The agitation of pension reform, says the Baltimore News, is beginning to bear fruit, and the first step has been taken towards purging the pension lists of the names fraudulently enrolled thereon. The Acting Pension Commissioner has within the last few days sent out a circular to all special examiners from which the following is taken: fraudulently enrolled thereon. The from which the following is taken; Berne Drug Co.

"The numerous complaints re ceived by the Pension Bureau lead to the belief that the names of many persons not entitled have been placed upon the pension rolls Mrs. Winslow's Scotting Syrup has through fraud and deceit. There can be no objection to a well regulated system of pensions.

How is this? Who is the writer of the article in the Cancasian? Is it possible that it can be Mr. Butler? We are accustomed to regard him as a partisan and an extremest but we are not prepared to consider him a deliberate calumniator of his state or of the section of which it is a component part. It is strange that a man who aspires to leadership can write in such terms of his people. Mr. Butler is at the head of the Farmers Alliance in North Carolina, and the farmers are in a majority in the State. Are they so fallen as to be dominated by political bosses who care nothing for them? Mr. Butler is beside himself. It is a foul bird that litters its nest, and he is a base son who slanders his mother.
