A base ball game at the Fair ground is being worked up to take place Thanksgiving day for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. It will be by business men of the city—married ones vs. single ones.

The grand body of Masons will meet at Wilmington, January 3, and will take part in the celebration of the centennial of St. John's Lodge. For the first time an annual communication is held elsewhere than in Raleigh.

The case in admiralty, Thos. E. Parkin vs. Steamer Pearl May was heard before Judge Seymour in chambers, yesterday and the steamer was ordered to be sold. The date of sale is expected to be fixed today.

Our children were surprised yesterday morning by a light fall of snow, lasting a few minutes. In Wilmington there was no sign of it. The sun shone brightly. It also cleared off here in a very short time.

An advertisement with cash enclosed to pay for it has been received from Beaufort but as the name of the party was omitted from the advertisement we cannot publish it so as to benefit him or write to him until we hear from him again.

The United States Coast and Geodetic Survey gives notice to mariners that the black can buoy No. 5 at Cape Fear entrance marking Bald Head Shoal, has been moved to the southward and is now shown on the charts on the bearings: Cape Fear Light E. 3/4 S., Oak Island Range (front), NW. 1/4 N. This effects charts 424, 449, and 460.

The Beaufort Herald, of this week has two good items on the fishing. One is that Mr. John Lewis sold to fish dealers at Morehead five thousand trout, netting $180 for one night's fishing. The other item is the statement of the largest haul of fish by one man. It was made by Mr. Ichabod Mason, and a large sharpie load was secured, estimated in number at 360,000.

The North Carolina M. E. Conference meets at Wilmington, December 6. Bishop Duggan will preside. This conference will be composed of 170 preachers (and 36 laymen). Bishop Duggan will also preside at the Western North Carolina M. E. Conference, which meets at Asheville next Wednesday. The latter has 160 preachers and 40 laymen.

Mr. Chas. Hallock ("Sam Stocum") came to on Friday morning from Norfolk, per steamer New Bern, as a guest of Capt. Tom Southgate and was in the city a few hours attending to business. Mr. Hallock is about to undertake a six months' campaign in the interest of the Eastern counties and hopes to attract some capital to various localities which he has in view in the prospect of certain industries which are new to the State. What these are will appear in due course as they develop.

"Birth-day Fete" Last Night.

Two rooms of the Collegiate Institute were given up last night to the King's Daughters for their "birth-day fete." Each of the rooms was well decorated with fine evergreens and flags, and beautiful floral displays enhanced the attractions of the tables, and besides the usual lighting, Chinese lanterns at every window in each room, in the halls and at the front of the Institute added to the gayety of the scene.

One room was filled with numerous small tables as at an ordinary festival; the other held three large tables—a white one, a blue one, and a pink one, all fixed off so beautifully that it would have been hard to say which one showed to best advantage and each was presided over by young ladies, immeasurably lovelier than the tables and their contents. Misses May Hendren, Etta Nunn and Lena Dail were at the first; Misses Stella Roberts, Sadie Whitford and Willie Ferree at the second, and Misses Emma Wolfenden and Eulalie Willis at the third. A vote was taken as to the most beautiful table. The blue led with 105 votes; the white was only 111 votes behind. An elegant maltese floral cross was voted Miss Emma Wolfenden as the most popular young lady.

The visitors entered this room first. At the door each one was provided with a small ornamental sack—white, blue or pink, with the expectation of his putting in as many pennies in it as he was years old, and leaving it at the table indicated by its color and were at liberty to partake without charge of the light refreshments there served at the tables—in the other room, ices, cake, etc., were sold. The evening passed off satisfactory both in the way of pleasure and financial increase to the treasury of the society.

Visitors From the Great Northwest.

Mr. A. L. Mohler, of St. Paul, Minnesota, who spent a portion of last winter in this city is to arrive again at an early date with his family and remain through the winter. Mr. Mohler was, at the time of his previous visit, General Manager of the Great Northern railroad, and has recently been promoted to its vice Presidency. The family will make the trip on their private car, and other people of note from the great northwestern States are expected with them.

