THE REMEDY. How and When to Work Roads to Keep Them Good.

New Berne, N. C., March, 12, 1893 Editor Journal .- I have noticed eral long articles recently upon the bad condition of our country roads, but nothing said in regard as to how to prevent the occurrence of such roads every spring. It reminds me of an anac dote of a farmer who had a bad root upon his barn, he said when it rained he could not roof the barn, and when the weather was clear the barn did not need a good roof. And so it is with our country roads-right now is no time to make them good, nor even to repair them.

The proper time to get our country roads in order, is July, August and September or any other month through the summer when the roads are dry. There is no section more favored than Eastern North Carolina to have good roads, but the trouble is, our roads are not put in good condition; for instance take the road to Trenton, which is not even in condition for people to travel on foot, but let the people along this road go to work through the coming summer with a good road plow and double yokes that the road has a high elevation, and cut the ditches out on both sides of the road, and keep them thereafter clean, so
