The Balloon Ascension.
The oft deferred balloon ascension took place yesterday afternoon, though the shower caused a postponement from 8 to 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Emily Fulford, of the city, made the ascension—the first in her life. She had not even seen a parachute leap made before.

It was a very calm afternoon, and the balloon as it started went almost directly upward. It had risen to a great height before it even got past the bounds of the Fair grounds.

When a sufficient height was reached a pistol was fired, the signal for the parachute to be cut loose if it suited the occupant, but the balloon and parachute kept right on. All eyes were riveted on it. A second shot was fired, the signal for it to be cut loose anyway—still no result.

At last as the balloon was beginning to descend a third shot was fired, which, if no attention was paid to it would mean that there was some trouble. The balloon and parachute were by this time beginning to descend together, and directly after the shot was fired the parachute began to open and just at this time it was severed from the balloon and without any sudden drop at all came on down to the ground gradually. It fell in Mr. Wm. Dunn's field between the buildings and the macadamized road.

The delay in coming down was not due to any failure of the machinery to work. Mrs. Fulford kept on because she was over houses and she preferred to wait until the field was reached.

Without exception every one who witnessed it that we have heard speak of it regard it as the prettiest ascension they ever witnessed.

Killed by Mistake in Medicine.
From the Charlotte News we take the following deplorable item:
"The body of the Rev. T. W. S. Parker, whose death at Mt. Airy was noted in yesterday's News, reached the city last night. Mr. Parker's death was due to a mistake. He had sent his doctor for five grains of quinine, but at the time the messenger called the doctor was absent. His son was in the office and volunteered to fill the prescription. It appears that he measured out the required quantity of morphine instead of quinine. This Mr. Parker took and when his condition was discovered he was beyond medical aid."

Sea Spray Down Miles From the Ocean.
The Wilmington Messenger gives it as a positive and unmistakable fact that the salt spray driven from the ocean by the hurricane had killed leaves on the trees all the way to the city. The fact that from Wrightsville to Wilmington the leaves were withered only on the side of the tree from which the spray came shows that it was salt spray that did it. A half mile from Wrightsville the leaves were covered with salt crystals and salt crystals formed on window panes in Wilmington and also on eye glasses.

On the sound during the heavy blow on the 28th ult. salt crystals fell like sleet and were at first mistaken for it.

The carrying of the ocean spray by the wind so many miles as narrated by the Messenger, is truly a remarkable occurrence but some of New Berne's most intelligent and well informed citizens not only give ready credence to the statements but tell of similar experiences that have come to their notice in the past.

Mr. J. M. Gerrill, of Havelock, which is still further removed from the ocean brings information of the killing of the leaves there by the last storm but only on the one side of the tree.

During the memorable storm of the 18th of August, 1879, the one in which the old Atlantic Hotel at Beaufort was blown and washed away, the spray blew to Hollywood, a distance of four miles. Mr. Henry Hall tells us that after the storm he went down to Morehead and that when he reached Newport he saw leaves killed on the trees and on inquiring he was informed that the salt spray did it. Newport we judge to be about 11 miles from the ocean.

Rev. Edward Bull tells of spray having been blown from Long Island sound once by a September gale four or five miles across to his father's house.

The same effect may be seen to a very limited extent in New Berne. A few leaves of certain trees—figs, Lombardy poplars, etc., were killed on the storm side. We are so far removed from the ocean that it is hardly possible that anything but the wind had sought to do with this, and it no doubt had something to do with the killing of the leaves elsewhere but, the larger number killed as the ocean was approached and the formation of the salt crystals as far up as Wilmington is enough to establish the fact that the salt spray was a prime agency in their destruction on trees within several miles of the coast.

The Durham Sun tells of an incident, which if there was any way of establishing with certainty, that the shell came from the ocean as there is in the case of the spray would beat the former happening "out of sight." We copy the Sun's item:

"Wade Jenkins, son of W. H. Jenkins, who resides on Holloway street, has a souvenir of Monday's storm which he prizes very highly. He says he was walking along Rameau street near Dr. L. B. Henderson's residence when he came to a look up and saw something falling. He picked it up and found that it was a sea shell all covered with slime and dust. There have been several discussions about it, some claiming that it was blown from the coast, while others think it was taken up at a much nearer point. It had every indication of having just been picked up on the beach."

Opening of the Free School.
The Free School opened yesterday in the New Berne Academy building with the following corps of teachers: Miss R. C. Brookfield, Mrs. Mary Williams and Misses Annie Chadwick, Emily Ferrebee and Jennie Battle. The attendance was, 86, a slight increase over the first day of last year, but not a thing of what it should be. There are very many more than these in the city between the ages of six and twenty-one years who are not able to pay for schooling and here is a good school they could attend and yet they do not go. Why is this?

We may not be able to give all the reasons, possibly we may not fathom the main one but we believe we have an understanding of a few.

