agents of the Government. The Royalists are at work fomenting discord among the people.

A QUILL pen maker says that no pen will do as fine writing as the crow quill. It requires the assistance of a microscope to make a proper pen out of such a quill, but when made it is of wonderful delicacy. The microscopic writing told of in books of literary curiosities was all done with a crow quill. The steel pens of the present have a finer point can be given to a quill than has ever been put on a steel pen.

The New York Sun thinks it sees the signs of coming political reunion between the United States and Canada. "Hostile tariffs have done their perfect work in showing the people of both countries what injury may be inflicted by crippling and embarrassing trade and traffic along the natural lines in which they would have flourished if they had been free. The resolution of the people of the United States to begin to pull down the tariff walls is, indeed, an augury of continental union which would have shone forth in the stars if there had been no Sun."

Clerk—What size stockings do you want? Small boy—About No. 20, I guess. Clerk—Why, my little man, you can't wear a larger size than 4. Small boy—These are for Christmas.
The entertainment now in preparation by the pupils of the school of Misses Jones and Brown will take place next Friday evening. Tickets will be on sale during the day at Nunn & McSorley's.
The steamer Neuse will not hereafter blow her whistle at 4:30 p. m. The time for leaving will be as before at 5 o'clock and passengers will simply have to keep the time in mind and be on hand by the leaving hour.
Two mammoth and well formed ruts, bagas from the large truck farm of Messrs. Hackburn & Willett have been exhibited at our office. They pull the scales at ten pounds each and are indeed fine specimens of the products of our unsurpassed trucking lands.
Mr. Levi Cohen who has been spending his first year at the University as a medical student, and is now home for the holidays, is making a very good record for himself. He stood first in the class of eighteen, and was second on examination. The leader in the examination, received 94 and Mr. Cohen 83 1/2 out of a possible 95.
The Concord Standard tells about a cow that helped the family: "From Nov. 1, 1891, to Nov. 1892 this cow produced the milk that furnished a family of four and produced all the butter that was needed. The surplus was sold and amounted in pounds to 803, or in dollars (at being engaged at a stated price) to $60.66.
Miss Maud Saunders who was at one time assistant telegraph operator at this office is spending the Christmas holidays with Mrs. J. W. Stewart. Miss Saunders is now an operator in the Richmond, Va., office. She became a popular young lady in our community during her stay here and many of her friends there made will be glad to welcome her again.
We give a very interesting article on the fourth page this morning kindly furnished us by Major Graham Daves on "The Bible and Christmas in Early English." The quaint expression of the olden time English quotations are worthy of notice, and the information the article affords is worthy of being treasured in the memory. Not only is the article interesting but it is also specially appropriate at this season.
The Kingston Free Press mentions that the trucking industry is being developed quite rapidly around Kingston. There being several large truck farms and a number of smaller. It cites particularly that of Messrs. Harvey & Fields, of which Mr. Geo. Collins, formerly with Messrs. Hackburn & Willett of this city is superintendent. They will plant this year 125 or 150 acres in truck. They already have about 25 acres set out in potatoes and 12 in spinach.
Y. M. C. A. Notes.
The meeting at the Association hall Sunday afternoon will be public. Ladies are cordially invited to be present. A short address will be delivered by Rev. C. O. Vesell.

The All-Mouth Fish.
Last winter one of these queer fishes was exhibited at our Industrial Fair in New Berne. To those interested in the creature the following description by Dr. T. H. Bean, of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, D. C., will be acceptable. He writes:
"Following it down the coast from Maine to North Carolina, it is recognized by fishermen as the monk-fish, goose-fish, bellows-fish, mulligut, and almouth. Its range extends to the other side of the Atlantic, where it appears as the angler, frog-fish, fishing frog, mermaid, etc., etc.
The goose-fish begins like in a veil-like gelatinous mass of a purplish or brownish color, in which the numerous eggs are thoroughly protected from birds and spawn eating fish. The egg-envelope is about 1/16 in. width and 30 or 40 ft. long, and floats near the surface. It is a conspicuous object in the bays and sounds of New England in summer.
The young fish are occasionally taken at the surface, but usually descend to the deep waters, where their growth is rapid and the changes of shape remarkable. The adults attain to the length of 4 ft. and weigh as much as 40 lbs.
The goose-fish has little value in America as a food-fish, but it is prized by Italians and some people of Great Britain. It is an active destroyer of food fish, for whose capture it lies hidden on sandy bottoms, presumably with its curious rod-like cephalic spines bent forward, dangling their terminal tufts to attract the prey into its capacious mouth where it is securely held by long and sharp slender teeth, as irresistible as the teeth of a threshing machine.
The shape of the fish and its adornment with tags and fringes of skin around the head and along the lower edge of the body give it great advantage in securing the prey, especially since its upper surface is colored in imitation of rocks and sea weeds. Geese, loons and ducks have been taken from the stomach of the goose-fish, which sometimes seizes birds at the surface, and mackerel, sculpin, sea-trout, dog-fish, crabs, squids and lobsters have been observed in them by members of the U. S. Fish Commission."
These fish grow to great size, specimens 4 feet long and weighing 900 lbs. being not uncommon.