The visit of Mr. Mohler and his friends we think is likely to prove the commencement of the turning of the attention of wealthy and very influential men of the Northwestern States to the glorious opportunities of investment and development that abound in Eastern North Carolina.

Will Go In Today.

Hon. F. M. Simmons goes in the office of Collector of Internal Revenue of the Eastern District of North Carolina today, for which purpose he went up to Raleigh a few days ago. His chief clerk, Mr. E. B. Roberts, also expects to go up today to enter upon his duties.

Both these gentlemen will be an honor to the position. Beyond question the management of the Internal Revenue business in this district has fallen into good hands.

Coming and Going.

Mrs. C. Stephens and Mrs. Dr. Hoyt, from Onslow who have been visiting at Mrs. E. H. Barnum's for a few days, will leave for home by the W. N. & N. R. R. this morning.

Mr. W. C. G. Boyd returned last night from Washington City.

Barnum's Opinion of Advertising.

Barnum, the great showman, who spent millions in advertising and was as competent to speak intelligently and give advice on the subject as any man, said this: "If you have ten dollars to invest in business where you are dependent upon public patronage, spend one for the article and the other nine for advertising. I can out-talk any man on earth but a printer. The man who can stick type and talk next morning to thousands of people while I am talking to one, is the only man I'm afraid of. I want him for my friend." The old man knew a thing or two about the value and importance of newspaper advertising.—EX.

LONGFELLOW.

His songs were not of the battle wild,
Nor were they grand,
But they were such as a little child
Might understand.
He did not tell of the high emprise
Of heroes old—
But he loved the woods and the autumn
skies
And the sunset's gold.
And his heart was tender to all mankind;
He heard each call
For help of the poor, the halt, and blind
For he loved them all.
With the meaning, the strength, and end of life
His poems rang;
And he loved those knowing its woe and strife—
And to such he sang.

Raise Pork.
It is very generally believed that pork will be high for a year or so at least, and our farmers should raise plenty of it. The farmer who raises cotton and buys meat will get left every time.—Kinston Free Press.

$100 REWARD.
I will pay the above reward for the recovery of the money (about $1,300) stolen from my bar on the night of the 22nd inst, or the same reward for the arrest and conviction of the burglar.

A MARVELLOUS PERFORMANCE.

Every One Satisfied of the Genius of the Things Santanelli Does.

The time is not far in the past when mesmeric or hypnotic influences were thought of by the generality of people to be pretensions, and persons claiming such powers were ranked as impostors. The medical profession even were inclined to scout the idea of such things. That day is passed; that there are individuals who have in themselves the power of bringing under their control through the mind those who are willing to be subjected to such influences is now a generally accepted fact, but one which is not understood even by those possessing the power in the greatest degree, and who have developed it and studied the science of it to the utmost of their ability.

They know they can produce the remarkable effects bordering on the supernatural, and they know how to remove them and that is pretty near as much they can say on the matter.

Prof. Santanelli, the hypnotist who gave an exhibition of the kind at the New Bern theatre last night soon satisfied his audience that he truly possessed this mysterious power.

The performance was one of irresistible mirth. The subjects after being brought under control were transformed into most ridiculous beings and placed in the most ludicrous positions of which the witty brain of the professor is capable of conceiving—making love to empty space, imagining there were roosters, etc. but still the good judgment of the professor was manifested in discriminating between his subjects and not imposing upon the more particular ones actions of which they would be ashamed afterwards.

He also gave tests such as passing a needle through the ear and cheek of a colored subject to prove the absence of feeling—no blood would follow and no wound show and the subject when told of it refused to believe it.

The Professor made the subjects get hot and perspire, get freezing cold, have a chill, make the pulse and heart beat faster and slower at word of command, and physicians went up on the stage and saw that these manifestations really took place—no possibility of simulation about this.

The professor will have some of the same subjects on the stage tonight and as they will be more en rapport with him than last night the experiments will be more satisfactory—the best of the show. The Professor states, is to be tonight. It begins at 8:30.