A principal cause with some parents and guardians no doubt is that they are not able to make their children as presentable as they would like. Pride keeps them away.

Some, no doubt, keep the children back because they want to get the work they can do, not appreciating an education for their offspring sufficiently to induce them to make the necessary sacrifices to enable them to obtain it.

Others still are no doubt held back from sheer indifference.

None of these things are valid excuses. The difficulty must be a strong one that will justify a parent or guardian in withholding from a child the measure of education that will fit him to become a good and useful citizen and contend with advantage in the battle of life.

Some of our people need awakening on the subject of education.

Monday after next the Collegiate Institute will open. Several excellent private schools in the city will also be running and we hope to see them well filled. There ought to be scarcely a child left in the city who will not be attending one of them, and the Collegiate Institute, especially ought to receive a large number not simply from the city but from the country outside and from our surrounding counties.

Money is the best slave and the worst master.

Stay in North Carolina.
Many of the farmers in North Carolina labor under the impression that they have a pretty rough time and that North Carolina is a good State to emigrate from.

A good many have accordingly emigrated and there are very few States West or Southwest where North Carolinians and their descendants are not found, while in some they form a very considerable portion of the population.

In some respects North Carolina may not be the equal of some of these Western and Southwestern States, but take it all in all she is the equal of any of them and superior of many.

They may have larger cities, numerous railways, fertile and cheap lands, and wide ranges for pasturages of cattle and sheep, but they have blizzards, cyclones, floods, droughts and various other visitations that we know little of in North Carolina, where if they come at all it is only at rare intervals and in mild form compared with the Western and Southwestern articles.

On the average our lands may not be as rich but the same industry and push that is necessary to success in any of these States would make the North Carolina farmer comfortable or rich, in less time than he, with the same means, could become so out there. These are rock-bottom truths.—Washington Star.

Exciting Times at Baptizing.
Up on Stony Fork last Sunday while the ministers were engaged in the solemn ceremony of immersing several persons, one lady who got too near the edge of the creek fell in where it was pretty deep and got wet all over. This so excited, one of the candidates for baptism, a young lady, that she fainted. Her best fellow was there, and he took a notion that his girl was about to die. The doctor was on the other side of the creek. Not waiting to go down by the foot-log, the young man plunged into the creek up to his waist, waded over and carried the doctor back on his shoulders. The girl soon revived and a pleasant smile ran over the young man's face, although his "best Sunday clothes," like McGinty's, were not very dry.—Wilkesboro Chronicle.

The Best Equipped College.
Two gentlemen who had made a tour of the South recently stopped in Greensboro and visited the Greensboro Female College. They expressed themselves as delighted with it and said they had visited twelve female colleges in the South and that the Greensboro Female College was decidedly the best equipped college they had visited.

This speaks well of our female college and the best of it is that it is worthy of such a compliment.—Greensboro Record.

$2,000 in a Jug.
The tight times bring out many odd things. A banker who had an acquaintance in Alamance county went to him to borrow money. The collateral offered were of such a character that the countryman couldn't resist, and taking the banker to the attic, rolled out an old jug. The handle was broken off, and there was a corn cob stopper in its mouth. Blow a pile of dried apples, the countryman brought out $2,000 in bills and coin, that he had hoarded up for years past. He got 18 per cent, for the loan.—Charlotte News.

Sensitive People.
It is well known that many people are so sensitive that they are unwilling to make known their ailments or infirmities, and that this fact alone prevents them from receiving proper medical treatment.

Dr. Humphreys' Series of Specifics being designated by numbers, entirely overcomes this difficulty. There are thirty-five (35) numbers, covering the range of every disease that it is proper for a layman to treat, and you have but to ask your Druggist for the needed numbers, he it Specific No. 7, Specific No. 10, Specific No. 20, etc., and he will at once hand you the proper Specific with full directions for use, without question or without intimation of the disease for which it is a cure.

Apply to your Druggist, or send to the Humphreys' Company, New York, for a copy of their manual.

The genuine and the Sham.
Every good thing has its hosts of imitators; every genuine article its counterfeiters. The imitators always choose the most valuable and popular article to counterfeit so that when they claim their sham to be equal, or as good, or the same as "So-and-So's," the public may depend upon it that "So-and-So's" article is the best of the kind. The sham proves the genuine merit of the thing; it copies and never has this been better illustrated than by the imitations of Alcock's Porous Plasters.

Alcock's Porous Plaster is the standard of excellence the world over, and its imitators in their cry that theirs is "as good as Alcock's" are only emphasizing this fact and admitting "Alcock's" to be the some of perfection, which it is their highest ambition to imitate. The difference between the genuine and these imitations, which copy only general appearance, is as wide as that between copper and gold.

The only safe way for purchasers is to always insist upon having Alcock's Porous Plasters. They are the only perfect plasters ever produced.
