Good Fall Irish Potatoes.

The present Irish potato crop in this vicinity is the best fall crop of these tubers ever grown here—of course the fall crop is not expected to near equal the spring crop, but there have been some good yields. Mr. Henry Taylor dug four hundred bushels off of less than nine and a half acres which is better than we have heard of any one outside of Craven doing on the same size piece of ground.

Just on a small patch Mr. B. F. Tolson did better than we have thus far heard of any one else doing. He dug thirty three barrels of large, very fine potatoes from a half acre. At the rate of sixty-six bushels to the acre is a very good yield indeed in the fall.

The Durham Sun says: "Rev. and Mrs. C. C. Newton, daughter and son-in-law, and Master Roy, who have been visiting friends and relatives in North Carolina since their return from Africa, having spent much of their time in Durham, left this morning, via the D. & N. for Richmond. Rev. and Mrs. Newton and Miss Berta will sail next on their return to Africa, to resume their work in the missionary field."

In the correspondence of the N. C. Presbyterian news is given from the First Presbyterian church of Savannah, of which Rev. L. C. Vass, D. D., formerly of New Berne, is pastor. Since Dr. Vass' pastorate began in November 1890, 119 members have been added to the church, 42 have been added since July 1892. During the past year the increase in collections was $4,367. God's blessing seems to rest upon the church in every way.

The Charlotte Observer says that it is a little curious that just now the Populist in this State put in a good deal of their time asking Democrats "if they can do Mr. Cleveland." One of them was asked why he made this inquiry, and his reply was that if so there was going to be a split in the party. He talked about this as if he felt sure. He spoke then of Populist chances in North Carolina and hinted frantically vaguely that big things might be done here by his party. He was asked why there was such a flat failure in Virginia, after a Populist editor in this State had declared that such great work was being done in the Old Dominion. He then said that this editor some time ago had said confidentially that the Populist stood on a sort of show in Virginia. The Populist will in this State seek to draw into their ranks every Democrat who utters even a whisper of dissimulation.

ANOTHER VETERAN PASSES AWAY

Capt. John O'Connor, the Noted Scout Dies at His Home in Norfolk.

Captain John O. Connor, a very daring Irish-Confederate scout who rendered the Southern cause strong service, died in Norfolk on the 15th inst. A number of Capt. Connor's exploits were performed near New Berne and this city was his home for two or three years after the war, then he removed to Norfolk. Our older citizens, especially those who served in the war, know and tell a number of interesting reminiscences of this brave and ingenious but modest man. Space forbids our going into them however and we content ourselves with furnishing the following notice from the Norfolk Ledger:

John O'Connor, was a man who seldom spoke of his own achievements, but those best acquainted with him knew him to be one of the most daring scouts that served the Confederacy during the war between the States. His field of operations was in Eastern North Carolina, under the command of General Robert Ransom, and so valuable were his services to the Southern cause that a large reward was offered by the Federal authorities for his capture. On one occasion, with seven men, he surprised and captured, near New Berne, an entire company of Federal troops and carried his prisoners across the lines to Goldsboro. He was a man of great bravery and determination. In his death which occurred at his residence, No. 99 Yarmouth street, this morning, Norfolk loses a highly esteemed citizen, and one who had been among her most successful residents. He was 57 years of age, and leaves a widow and several children.

One would not suppose, from his unpretentious mien, that he was a man of remarkable history, but the story of his life is one of interest. As a Confederate soldier he was distinguished for intrepidity and great usefulness. Commissioned by the Confederate Government as a captain of scouts, with a roving commission, his operations were generally conducted within the lines of the enemy. He kept the commanding general well informed of the strength and movements of the opposing army, and with his small band of followers led upon Federal raiding, foraging and mauling parties from ambush, with terrible consequences to them.

In moving upon the enemy's rear the Confederate commanders often used Captain O'Connor as a guide and with implicit confidence followed him through forest and swamp. He was astute, reticent, imperturbable and knew not fear. His operations were mainly carried on in Eastern North Carolina and near Norfolk where the Federals occupied this territory.

The danger of his duties may be illustrated by a single incident: When one night he was in the enemy's camp, counting their tents and estimating their force, he was suddenly arrested by a Federal soldier, but by prompt action he disarmed his captor, compelled him, at the muzzle of his pistol, to guide him safely back to his own lines, and then made the Federal a prisoner.

Captain O'Connor was held in such terror by the opposing army in New Berne that his picture was published in a Northern illustrated paper, and a reward offered for his head. But that head only fell upon his peaceful pillow, surrounded by his family, and in his last moments he met the grim monster without fear or trembling.

As a citizen of Norfolk he became well known as an active, intelligent and faithful member of the Common Council from the Second Ward. He was a consistent Democrat, always a conservative, public spirited and the steady foe of corruption and improvidence. He was always on the side of good government, municipal, State and national, and for no selfish purpose.

Coming and Going.

Rev. C. G. Vardell went up to Durham yesterday in behalf of special work placed in his hands by the Presbytery.

Rev. F. W. Farries left for Clinton to remain until week after next serving the Presbyterian church at that place which at present is without a pastor.

Mrs. G. W. Wallace has returned from visiting at Kinston, LaGrange and Goldsboro.

Miss Mattie Koonce returned from a visit to friends at Pollocksville.

Miss Jimmie Sabiston of Stella, arrived to visit Mrs. T. C. Daniels.

Mrs. L. H. Cutler, who has been visiting Mrs. J. H. Bell, of Washington City, returned home.

Miss Mabel Chadwick who has been visiting Miss Mary L. Hendon, left for her home.

Good Roads Must Come.

The town of Durham, says the Sun, is going right ahead in the making of good roads. It goes on further to say that the same interest should be awakened in the county. They are an essential condition of prosperity. Roads that will be as good in winter as in summer. Roads that will not melt in the rain. Roads that will not shame us in the presence of visitors. Roads that will be a luxury for hauling and pleasure driving. Roads that will save temper, time, toil, team. Roads that will show that we are abreast of the times.

All that has been said by the Sun is equally fitting to our section and the Journal will continue to agitate for better roads until some move has been made in that direction.

Our city has made wonderful improvements in her streets and sidewalks, but Craven county has done but little. The Washington Gazette tells of a man trying to sell a hog to the butchers of that town which according to his own admission was sick when killed and which bore evidence of having died with cholera. The Gazette urges that the man be apprehended and severely punished for trying to palm off diseased meat. It ought to be done.

Successful Revivals.

The Concord Times gives the following religious items:

"Rev. M. A. Smith closed a most remarkable series of religious meetings at Forest Hill church. The meeting continued for two weeks, and resulted in about 150 conversions, and a large number joining the church. Mr. Smith was assisted by Rev. Z. Paris, of Norwood, and Mr. Paris was presented with a purse of $50 by the Forest Hill people for his faithful and efficient labor."

The Burlington News has the following to say of a revival there:

"The revival meeting at the Methodist church was carried on by Rev. J. W. Jones till Friday night, when it closed, with services conducted by Dr. E. A. Yates. The results have been wonderful. In all there were near a hundred conversions and reclamations, and the church greatly revived. Eighteen joined the Methodist Church Sunday and many will join other churches. Mr. Jones' preaching has been of an excellent kind, pointed and to the mark, and he will be remembered kindly by all as an earnest worker and a consecrated man. It is the opinion of many that this has been the most powerful meeting held in many years and the good done will go on down the ages."
