A Grain Thief.

Tobe Harris, a colored youth, was arrested yesterday afternoon upon a warrant charging him with stealing corn from the grainery of C. B. Hill at the market dock.

The corn was stolen from Mr. Hill Thursday night by breaking in the store. It has not yet been found out where the corn was kept on Friday; on Saturday it was at Maj. Dennison's wharf and was hauled from there and sold to Mr. M. M. Ispoke. There were twenty bushels of it. Tobe has been carrying on his stealing operations for some time, and officers were on the watch to get something that would render conviction certain. They saw the corn being hauled and when opportunity offered, without coming into contact with the thief, they examined the marks on the sacks, and then continuing their investigations, identified it as coming from Mr. Hill's and made the arrest.

The occurrence that first placed officers on the track of Tobe was his carrying six sacks of oats to Mr. J. W. Mesic to sell. Mr. Mesic believing they were stolen held them without paying for them and notified the officers. The oats, and also a lot of corn, were found to have been stolen from Mr. W. P. Barrus. The way in which it seems that the negro operated in stealing from Mr. Barrus was to crawl under the cotton gin building and get into it through a hole where a belt goes through the floor. Then opening a door, get what grain he could manage into a boat outside, then close and fasten the door, get out through the hole and depart. In this way he could steal a long time, probably, without the stealing being known.

Mr. Hill's place is also at the waters edge—he could thus carry oil in a boat what he stole from either place. It was found that in some of his work he had appropriated the boat of another colored man to carry off what he stole. Policeman Brinson assisted by Policeman Toler, worked the case up admirably. Mr. Brinson is making a very good name for sharp detective work.

The case has not yet been tried; it is intended to come up today.

Rev. J. V. Williams.

Our former townsman, Mr. J. V. Williams, now a well known manufacturer of writing ink and kindred articles at Norfolk has also been a licensed minister of the Methodist church for the past four years and while carrying on his business, labors as opportunity offers along religious lines from love of the work. He denounced wrong living whether of a laithome or simply of a worldly character whether in church members or others.

He was particularly severe on those of the former class who do not live up to their obligations. He told them in effect to either live up to them or cease to keep their names on church books. Let them be enrolled on the devils side where they belong. He would rather have a small church with consecrated members, than a large of this class.

The sermon so far as we have learned pleased all who heard it.

University Glee Club.

The Y. M. C. A., having made arrangements with the University Glee Club some time ago and appeared in New Bern on the 29th of March, when it was found, however that there were to be religious meetings going on at that time, an effort was made to have them change their date. This was found to be impossible, hence they will be here on the 29th above date, but the concert will begin at 9 o'clock so as not to conflict with church services.

Rev. I. L. Chestnut.

Rev. I. L. Chestnut, former pastor of the New Bern Church of Christ will soon move from his present home, Snow Hill, N. C., to Hampton Va., to preach for the church there.

All North Carolinians whom he has served regret to lose Mr. Chestnut from the work in this State and they heartily commend him to the brethren of Virginia as worthy of the highest esteem and confidence.

Hon. Thos. J. Jarvis, ex-Governor of N. C. and late U. S. Minister to Brazil, will deliver the literary address on Thursday, in connection with the graduating exercises of that day.

There are twenty young ladies in the graduating class, and the occasion of their graduation and the address of Gov. Jarvis will make the day one of great interest.

The commencement exercises will close with a grand concert on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock which promises to be of unusual interest.

Incubator and Artificial Mother.

The flock of young chickens hatched out during Fair on the grounds by Mr. J. L. Hahn's incubator have been kept there. They are a thrifty little set. They look out for themselves without any mother or protection except a cloth to crawl under when they see fit.

Last week Mr. Hahn started the incubator once more with another hundred eggs, and he is now at work building an artificial mother for the chicks when they hatch. It is made of a box with strips of wooden cloth about half an inch in width hanging thickly from a frame work in it to which they are tacked, with an arrangement to supply still further warmth, should it be required, by means of a can of water heated by a lamp.

Fayetteville Calls Dr. Gushoe.

The Fayetteville Observer contains the following mention of the reverend gentleman who is to preach the opening sermon before the convocation of Wilmington in Christ church this city on the night of Thursday, March 29th.

The delightful congregations who have been listening to Dr. Gushoe's eloquent sermons at St. John's Episcopal church for the past month, will be glad to know that the vestry voted on Tuesday to call the reverend gentleman to the rectorship of the Parish. It is not known whether he will accept the call.

Historical Literature for Sons of the Revolution.

The News Observer Chronicle mentions valuable donations by Hon. David Schenck of Greensboro, and Prof. Edward Graham Daves of Baltimore to the society "Sons of the Revolution," which is collecting historical works relating to the revolution.

The donations by Prof. Daves consist in the address delivered by him on the Maryland Troops in the Southern campaigns, and his sketch of the North Carolina Society of the Cincinnati.

The volumes presented by Judge Schenck are his History of North Carolina 1780-81, and the Memoir of Guilford Battle Ground, recently issued.

A Third Party Convention.

