VICE PRESIDENT STEVENSON will be invited to deliver the address at the Guilford Battle Ground celebration, July 4th.

IN appointing Consuls to Central and South American ports regard will be had to the business qualifications of the applicants.

Alabama cotton men have increased the acreage 20 per cent. The natural result is to reduce the price much more than 20 per cent.

THE first diplomatic change under the present administration will be at London, where Consul New will be succeeded by Gen Collins.

It is said that Postmaster-General Blaisell has already received over 5,000 resignations of postmasters and many of them first class. This is doing very well.

REPUBLICAN collectors of one-tenths, revenue officers, etc., are taking the President at his word as to holding on to the end of their terms, and only two have sent in their resignations.

THE Star says: "A New York man who was sued for a debt of $2,000, pleaded his inability to pay it as his income was only $40,000 and it took that much to support him and his family. Some men do find it mighty hard to scuffle along in this world."

SECRETARY HERBERT'S short arm can sympathize with Secretary Greenham's short leg. It was a Federal bullet in the Wilderness that shortened the former, and a Confederate bullet near Atlanta that shortened the latter.

A NEW Missouri statute makes it a penitentiary offense for a husband to desert his wife until they have lived together for at least ten years.

TEN years ago the South's agricultural, manufacturing and mining products aggregated in value about $1,200,000,000; now they are about $2,100,000,000.

THERE is one man in this country who takes no stock in any era of good feeling. The late candidate for Vice President is unexcused and irreconcilable. He has hardly brought himself even to believe that the campaign is over, and is still wondering what hit him. It was all so sudden and unexpected that he cannot understand it, and he pours out his bewildered plaints in the New York Tribune in a way that would be pathetic if it were not so indecent, or might be humorous if it were not so contemptible.—Philadelphia Times.

There was a very good meeting at Hancock street M. E. church last night. The lower portion of the house was filled and a part of the gallery. There was one conversion.

A copy of the charter for the New Berne Steam Ferry arrived last night. It is very liberal in its provisions. It is intended to push the work and get the ferry in operation at an early date.

The Morganton Herald says that $70,000 appropriated for the completion of the deaf and dumb school there, with the amounts already expended will make the buildings cost $100,000. The grounds embrace over 200 acres. Work on the main building will soon be resumed. The basement and first story walls were built last year.

Mr. J. R. Hatch, with Mr. E. S. Street has returned from North river marsh near Beaufort, with a lot of ponies. These little, tough, wiry animals that live in a wild state on the coast do not look very pretty at first, but with the least care they soon become as trim and gentle as a pet, and often command good prices. For light service they prove quite valuable.

Coming and Going. Miss Lina Pickett and Miss Lovey Dill of Morehead City are visiting relatives in the city.

Mr. G. A. Atkinson left for the western part of the State to make arrangements for moving.

Fences Burned on Three Plantations. A serious fire occurred at Croatan yesterday. Fire got away from a farmer who was burning off a portion of a field and destroyed several miles of fencing—about all that there was on the plantations of Messrs. Gray and Brice, A. DuFour and H. A. Brown, and it was with difficulty that the houses on the plantations were saved. The fire broke out in the morning and the whole neighborhood turned out and worked hard, yet it was late in the day before it could be subdued. The loss is considered to be about four or five hundred dollars.

Harris Taylor. We see that Mr. Harris Taylor, of Mobile, is a candidate for the position of Minister to Spain. He will have the good wishes of North Carolinians for success in that to which he aspires.

Mr. Taylor is a native of New Berne and resided here a short time since the war. He is an own cousin of Mr. M. DeW. Stevenson, of this city and read law with our late townsman, Maj. John Hughes.

Mr. Taylor is now a distinguished constitutional historian and lawyer of Mobile. His work on the constitutions of Great Britain and the United States, the first volume of which has been published, and the second of which he is preparing, is pronounced by the English to be the ablest work on the subject that has ever been written.

USE DUFFY'S COUGH KILLER.—cures Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, etc. Excellent in all affections of the Throat and Lungs, inducing healthy action of the mucous membrane, soothing and healing the same. Is an admirable and successful remedy. Price, 10c, 25c and 50c, per bottle.

Suspension of the Current.

To some of our citizens it was probably a surprise to learn of the suspension of the Daily Current, of this city, which began its existence the first of the present year. In its valedictory, it announces a failure to meet expenses as a cause of the suspension.

Three dollars a year, the price of the Current, is too small a price for any daily paper, and it takes years and considerable capital to get them firmly established in the confidence of the people.

