Mr. Royall's body has not yet been found. Ed. L. Smith, a very expert diver will dive for the body this morning between 6 and 7 o'clock.

University Glee Club.
The programmes used by the Glee Club at the last commencement exercise of the University were very handsomely gotten up. The second page shows a splendid group picture of the club. There will of course be some changes since.

The group represents the personal of the club in 1893—however it gives some idea of what there is in store for the people of New Berne on the 30th of March. These programmes may be seen in the various windows, as well as at the Hall.

The Baptist Church Service.
The congregation at the Baptist church last night, owing to the fact that services were held in the other churches was not as large as on the previous night but the services were just as interesting.

Some General Facts About Whales
Whales being the interesting topic now we take from Chambers Encyclopedia the following points:

The Right whale, (the species to which the last one taken at Morehead belongs) attains a length of sixty or seventy feet.

The head of whales occupies from a third to a fourth of the whole length. The mouth is fifteen or sixteen feet long, but though the mouth is so large the gullet is very narrow; it is said to be only about an inch and half in diameter in very large whales.

Suspended from the roof of the mouth is the elastic substance known as whalebone. It is in plates very close together, so that the mouth is filled with it, it varies from a few inches up to (in rare instances) ten and twelve feet.

The vast mouth being opened, water is taken in and the small animals which enter with it are retained for food, and the water allowed to escape by the sides of the mouth.

The blubber is from a foot to two feet in thickness, the whole mass in a large whale sometimes weighing more than thirty tons.

The usual rate of progress in swimming is four or five miles an hour. They are capable however of swimming with much greater rapidity.

Whales usually come up to breathe every eight or ten minutes but are capable of remaining under water a half hour or more.

They generally remain on the surface about two minutes during which time they blow eight or nine times and then descend.

The noise which they make in blowing is very loud and the spout of water ejected ascends several yards into the air, appearing at a distance like a puff of smoke. The flapping of their tails in sport in the water can be heard a distance of two or three miles off.

The tail is extremely powerful; a single blow with it is sufficient to destroy a large boat, or toss it and the crew high in the air, so that the whale fishing is attended with no little danger.

Congressman Bland says the House Committee on Coinage has not called on Secretary Carlisle in regard to the signing of the Seigniorage bill, though individual members may have done so. He says he has not abandoned his fight for free silver. The President and Secretary Carlisle have a long conference on the Seigniorage bill. The President requests the New York Chamber of Commerce committee not to visit him to urge the veto or the bill.

WHALING OFF MOREHEAD

Four Sighted and Two Killed Within a Week—Description of Catching.

The great whale captured at Cape Lookout Tuesday, by the brave and hardy Morehead fishermen attracted crowds of visitors from Beaufort, Morehead and vicinity. Many would have gone down from New Berne had a train been run so that a visit to the interesting scene could have been made and the visitor have gotten back home the same day. These great monsters of the deep never fail to attract attention.

The first whale of the season, as we announced, measuring over forty feet in length, was caught last week. Tuesday three more were discovered sporting off the shore; chase was given and there not being men and boats enough to manage all, the largest one was selected, attacked, killed and brought to the ocean side of Shackleton's banks where he is now being cut up and tried into oil.

The whale gave his captors, a three-mile run before victory crowned their efforts. When first struck he was about five miles out, and when about eight miles out he succumbed to the three harpoon wounds and eight bomb shots of his assailants.

A whale's most vulnerable points are under his two immense fins, this, on one side brings the weapon near his heart, and on the other also touches a vital spot.

When a whale is to be taken, the first object to be attained is to make fast to him, so that he cannot escape. This is done by having lines which can be let out at great length attached to the harpoons. After he is thus secured he is shot with bombs which explode after they are buried in his body.

The boats used in the chase are long, swift-moving ones built specially for the business.

Five boats made the attack; the victim having been selected, a boat ranged close alongside and the first harpoon was imbedded deeply in his flesh. Then down the whale went winding off the line as he went.

