It is important for the officers to be in possession of full information on this line, and it is important also to have all the places open that can be secured.

The young man seemed to give a straight account of himself and nothing substantial appearing against him he was released.

The Raleigh correspondent of the Charlotte Democrat says that if the cotton mills at other points in the State have done as well as those in Raleigh and propose to make as many additions to their plant, the showing will indeed be a fine one. One mill there will add 75 looms and 2,500 spindles, another 100 looms and 5,000 spindles. What better proof does any one want that cotton manufacturing pay than the fact that those engaged in the business are continuously enlarging their plants.

The Greenville Reflector on the occasion of Judge Ryann holding Pitt county Superior court, tells of him that when there is a conviction for carrying concealed weapons, his Honor makes it a condition of suspending judgment upon payment of costs that the defendant make the court a present of the pistol. Several went between the anvil and hammer under this order.

THE BRUTE MURPHY.

In Richmond Jail for Highway Robbery—Committed a Year Ago.

The low villain, Edward Murphy, who after lying in jail in New Berne nearly three months, was sent out of the city—Mayor Ellis paying his way to Norfolk, is again heard from. The following telegram sent out from Richmond gives the last heard of him:

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 2.—Two New York pugilists, giving their names as Edward Murphy and John Monihan, managed to evade the police here early this morning and engage in a mill which resulted in a victory for the former. The pug was small and the battle short, lasting but two rounds. The first round developed no slugging, but the second was a fight from the start. Murphy landed a hard on his antagonist's ear and ham mowed him on the neck, driving him to the floor. Monihan could not rise, he was so fast as it would attempt to do so Murphy would knock him down.

The affair wound up in a real "scrap" between the men, in which no regard was paid to seconds or referee, and the spectators separated them.

All parties were arrested. Murphy went to jail. He was also arrested on a charge of highway robbery committed here last March.

Frank Wongo, the Indian pugilist, was Murphy's second, while a Norfolk sport performed the same office for Monihan. Mr. Brady, of the Turf Exchange, was the referee, while Mr. Louis Lyon acted as time keeper.

A later account says that had blood had previously existed between the two contestants. The charge of robbery against Murphy was for stealing $190 and a gold watch from F. C. Mitchell of Chertfield.

Not only were the principals arrested but all the promoters also.

No One to Work the Road. A strange state of affairs exists on Pembroke road between the city and what is generally known as the New Bridge, a distance of about two and a half miles. There is not a man left on the road whose duty it is to work it—all are two young or too old. There have been very few on it subject to road duty and these few have moved off.

This being the case what is to be done? As the present law provides for the roads to be worked by those living along them we do not know whether it is allowable to use tax money for the purpose or not, but we do know county prisoners can be utilized for the purpose and now is a good time to put the practicality of thus working the roads to a test.

We have repeatedly advocated keeping up public highways by convict labor. There is no reason why the vicious and worthless element of our population should be kept idle in jail and fed at the expense of the industrious and law-abiding. Take them out and make them servicable. If necessary put a ball and chain on them—the like was done here a few years after the war and it can be done again.

The city has led off in the way of making its prisoners work—violators of the ordinances can be seen with their striped suits at work on the streets, now let the county take the fellows who are in jail and put them on the road.

Our Manufacturing Policy. North Carolina has enough kaolin to supply the crockery manufacturers of the world. How much of this is used in this State? Probably we will do with our kaolin as we do with our fine woods, ship the material to other States to be manufactured, so we can buy the product at about ten prices over the cost of raw material.—Wilmington Messenger.

The Messengers ridicule in to the point. It is but a few days since an announcement was made of a shipment of kaolin from this State to Japan! And native woods of various kinds for manufacturing purposes can often be seen leaving New Berne for northern factories. One wharf in the city is at this writing filled with medium sized express logs sawed into convenient lengths for transportation awaiting shipment.

The raw material of many kinds that we have all around us, if worked up at home would make an incalculable difference in our prosperity.

Mail Service Next.

The contract between the Southern Express Company and the Wilmington, New Berne and Norfolk Railroad went into effect yesterday. Express freight and parcels of all kinds, including money, are now carried through between Wilmington and New Berne. This is well. Now let us have the through mail.—Wilmington Star, 2d inst.

Every one wants the mail carried on the W. N. & N. R. R. There has already been too much delay in service when the means are at hand for better facilities they should be promptly utilized. We join the Star in saying "Now let us have the through mail."

A Big Change.

Here is another item taken from the Charlotte Observer which shows the marked change that is taking place in the policy of our farmers in reference to making home supplies.

"One good sign of the prosperous condition of the farmers in this section, said Mr. H. C. Irwin the other day, is that they all raise, not only enough meat to supply home consumption but also enough to supply the market. Formerly when I was in the meat business I had to send to Atlanta for all my pork. Now we have it offered right at our doors, as fine as can be bought anywhere."

"PASS UNDER THE ROD."

MRS. M. S. B. DANA, S. C.