Advices from Warrenton state that some few of the prominent Third Party people met in Warrenton to-day for a more complete organization.

There was a very small crowd in attendance, and only six townships out of twelve in the county were represented.

The Allegheny Star speaks that the lynching affair which occurred near that place is a source of deep regret on the part of every citizen who loves law and order and says there was absolutely no justification for it. It was the first that ever occurred in the county and the hope is expressed that it will be the last.

Announcement is made that Raleigh's new evening paper The Press is to be issued on the 25th inst. Messrs. McKay, Williams and Womble will be the proprietors. The two former have been connected with the Raleigh Christian Advocate for many years, and it is said they thoroughly understand the mechanical work of the print shop.

The Raleigh correspondent of the Wilmington Messenger says that Mrs. Armistead Jones, President of the North Carolina Confederate Monument Association has given notice that at its meeting in Raleigh on the 16th inst the granite for the monument will be then chosen, and the date for the laying of the cornerstone fixed. The ceremonies on the latter occasion are to be made imposing.

SWINDLED THE CHAIRFABLE.

A Negro Sharper Working the North for Pretended Aid to Southern Colored Schools.

A negro ex State Senator from Bertie county has been doing some wholesale swindling north on the pretence of getting money for educational institutions in this State. A dispatch from Wilmington Deleware to the Charlotte Observer tells the story thus.

"It developed today that a number of Wilmington people had been victimized by a shrewd negro sharper who had been asking financial aid for several alleged colored educational institutions in and around Elizabeth City, N. C. He gave the name of George A. Melane, and is well educated and a fluent talker. Previous to coming here he had thoroughly canvassed the Eastern States, and had letters of indorsement from Edward Everett Hale, President Elliott, of Harvard, and other eminent citizens. McInane worked Wilmington for two weeks, and among those from whom he obtained subscriptions were Bishop Coleman, James P. Winchester, president of the First National Bank, and Lawyers, Henry C. Conrad, H. H. Ward and Hugh C. Browne. A communication from a number of colored people of Elizabeth N. C. received by a Wilmington man, in which Melane and his swindling operations were denounced, led to an investigation, learning of which he hastily left the city."

TALKING ENDOWMENT

A Plan to Benefit Trinity College of Durham, N. C.

The Durham Globe tells of an interesting meeting held in Trinity church of that city which was attended by the official members of Trinity and Main Street Churches. Dr. L. W. Crawford laid a plan before the meeting which is being agitated in most of the church conferences and definite plans will be soon arranged in each separate District Conference. It is to raise an endowment fund of $100,000 for Trinity College, in the two State conferences. Each district will have a proportionate part of the fund, which it is proposed to raise in the next four years.

At present it is determined to start an educational campaign among the membership of this denomination with this object in view.

This will be a great thing for Trinity. It should excite the pride of every friend of the College, not only here but throughout the State and the South. We would like to see them have it right now; but here is the wish that it may be accomplished in less than four years.

The endowment will be a great thing for the college and the movement towards it should excite the pride and strongest efforts of its friends. Trinity is now one of the foremost schools of the State. It has advanced rapidly within the last few years but there is no reason why it should not attain to a still higher position of usefulness, and all friends of education will rejoice to see the proposed endowment secured.

Home Dairying.

The beautiful golden butter exhibited at the East Carolina Fair is proof enough, if proof were needed, that this place can be made a great dairying centre, and the products be as near perfection as any which are imported.

An exchange states that the farmers in the State of Pennsylvania sell $20,000,000 worth of butter a year. This is a large amount to realize for one small item. And they make this butter where it costs twice as much to keep a cow and feed her as it does in North Carolina. It is a misfortune that our people have so long neglected products of this kind considering them too small to bother with.

While there has been some change in sentiment on the subject. The time has been when many farmers would have considered it almost a disgrace to sell as small a thing as butter.

And yet judging from what is being accomplished in districts where dairying has been well developed the probability is that many a farmer, if he would turn his attention to this special branch of agricultural life and employ the latest improved method could make more money on a dozen or two good cows well kept and attended to than he could on a whole crop of cotton or tobacco or average crop of that kind.

Speaking on this line the Warrenton Record says that it knows a family which more than paid its entire store account last year, besides using an abundance at home, with the butter from three cows.

Financial Depression Does Not Affect Him.

The Charlotte News tells of a former R. B. Little driving into that city with a load which he sold readily consisting of the following:

Several bags of fine sweet potatoes, two hundred pounds of nice dried apples, a barrel of genuine old scotch kront, ten bushels of hulled walnut, eight dozen fine chickens, and several ewe hides. His load was worth more than a bale of cotton and Mr. Little says it was made up of things that usually go to waste on the farm.

Mr. Little had on a home made pair of shoes, and a gray jeans suit of woolen clothes, which he said was made at home. The harness on his mules was made by himself and of home-made leather.

That farmer evidently can get along with but little spending money. The character of his load and of his clothing tells the story of home production of home supplies. Farmers are working more and more into this method of farming and they who have tried it are experiencing its good effects.