A whale, sound or wounded, cannot long remain under the water. Not being a true fish they have to come to the surface at short intervals to breathe, so the watch was kept and when the whale made his appearance it did not take long to plant another harpoon in him. Again he sank and then with a third harpoon being made fast to him the firing began. The three harpoons and eight shots did the work.

Boats then towed him as close to the shore as the hugeness of his body would permit, the meaning of the title largely aiding in this work.

In color he is velvety black on the upper portions and white below.

Measurements showed his dimensions to be as follows:
Length, between 55 and 60 feet; breadth, (from side to side) 30 feet; width, (from back downwards) 12 feet; each fin is ten feet long and 6 feet wide; the flukes of his tail, 16 feet from one tip to the other. The bone in his mouth measures seven feet.

He will be cut up where he lies and then tried out in huge kettles on the shore.

It is estimated that the whale will make 40 casks of oil and that his total worth will be between $1,500 and $2,000 dollars. Twenty-five men are interested in the returns.

AN UNWISE POLICY.

Sending Raw Material Abroad and Buying the Manufactured Articles.

The Powhatan Clay manufacturing Co. Richmond, Va., with works at Dorset, Va is doing a big thing now in working up North Carolina clay into ornamental brick window caps and sills, terra cotta, lumber, vitrified paving brick, paving brick, daria tile, etc.

The company some times since discovered that there is an abundant deposit of the finest sort of clay, at Grover station on the Air Line road, south of Charlotte, and at once began negotiations with the owners.

The first year the company bought twenty-nine acres of clay from Mr. Steven White for $500, and they have built a warehouse 180x40 feet on the grounds.

They have already carried 300 car loads of clay from Grover to their works at Dorset. They also got clay from Mr. Matthew Turner, who owns a farm adjoining that of Mr. White. The clay is shipped through Charlotte at the rate of twenty car loads per week. The company says that it is the finest clay in the South.

The above item is copied from the Charlotte News. It is only one instance of many where North Carolina's natural resources are furnished to factories beyond her borders when the work could be done on the ground, home labor employed and home business benefited.

We suppose there is hardly a city in the State but what could show something similar. New Berne can at least in cotton, wool, woods and other materials quantities of which are exported in the rough instead of being manufactured first and the articles made shipped abroad.

There is no question of the advisability of having more home factories. Home capital could be turned in this direction with advantage to all.

WHAT ARE WE COMING TO?

Is Cleveland's administration a failure? This is what the people are asking now. Is it true? Has he deceived them? It so this is a fearful responsibility, and most grievously must he answer for it. Has he betrayed the sacred trust reposed in him by the people? These are solemn questions that must be answered with the forceful words of truth and with the meaning of the great financial stress that has racked this country to and fro like a huge earthquake. Thousands have gone under never to rise again. Who is to blame? Who is to blame for the terrific strife that is now being waged in behalf of good times, the liberties of the people and the prosperity of the country? Is it Cleveland? Is it the great democratic party of the country? And must the fact ever stare us in the face and like Banquo's ghost will it not descend at our bidding? Although Cleveland may prove a failure and some of his appointments too, and all things may fall, the Big Lie will never, and the people and the country are safe as long as he can buy goods at 40, 50 and 67 1/2 cents on the dollar and sell them at reasonable and living prices. Big Lie is the people's friend. He never deceives them. He offers no alluring hopes that turn to ashes on the lips like dead sea fruit. He makes no promises to the ear and then breaks them to the heart, but he marches straight on and up to the performance of duty, knowing that duty nobly done is life's highest and best endeavor, therefore he is a public benefactor because he places goods within the reach of all at merely nominal prices, thereby enabling both others and himself to live.

He has ever been the people's friend, financially, and he will be remembered by those long after his demise and his disciples have been forgotten, because he will be remembered as the good that he has done, knowing that "The good that men do lives after them." In conclusion Big Lie says ever with full purpose of heart to the people: He believes that this will be their duty, to him and continue to purchase long in the future as in the past. They will many hearts be made happy, and this political night-mare that has so long tormented the people will be swept aside as to the alms-house grave to be remembered no more forever. Permit Big Lie to make his political bow to the people with the assurance that he is ever the people's friend.
