on the 15th of the last of January. Mr. Bridgman is known to be one of the best business men of Washington, and Mr. Latham, has had years of experience in this place, New Berne and Norfolk.

Delinquency Announced.

Secretary Foster of the treasury department informed the House of Representatives on Friday last that the delinquency of the government for the current fiscal year ending June 30th next, are estimated at $14,636,520, of which $10,500,000 is on account of pensions.

This is the first time since the war that the expenses of the government have exceeded the receipts, and it is mainly due to the dependent pension law. This announcement of a deficit may have some effect in favor of an extra session. State Chronicle.