There was no lack of business push on the part of the proprietors of the Current to keep it going. They worked long and late. Three and four o'clock after midnight often caught them toiling to please their readers, while at the same time others were calmly sleeping their hours of rest.

The public in general scarcely ever realize the hard work and expense attached to a daily paper, and if it does not something like approach those in larger cities, regardless of surrounding circumstances, the paper is almost sure to meet with unfavorable criticism. This adverse criticism of course applies principally to that class of readers who would have the paper discuss matters as they see them, and the other class are those whose principal occupation is to always be on the look out for something to complain about.

We would like to make the JOURNAL equal in every respect to any paper in the State, and we could do it if the patronage were sufficient to meet the necessary additional expenses. Our readers would like to have the JOURNAL such a paper as we have spoken of, and sometimes say to us, "make the paper better by taking the dispatches, etc., so that the very latest news from all parts of the world can be obtained in it and the needed additional patronage will come."

Here is a common desire on the part of ourselves and friends, but there are different views as to obtaining the accomplishment of that desire. One side says "give better patronage, and we will give better paper; the other side says, "give a better paper and we will give better patronage." How can these holding two views looking toward the same object, be brought to see the matter in the same way, so that the desired end may be attained? We think the easiest way is by a little retrospective glance, which we think is calculated to prove, that our position of simply giving what the income of the paper justifies is the only tenable one.

The JOURNAL when it first came to the city took the dispatches and was in all lines a worthy representative of New Berne and Eastern North Carolina—it was so acknowledged and the people were proud of it, and point to its excellence even to the present. But the fact remains that though the people were so well satisfied with the paper, they did not give it an income as large as the outlay it was making, and the experiment caused it to sink over a thousand dollars and the dispatches had to be dropped and the paper run—not according to the price, but according to the cash it raised, and yet we have always desired to take the dispatches and there are other improvements we would like to make if we could see our way clear to do so, but in the face of past experience, we do not feel like depending on the increase of patronage paying the additional expenses that would per-force be incurred, so we can but follow the policy we have been pursuing of not giving a better paper than its income will pay for and still giving as good as can be made with the money received.

With two-third of population of New Berne and Craven county colored, as large a number of subscribers cannot be obtained as might at first be supposed. Also our mail facilities are inadequate for easily reaching the more rural districts. It is not said in any spirit of boastfulness, but the JOURNAL has battled longer and more faithfully for New Berne and the interests of this section than any of its predecessors, and it has always been its highest aim to be of the greatest benefit to the greatest number of people and never yielding to the influence of factions or rings. Not only was it a matter of choice in our keeping free of these encumbrances, but it has paid us in the long run. A few enemies were made, but we retained their respect.

JAMES CITY.

A Conference Between Owner and Tenants—Coming to an Agreement.

We are glad to say that the prospect for a quiet and satisfactory adjustment of the James City land trouble seems to be at hand.

A large number of the residents of the place met Mr. Bryan by appointment at 11 o'clock at the court house yesterday. They presented a petition asking the rights of their houses, and a chance to buy the lots they occupy, or a reasonable term of lease of the land.

After a two hours conference which we understand was quite satisfactory, the meeting adjourned.

We learn that those whose names are on the petition are determined to make terms with Mr. Bryan, let others do as they may. Written terms will be presented to a delegation which will meet Mr. Bryan today to see what terms he will submit. Tomorrow we expect to publish the petition with a full list of all who signed and whatever agreement reached today. The terms that will be submitted are pretty much such as we have previously published.

Thus the danger of the inhabitants making such opposition to the requirements of the court as to lead to a difficulty which would be disastrous to them and fatal to their cause seems almost to have vanished. We hope today will make it entirely so. Mutual concession is to be commended.

Collegiate Institute Literary Classes.

Dropping in without notice at the Collegiate Institute for a short visit we had a good demonstration of the admirable work that Prof. Adams and his excellent corps of teachers are doing.

We entered Prof. Adams room just as his two literary classes, the advanced class in English literature and the Lockwood literary class were assembling. He put the classes to a practical test of the extent to which they were able to put the instruction they had received into practice, by reading narrative poems, each of which would take up about two pages of an ordinary school text, book—one poem for one class the other for the other class.

Very few indeed of the class members had ever seen or heard the poems read before. After reading them he gave the pupils about fifteen minutes in which to reproduce the narrative in prose.

The reading of the papers by the writers which followed next, showed that with almost entire unanimity they had grasped all salient points, missed very few of the minor ones, and their quickly prepared renditions of the facts, in new wordings were in the main gracefully written with well constructed sentences. Both classes acquitted themselves well. The other departments, likewise showed the good effects of the excellent training at the Institute.