For THE JOURNAL, I saw the young bride in her beauty and pride,

Bedecked in her sunny array, And the bright flush of joy mantled high on her cheek,

And the future looked blooming and bright, And with woman's devotion she laid her fond heart

At the shrine of idolatrous love, And she anchored her hopes on this perishing earth,

But I saw when those dear hearts strings were bleeding and torn, And the chain had been severed in two,

She had changed her white robes for the saffires of grief, And I mourn for the paleness of woe,

But the Healer was there, pouring balm on her breast, And not wiping the tears from her eyes, And he strengthened the chain he had broken in twain,

And fastened it firm to the skies! There had whispered a voice—'twas the voice of her God,

"I love thee—I love thee—pass under the rod!" I saw the young maiden in tenderness bend

Over the couch of her slumbering boy, And she kissed the soft lips as they murmured her name,

While the dreamer lay smiling in joy, So sweet as a rosebud enriched with dew, When its fragrance is flung on the air, So fresh and so bright to that mother he seemed,

As he lay in his innocence there, But I saw when she gazed on the same lovely form,

Fate as marble and silent and cold, But yet and colder her beautiful boy, And the tale of sorrow was told! But the Healer was there who had stricken her heart,

And taken her treasure away, To allure her to Heaven he placed it on high,

And the mourner will sweetly obey, There had whispered a voice—'twas the voice of her God,

"I love thee—I love thee—pass under the rod!" I saw the fond brother, with glances of love,

Gazing down on a gentle young girl, And she hung on his arm and breathed soft in his ear,

As he played with each graceful curl, O, he loved the sweet tones of her silvery voice,

Let her use it in sadness or gloom; And he'd clasp his brave arms round her delicate form,

As she sat on her brother's knee, But I saw when he gazed on her death stricken face,

And she breathed not a word in his ear, And he clasped his brave arms round an icy cold form,

And he moistened her cheek with a tear, But the Healer was there, and he said to him thus—

"Grieve not for thy sister's short life," And he gave to his arms still another fair girl,

And he made her his own cherished wife! There had whispered a voice—'twas the voice of his God,

"I love thee—I love thee—pass under the rod!" I saw where a father and mother had laid

On the arms of a dear gilded son, And the star in the future grew bright to their gaze,

As they saw the proud place he had won! And the fast-coming evening of life promised fair,

And his pathway grew smooth to their feet, And the starlight of love glimmered bright at the end,

And the whispers of fancy were sweet, But I saw when they stood, bending low o'er the grave,

Where their hearts dearest hopes had been laid, And the star had gone down in the darkness of night,

And the joy from their bosoms had fled, But the Healer was there, and his arms were around,

And he led them with tender care; And he showed them a star in the bright upper world,

'Twas their star shining brilliantly there! They had each heard a voice—'twas the voice of their God,

"I love thee—I love thee—pass under the rod!"

CARNIVAL SONG.

Oh the fairest spot on earth, is to man of little worth,

Unless he finds his interest centered there; But tried and trusted friends to the poorest places lend,

An ever cheerful bright and sunny air. Let your greeting then be kind to the stranger who may find,

A home, and health, and occupation here. Should he fall frail and with laborious, patient toil,

Encouragement his weariness will cheer. Build up your town through it all, 'Tis no matter whether may befall,

Loosest your money home prosperity will come. Build up your town through it all,

With a climate unsurpassed, with resources rich and vast, From forest, field and river's bounding life,

Where the Christmas roses bloom, fill the air with faint perfume, While the mocking birds engage in tuneless strife.

With an ancestry whose name gives a heritage of fame, In the title proud of "Athens of the State."

We should work for public good as a common brotherhood, In united effort all cooperate.

Be true to your town through it all, No matter whether may befall, In united strength success will come at length,

Be true to your town through it all. Listed For the New Berne Fair.

Mr. Frank Hege, of the Wachovia Kennels, will attend the New Berne Fish, Oyster and Game Fair this month, and exhibit a variety of chickens, guinea pigs, rabbit, white rats, pig dogs, St. Bernards, etc. A visit to Mr. Hege's home on South Side is a veritable treat and he or his assistant is kept busy piloting callers around. His collection of the above mentioned fowls and animals are worth going miles to see.

Among his novelties is a pair of Japanese Dancing Mice, the cutest little things imaginable, and to see them on the "parade" would put some of our light fantastic lovers here and there to their laurels.—Winston Republican.

An Alabama Notice of the Fair. The writer was never in New Berne, N. C., but as it is the birth place of his parents, he feels an interest in all things pertaining thereto. Before him lies a copy of the New Berne Weekly Journal, with a glowing prospectus of the East Carolina Fish, Oyster, Game and Industrial Association to be held Feb. 19-21.

It would be pleasant indeed for him to attend and become acquainted with the place he has heard so often described, and to meet the descendants of those who were friends and relatives of those dear ones who are gone.—Alabama Beacon Greenboro Ala.

An Under Ground Jail. Mr. C. M. Brown, who is having the old jail removed, called our attention to a fact which is not within the memory of any living one.

The fact is shown that the first jail which was used here the cells were all underground, with brick walls cemented. When the new front next to the street was all filled in, and it was all made above the surface.—Washington Progress.

325 Decendants. We heard a gentleman this week tell about Joshua Hudson, of Norwood, Stanley county, who is 99 years old and has been married three times, and has decendants numbering 325 children, grand children and great-grand-children.

He has never tasted a drop of medicine in his life. He is in good health and had good eyesight up to four or five years ago.—Winston Republican.

FOR SALE CHEAP. ONE fine large dark bay horse, 7 years old, weighs 1,300 lbs. Any one wishing to buy a good draught horse can apply at the City Hall or to Chas. J. Now's the day and now's the hour." Burns.

There is only about ten days left before we move. Now's the time to buy what you need in Clothing, Hats and Shoes at low prices. We have about 30 children's suits if there are any in the lot that will suit you. We'll make the prices right. Do you need a trunk or a valise. They are going at cost. A few more rugs left. Call early before they are all gone. Don't forget to bring your money. J. M. HOWARD.