Western N. C. Apples.
Usually about Christmas time the mountain wagons strike Charlotte with loads of apples, but this year, the wagon train is a wonder. The streets today were fairly lined with the white capped wagons—prairie schooners, they call them out West. A news reporter counted twenty-six wagons on the streets and in the back lots, and all were loaded with apples. The choice apples sold at $1 per bushel. "Take 'em as they come," you could get them at 80c per bushel. The wagons came from distances ranging from 65 to 150 miles.—Char. News.

It is a pity that more of these mountain apples are not found in Eastern Carolina. They would be of great benefit to the two sections of the State.

Calling for a Road Congress.
Dr. H. B. Battle, Director of the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station is in favor of the assembly of a Road Congress to discuss the matter in all its details. It seems to us that the sooner the plan is consummated the better, the people are becoming tired of miserable high ways and strongly desirous of improvements and there is every probability that the assembling of such a congress would lead to important results. Not only would the advantages of good roads be called more squarely to the attention of the people than ever before but likewise ways of securing them.
A starting effort towards this road congress was the passage by the Chamber of Commerce of Raleigh, at its meeting on the evening of December 13th, the following resolution:
"Resolved, That the President of the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce appoint a committee of five of its members to memorialize the coming Legislature to call together, at the proper time and place, a Road Congress, for the purpose of considering matters in connection with improving the public roads of the State. The members of which Congress to be appointed by the Governor, Mayors of towns, Chairmen of County Commissions, and in such other ways as may be most desirable."
The following committee was appointed: H. B. Battle, Chairman, W. C. McMeekin, R. H. Lewis, Frank Stroumch, W. H. Batchelor.
All persons interested in the welfare of North Carolina will recognize, at once, the importance of some change from our present system of public roads and their preservation. If public-spirited men come together and discuss these questions, the importance would be more readily realized and some united action would be the result.

Those Oysters With False Teeth.
A dentist of Athens has at his office a curiosity in the way of oysters and artificial teeth. The teeth had evidently been lost by some one on board a ship or some one who had been drowned. The oysters had been formed around the teeth and the formation is perfect. A dredging boat near Morehead city found the shell with the teeth attached and the man who found them sold for $24. The Smithsonian institute is now seeking to purchase them and offers a good price.—Atlanta Journal.
Our people will remember the circumstance of the finding of the above mentioned oddity. One point that heightens the remarkability of the incident is that the find happened while the Southern Dental Association was in session at Morehead in the summer of 1891. And further, the dentist who made them was there, recognized his handiwork, and remembered making them and the circumstances under which they were lost. They had been under the water 25 years. Dr. G. K. Bagby of New Berne made them for a fish dealer and shipper in the summer of 1866 and they were lost in the fall of the same year while the owner was suffering from an attack of sickness on a boat. Consequently they had been under the water for 25 years before they were found attached to the oyster at so appropriate a time as when the Dental Association was in session.

WINTER IS HERE, And So Is Christmas!

For several Christmas's past we have tried to send to all our customers a small souvenir, but 1892 has been so very disastrous to us, and our losses have been so heavy, that we must beg to be excused this year.
We, however, assure them that we appreciate their patronage and hope they will continue with us.
We think we have given them as nice goods for the money as could have been bought anywhere in the city, and we certainly have tried hard to give them prompt delivery.
