The Courtesy Women Expect. The Latest Beauty Device—How the Arabs Do Their Courting.

"There are two occasions upon which I never will recognize a gentleman, not even my husband, said a well-known society woman the other day. "If he is sitting on a street corner to have his shoes blacked he might bow at me till the crack of doom, but I would not recognize him. Or if he was coming out of a saloon, "Did you ever have a man to greet you in the street without lifting his hat?" asked a friend. "Once or twice, but I never recognized that individual again. One of the best known clergymen in New Orleans makes a habit of not raising his hat to some ladies he knows. He would not feel flattered if he could hear the comments that are made on his boorish manners. "Perhaps he forgets," said a man who was ready to defend his sex. "That is no excuse. I would not expect an armless man to lift his hat to one in the street, but nothing less could excuse him. A gentleman has no business to forget at least the appearance of good breeding. A woman feels a man has treated her with almost familiar contempt who does not lift his hat when speaking to her, and if she has any spark at all she will never bow to him again."

Engaged Couples in France. After a girl has passed her eighteenth birthday she is thought to be one demoisele a marier, but it is considered bad taste for the parents themselves to make any effort to achieve a daughter's marriage. Young men, except in the country, where far greater liberty is allowed, are seldom asked to visit a family where there are grown up daughters and, unless under rare circumstances, are never asked to come to lunch or dinner. On no account would a French mother allow her daughter to speak to a man of known bad character or obviously unfit to become her husband. Marriage is an ever present possibility in France where young people are concerned, and as may be easily imagined, this has both its advantages and disadvantages. None of these rules apply to near relations. Abroad families see a great deal of one another and cousins hardly ever develop into husbands, probably because they are allowed to see so much of their young cousins.

The Latest Beauty Device. The Patent Office the other day granted a patent on a device worthy of the ancient Greeks. It is a system of finger tapering and joint-reducing bands. The idea is to make thimble shaped bands of thin aluminum in sets of various sizes to fit the fingers and thumbs, and, by wearing them at night, gradually produce the slender and tapering digits so much admired by the fashionable half of the world. The aluminum bands are provided with rings, which are crowded down on the outside, so as to compress the fingers and drive the blood back to any desired state of diminitiveness. The letters patent do not state whether the use of the new device is attended with pain or not. It is said these bands have been thoroughly tested by several of the best known ladies of fashion in Washington and New York, and they speak of them in the highest terms of praise. The leading merchant in cosmetics and toilet articles in Chicago is forming a stock company to buy the patent and become the finger taperer at the World's Fair. The patentee says his idea will go like wild fire, as have so many other inventions to produce beauty, and he thinks his patent is worth at least $50,000.

The Iboes on the Niger. Ivory anklets, often very heavy, are worn by the women of the Iboes, and are considered of great importance; but the anklets worn by others may be many pounds in weight, and some of them wear huge brass anklets, which are fixed on the ankles, and are never removed. The men wear a single strip of cotton cloth, but those who come much in contact with the Europeans are now learning to wear trousers. Their weapons are flintlocks, bows and spears, the latter both for hurling and thrusting. The huts are built of mud and matting, and quadrangular in shape. The center is an open courtyard, at one end of which is the apartment of the head of the house, while the wives and family are accommodated in other rooms on the right and left of the courtyard. There is no furniture or ornament, and but a few household utensils and weapons. The Iboes have a barbarous custom of destroying twins. A woman who gives birth to twins is regarded as something accursed, and the children are taken from her and thrown into the bush to perish, while she is proclaimed an outcast and driven from the village. To hold up two fingers to a woman is to offer her the greatest insult possible. They are very superstitious; they worship idols of wood, mud and iron, which are regarded as protectors to be propitiated at various periods, and slavery exists among all the tribes. All the Year Round.

A PRETTY SURPRISE.

A beautifully illustrated and charmingly bound edition of Longfellow's "Evangeline," the most popular long poem ever published by an American author, and one of the most famous poems in the language, recently published, is a pretty surprise for book-lovers. It is in large type, numerous and excellent illustrations, very fine and heavy paper, gilt edges, remarkably handsome cloth binding, combining in delicate colors, blue and white and silver and gold. No illustrated edition has ever before been published at less than $1.50, and that is about what you might "guess" the price of this to be, but it isn't—witness our offer below. Every home in the land ought to have a copy of this Evangeline, so charmingly beautiful, as a poem, as a collection of artistic illustrations, and as a product of the book-making art.

By special arrangements with the publisher we are able to offer this book to the subscribers to this paper as follows:
