Mr. Geo. Hamilton, infant child was accidentally and seriously burned yesterday.

Increasing cloudiness with rain by this afternoon was the weather bureau forecast yesterday.

The office below Messrs. J. H. Craffree & Co's machine shops is being fitted up by Mr. Robt. Hancock. Mr. J. A. Bryan's agent for his James city property.

The Beaufort Herald tells of an unusually large flounder caught by Mr. Geo. L. Willis. He was 32 inches long, 19 inches across the back, 9 inches across the tail and weighed 11 1/2 pounds.

In view of the concert at the Opera House last night, and another entertainment next week, the ladies of the committee have decided that it is best not to repeat the Business Carnival.

The report that Gladstone is contemplating resigning the British premiership is not confirmed. His son says that the grand old man is in good health and full of life.

It is suggested that boys who want to send their girls valentines send them in the shape of a season ticket to the East Carolina Fair, (which begins just five days after Valentines Day) with the request "May I attend you?"

Rev. Edward Bull came in last night from his canvass for the Fair. Again he reports that the interest in the Fair is widespread and increasing. It is very evident that the attendance will be very large if the weather is favorable.

The entertainment by the Gruber family last night was varied and good. It was entirely musical but much out of the usual line was given, and some of the features were wonderful. The audience was appreciative. A matinee will be given this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Admission 25 and 15 cents.

Mr. J. L. Rhem has his saw mill 5 miles from New Berne on the W. N. & N. R. R. completed all but roofing. The machinery arrived a short time ago and he put 1634 position and saved out the lumber for the building to be built over it. The mill is 33 x 60 feet.

Hon. A. S. Seymour, U. S. Judge for the Eastern District of North Carolina has been appointed to hold the regular term of United States Court in the Western District of South Carolina at Greenville S. C., on account of the accumulation of business and need of disposing of it. It begins next week.

The JOURNAL office was literally supplied with ice cream and cake from Mr. Geo. W. Gaskill's reception last night. The boys enjoyed it greatly and all wish for Mr. Gaskill and his wife naught but happiness through life. Mr. Gaskill is one of our fine young business men and our people extend a warm welcome to his bride.

Our excellent neighbor, the Kingston Free Press comes out this week with a supplement, making the entire paper just one third larger than usual. One whole page is devoted to an advertisement of the New Berne Fair and there are articles on the Fair scattered through the paper. A good many extra copies of the edition will be sent out.

The A. & N. C. R. R. is getting ready for the Fair by brightening up the cars. A little paint and varnish makes considerable difference in looks. One of the second class cars has been overhauled thoroughly. The work on it is just finished and it now stands ready to come out of the shops. One of the first class cars is undergoing similar treatment and is now in the hands of the painters.

Prof. Hodges' Night School.

We are pleased to learn that Prof. J. D. Hodges, principal of the New Berne Collegiate Institute has determined to establish a night business school in the city. Only one text book will be used and that is Mayhew's Book-keeping—single and double entry. The text-book embraces matters other than book-keeping, relating to business; instructions will be given on the following subjects: Percentage, including interest, partial payments, computation of time, discount, bank discount, commission, insurance duties, equation of payments, storage, dividends, losses, partner ships—simple and compound, and the philosophy and morals of business, embracing a discussion of practical questions, such as the choice of business, quality and functions of money, etc. If the pupils prefer, Prof. Hodges will divide the class, giving part of them instruction in the afternoon, the other in the evening.

Coming and Going.

Miss Sadie Whitford left yesterday morning to visit Mrs. Annie Bridgeman of Raleigh. Mr. J. B. Blade, returned on the steamer Neuse from Elizabeth city. Rev. D. H. Petree, went down to Jacksonville to hold services at that point last night. He will return to-day.

Mr. I. E. Orchard of the Natili company which is to play here next Friday night arrived last night and is registered at Hotel Albert.

Mr. C. D. Dockham, went down to Wilmington on a business trip. Mr. Dockham says this is the first time he has been on a train since last May, but the previous year being connected with a Northern railroad he travelled over 12,000 miles—quite a contrast.

Mrs. M. D. Nelson and Miss Rouliac, returned from the north last night.

Mr. Wm. Kinsey, and family of New York arrived to visit Mr. Joel Kinsey.

Mr. R. E. Gerock of Ouslow county was in the city yesterday with 51 bushels of peanuts. Messrs. Lucas & Lewis were the purchasers.

Choral Society.

Rabbi Kaiser informs us that the choral society will be organized at the Collegiate Institute next Wednesday at 8 o'clock on the same basis as the noted Petersburg choral society which has been in existence fourteen years. All lovers of good music, ladies and gentlemen are invited to be present and join.

The dues for ladies will be 10 cents per month, gentlemen 25 cents. The money from the dues will be applied to the purchase of fuel, lights and music.

The Wilson Bill Passed.

On Thursday the House passed the Wilson bill. The vote was announced as 5 o'clock as follows: Yeas, 203; nays, 140, so the bill was declared passed with a wild shout from the floor and the galleries. A later and more careful examination of the vote showed that 204 had voted for the bill, including the speaker.

The announcement was greeted with cheers and applause in the galleries and on the floor, which continued until the House adjourned.

The debate was closed by Messrs Reed, Crisp and Wilson. Mr. Wilson, the author of the bill was carried from the House on the shoulders of his colleagues.

Mr. Isaac Brock of Comfort, Jones county was in the city yesterday with a load of cotton and did not bring all either he still has a quantity left. His cotton brought the top of the market 7.40. Mr. Brock is a good farmer and makes his home supplies and more. His turkeys and hams are as fine as his cotton, and are sought after whenever he brings them to market.

Thursday Messrs. J. B. Hollis and Co.

Thursday Messrs. J. B. Hollis and Co., finished moving into the store hitherto occupied by Mr. J. M. Howard; Mr. Howard got all of his stock into the one vacated by Mr. T. J. Baxter and the A. Cohn Piano and Organ Company, the two latter are in the place Mr. Holland has been keeping in. Considerable arranging of stock remains to be done but next week will see all the firms in good shape again.

Carteret's Fish and Oyster Interest.

The fishing and oyster industry of this place and Morehead City is an immense thing. The waters around here are equal to the gold mines of California. How many men in the county who depend entirely for their living by what they catch from the water. And here of late since the drop-scine has come into use boat loads are caught at one haul.

Last week fishermen went inside of the bar and dropped their seines some of which are 200 yards long, and they would begin to haul in and take out the fish that would be entangled in the meshes, and before they would pull in half of the net the boat would be full and they would have to cut the seine in half and leave it for somebody else's boat.

200 tons of fish left Morehead City one morning last week. We do not doubt but that the fishermen would get better prices for their fish if we had a better financial policy, but our people cannot complain of hard times as long as fish will run. Carteret county is indeed the richest county in the State.—Beaufort Herald.

Pleasure is the open enemy of poverty and happiness is its friend.

OXFORD ORPHAN ASYLUM.

Some Facts in Reference to This Excellent Benevolent Institution. Mr. T. A. Green expresses high pleasure at all he observed while on his recent visit to the Oxford Orphan Asylum and gives us some points which it is well enough for the public to know about this.

Mr. Green delights in the improved methods by which the Asylum is being operated and also in the practical manual training along certain lines which the scholars receive in addition to the regular schooling.

Connected with the school is a good steam laundry, the washing and ironing all being done by machinery.

A pump supplies both buildings through pipes with cold water wanted. It is operated by the same engine that runs the laundry.

A number of good milk cows, 12 or 15, are kept.

A tailoring department is run by the girls. In it they cut and make all clothes for both boys and girls except what are donated to the Asylum ready made.

The boys run a shoe shop on the same plan. No ready made clothing or shoes are brought. This makes the apparel come cheaper but gives a trade at the same time.

The Orphans Friend, the organ of the institution is also run by the inmates.

The children who are educated at this orphan's home stand well when they leave. Mr. W. Duke of Durham, recognizing the good habits to which they would have been trained, and being disposed likewise to place those who leave the school in a position to look out for themselves, has given directions to his manager to always give employment to every one who applies for it from this school and it is stated to show the labors of the school in its whole history not one who passed through it was ever convicted for any offence in any court.

The last report of the Superintendent shows 215 children on the roll—41 were admitted during the year, 12 placed in homes, 3 died and 11 were discharged.

The account kept with the farm in connection with the school shows a net profit from it of $765.82; the one with shoe shop a net profit from it of $551.27; the printing office a net profit of $1,419.33. Repairs and additions to the buildings and other improvements have been made during the year at a cost of $2,033.

Drowned Near Hatteras.

A terrible experience was undergone a few days ago between Hatteras and Ocracoke. Mr. Phil Gaskins and Levin Quilly had started in a sail boat to Hatteras loaded too heavy with set net stakes. The boat capsized and Gaskins was drowned. Quilly remained on the bottom of the boat four days and nights without food or water, and was picked up by Mr. Wm. Gaskins.

This all happened in sight of the life-saving station, we have heard, where the men could be seen walking on shore, yet no assistance was sent the suffering man.—Washington Gazette.

The experience which the Gazette tells of is indeed a terrible one. It is to be hoped, however, that investigation may prove that no blame either for carelessness or wanton neglect may attach to the life saving station people.

The class of men in charge of these stations have a good name for bravery and for willingness to risk their lives when necessary in behalf of others in danger and, we doubt not it will be found that the cause of their not sallying forth to the rescues was simply a failure to understand that their services were needed.

Opinions of Great Men Concerning the Y. M. C. A.

It will not be out of place at this time to give the opinions of a few leading men with regard to the work of the Association since the celebration anniversary of the local association will be held tomorrow night in this city.

Major General O. O. Howard, U. S. A. says: "I have been identified with the Young Men's Christian Association for nearly thirty years and my sincere conviction is that it is one of the most practical and useful institutions in existence and the more I know of it the more decided is my admiration for it."