A good point about the performance is its freedom from objectionable features. It is as well suited to ladies as any one and those who were present last night enjoyed it as well.

Trials of Sheriff in Collecting Taxes.
The Progressive Farmer says: "It is said that but few county sheriffs in North Carolina ever come out of the office as well off as they were when they went in. Just why this is we don't know. Of late years the record has been getting worse. In the past few weeks two or three sheriffs have assigned or were sued on their bonds for taxes they had failed to collect." The ex sheriff of Forsyth county is being sued for $10,000, and he and his bondsmen have been sued for that amount. No dishonesty is alleged. The sheriff simply failed to collect that amount of tax out of the people of the county. He says he couldn't get the money without selling property of tax-payers, and money has been so close that he couldn't get the amount even if he put the property up for sale.

Face and Figure
show it, if you're a healthy woman. They'll have a beauty of their own, no matter what your features. Perfect health, with its clear skin, rosy cheeks and bright eyes, is enough to make any woman attractive. To get perfect health, use faithfully Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. That regulates and promises all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health, flesh, and strength. For periodical pains, prolapsus and other displacement, bearing-down sensations, and "female complaints" generally, it is so effective that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back. Is anything that isn't sold in this way likely to be just as good?

SOME SMOKERS.

A Review of Smokers—The Cigarette Gets a Deservedly Hard Hit.

(Kinston Correspondence.)
Some smokers, generally those of middle age or older, smoke quietly and deliberately. They puff slowly, and watch the smoke as it curls upward. These do much thinking during this solemn time. Reflection comes naturally to them. You will always find them smoking pipes—a long in an easy attitude in an easy chair—split bottoms are the best—old split bottoms that have been used till they fit. The stem of the pipe of this class of smokers is generally about three feet long—none of your short, Irish, nose warmers.

These men can be trusted. Their opinions are worth something. And they always smoke good tobacco. They do their smoking at home—sometimes in the good wife's chamber, but they ought not to do this. Ill tempered, snappish men seldom smoke. When they do, they go about in a way that exasperates the beholder. This kind of smoker generally uses pungent, acrid tobacco—burly to the eyes and nauseating to the nose. He puffs in a jerky, crabbed way—as if he wanted to spit the smoke as it issues from his mouth. His stem is a short one—and he jams it into his pocket when he finishes. Don't ask this man a favor—a man who uses his kind of tobacco will never do to trust. His smoking always makes him dyspeptic—and he has not sense enough to stop it. That fellow's wife has a hard time of it. After he eats raw onions and then pulls at his rank old pipe for fifteen minutes, his presence would not be desirable in a ladies' parlor. If he ever smokes a cigar he chews up half of it before he gets half through with it. He is a savage—let him alone. I never knew but one class of men that smoked short-stemmed pipes and were pleasant companions—they were soldiers.

You can tell a young beginner at the business by the size of his cigar—the stems of the pipe. He smokes cigars six inches long and ten inches mean. It is made of cabbage leaves and brown paper, of course he calls it "strong tobacco." He generally hides from public view about the time he smokes one half of it—has business at home—but he does not take the cigar with him.

I have met several men of my acquaintance who are smokers; but I have never seen them smoking. They have a short pipe stem about a foot long, the mouth end standing up out of their side coat pocket all chewed and split and black. Why don't they hide the end? And why do these men always wear sack coats?

I have seen a few "dry smokers," in my life. They put a cigar in the mouth and hold it there, without lighting it. They seem to wish to convey the impression that they are thoughtful—so full of deep and important thoughts that they do not know that the cigar is not burning. This is "too thin." I had thought of saying something about the cigarette smoker. But he does not deserve to be ranked in the class of smokers. We have been speaking of those who draw in the smoke and then puff it out from the mouth—not of those who take the poisonous fumes of opium into their lungs and then spit back through their nostrils. We have been speaking of those whose rooms smell of honest tobacco and not of those whose rooms are seeking with the vile odor of burnt opium and other drugs. We have been speaking of those who, perhaps, shorten their lives by six months or a year, and not of those who go down into an early grave "unwept, unhonored and unsung"—and rightly so.