P. DeWitt Talmage says: "The Young Men's Christian Association is the right wing of the Lord's army."

Philips Brooks D. D., says: "I highly value the work of the Young Men's Christian Association and consider it an important part of the Christian church."

Hisop E. R. Hendricks says: "After careful observation and reflection I have ventured to call the great work of the Young Men's Christian Association the religious movement of the nineteenth century. It has already become a vital part of other institutions contending permanent as colleges and railroads. Its organization is wonderfully complete and shows great adaptability. It has adjusted itself to the great existing churches as a co-worker, without claiming itself to be a church and has the confidence and sympathy of leading divines in all churches."

STATE REFORMATORY.

Penitentiary Superintendent Leazar Speaks of the Need of Such an Institution.

THE JOURNAL has on more than one occasion spoken in favor of reformatories that would train recruits might be kept from coming in with hardened criminals and an effort be made to reclaim them and turn them into useful citizens. Mr. A. Leazar, Superintendent of the penitentiary whose position qualified him to judge well as to whether necessity exists for this, spoke as follows on the subject to a representative of the Charlotte Observer.

"Are there many youthful convicts under your supervision?" was asked. "There are 200 convicts," was the answer, "under the age of 20."

"Do you believe in a reformatory for young criminals, then?" "I think there is very great reason for a reformatory. I have planned to do something in a laudable way myself for the younger convicts, such as keeping them separated from the older and hardened criminals, and working them in squads by themselves. The great trouble is, however, that they all must go into quarters together at night. There is no provision for separate quarters. There is one little negro on the farms no taller than that counter there," continued Mr. Leazar, pointing to the counter encircling the clock office in the Central Hotel. "He is in for five years. All I can utilize him for is to carry water to the men in the fields."

Mr. Leazar thinks there are very many of the young convicts who would not be benefited in a reform institution, as they have criminality in their very heredity, but he is convinced that a State reformatory could do a great work, and is heartily in favor of one. He said that he was certain that the youthful evil-doers in the penitentiary now will be hardened criminals by the time they get out.

NEWPORT CORRESPONDENCE.

Manifest Progress in the Village and Vicinity.

Influenza has been around us. The new Methodist parsonage is enclosed and begins to look like a reality, while several other new buildings are pleading for a coat of paint.

The merchants complain that trade is dull and money scarce, but if the ladies will buy plenty of eggs the old women are safe in the way of small change.

The farmers who take time by the forelock are breaking ground and making compost heaps. J. L. Bell seems to be foremost in this work.

The farmers seem to be the most wide awake men we have. We have had plenty of evidence of this winter, raised by the farm of A. E. Oglesby at Wildwood, and now Wm. L. Colburn, A. E. Oglesby and L. O. Bell have twenty or thirty acres in celery, one acre of which is nearly ready for the spring trade.

The farmers have more corn and pork than they ever had before and yet there is a general cry of "hard times." This cry of hard times reminds us of a boy whose father threw the whip on him vigorously for singing perpetually the foolish song of "Lassie and Tweedledum." The boy in his agony exclaimed, "why did I not sing that I can sing nothing, for that is the only song I know."

NORTH CAROLINA DATES.

The Wilmington Star has been trying to help out The News in its advocacy of blackberry culture, and writes a two column article. The Star puts up a good case, too.

Unfortunately, it says that the persimmon crop should not be neglected, and gives this incident: Some years ago a barrel of persimmons was sent from Greensboro to a commission house in St. Louis.

The party who sent them didn't know whether they would sell or not, but in due time he received a letter with a remittance of twenty-five dollars, the barrel brought over and above the freight and commission. They were old "North Carolina dates," when dates were higher priced than they are now.

The merchants knew what they were, but thought they would go better as North Carolina dates than as North Carolina persimmons and called them North Carolina dates.

They could have sold more if they had them but the date supply was exhausted with that one experimental shipment, and before the next season came around the old man who shipped them had crossed the river and gone into the land where there are neither dates nor persimmons and few St. Louis commission merchants.

But seriously the persimmon is worth experimenting with and worth cultivating as an experiment to see what there is in it, for the result might be a delightful and a valuable fruit. It is a very easy matter to experiment on putting them up either in jelly form or as dates.—Charlotte News.

Keep Your Sign Before the Public. Here is what Peter Cooper, who lived to be over 90 years old, and died worth many millions, said of a newspaper. In all towns where a newspaper is published every man should advertise in it, if nothing more than a card stating his name and the business he is in. It not only pays the advertiser, but it lets the people at a distance know that the town in which you reside is a prosperous community of business men. As the seed is sown so the seed recombines. Never pull down your sign while you expect to do business.

Grateful Thanks. ED. JOURNAL.—Not long since I had a subscription paper and the generous and kind way every white person I presented it to responded will be kindly remembered by me. Gratefully. ISAAC H. SMITH.
