Mrs. B. B. Lane—Millinery Opening, No. 78 Metcalf St.—House Decorating.
U. S. Banking & Building Co.—All Organized.

To-day is the time for the millinery openings.
Mr. W. B. Boyd, is making an addition to his residence, for an office.
Yesterday the Weather Bureau predicted showers on the coast for last night and fair weather for to-day.
The Gunned Fortnightly Club will meet this evening at the residence of Mrs. M. E. Manly.

Friends of N. S. Richardson are glad to see him with health so improved as to be able to admit of his getting around again.

All members of the Naval Reserve are requested to meet at the Collegiate Institute tonight for a rehearsal, preparatory for the proposed musical to be held some time in the near future.

Mr. Waylan Rollins, plumber of Durham, is in the city prospecting with a view to remaining. Considering that the water works are nearly finished, the outlook in his line ought to be a good one.

Since the city is abolishing some of the old wells and pumps remains on the street, it should take one other step, when possible, and rid the sidewalks of a few of those unsightly cellar doors that project on the side walks and so much interfere with pedestrians.

Rumor has it that a gentleman who has made it his business to study affairs in this section, has in course of preparation a couple of pamphlets to be given to the public at an early day. "Public Affairs in Craven" is said to be the caption of one and "Morehead by Night" of the other. The titles suggest interest to this section.

Capt. Duguid's Funerals.
Capt. Edward M. Duguid's funeral was held Tuesday from Centenary M. E. Church, Rev. J. T. Lyon officiating.

Besides the large number of friends of the family, the Independent order of Good Fellows of which he was a member attended in a body; twenty-two Confederate veterans in line preceded the hearse interspersed in the regular procession were about as many more.

In the notice of Capt. Duguid's death, published yesterday morning, by some mischance a portion of that part which referred to his military career was left out of the article, however, it is not amiss to allude to it here.

Capt. Duguid served throughout the war. He volunteered as a private in the New Berne Light Infantry of the 5th. Regiment, Col. Duncan McLoe, commander, and came out as Captain; at one time he was in command of a brigade of sharpshooters. He was a good officer and as a soldier he was one of the bravest of the brave.

He served in all the important battles of Virginia under Jackson and Early and was with Early when he came within sight of Washington.

During his service, Capt. Duguid was wounded five times, but every time as soon as his strength recovered sufficiently he was ready for duty again.

On the Sabbath of the 9th of April, 1863, the cause for which he fought so well, went down in defeat, and just ten years thereafter Capt. Duguid breathed his last.

His old comrades showed their appreciation of his devotion to the cause in behalf of which they shared so many days of danger and privation by their full attendance at his funeral.

Those who shared these perils together realize as few others do, the sacrifices each one made on the altar of duty and devotion to country, and they seem drawn nearer to each other, as year by year, their ranks grow thinner and each one is reminded thereby that the time is nigh when he too shall be called to "cross over the river and rest under the shade of the trees."

A Sound Sleeper and a Rat's Comical Mistake.

Mr. B. B. Davenport went on board Capt. Alex. Brinson's boat early in the morning and found a couple of colored men stretched out asleep. Nothing strange so far, but one of the darkeys was snoring like a good fellow with his mouth wide open.
A half grown rat, doubtless alarmed by Mr. Davenport's coming, and probably mistaking the negro's yawning mouth for a hole in the boat made a dive into his throat. He entered as far as the opening would let him, and was clawing at a rapid rate trying to force himself still farther, but the sleeper slept right on and would not awaken even when Mr. Davenport shook him for the purpose.
At last Mr. Davenport thinking if he could not end the scene one way he would in another, grabbed the foot rat by the tail and staved him overboard with such violence as to stun and drown him.
And the sleeper slept right on.

A Good Southern B. & L. Association.

The United Banking & Building Company of Richmond, Va., has organized a local branch in this city with 156 shares of stock taken. The excellent board of local officers appears in another column.
The company shows a strong organization; it has for its President Mr. Lewis A. Blair, a recognized financier, and the Chairman of its Board of Directors is no less a personage than Hon. Chas. T. O'Ferral, Governor of Virginia.
The company issues a series of stock each month and it does what very few organizations of any kind do—that is, it publishes a tabulated statement giving the number of shares taken month by month, and the value of each share of stock in each series up to date. This willingness to turn on the light shows the confidence the company has in its business methods. During the four years of its existence it has not met with a single loss, is in a very flourishing condition and growing rapidly.

Coming and Going.

Messrs. M. Hahn and J. W. Stewart have both left to purchase horses and mules for their respective livery stables.
Mrs. D. C. Way of Haslin who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Jas. B. Clark, left for her home, and Mrs. Clark's sister, Miss Lilly Way has arrived to visit her.
Mr. Jas. C. Roberts, chemist, of Rice, Col., arrived last night to visit his father Mr. P. C. Roberts.
Sheriff J. D. Sutton, of Lenoir county, and Messrs Walter LaToque and Doc Mitchell, of Kingston, came down last night.
Mr. T. G. Wilkinson returned last night from Wilmington. He reports the conversions Sunday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. meeting as 27 in number.

The Tulip Tea Last Night.

The Tulip Tea last night by the St. Cecilia Society at the elegant home of Dr. F. W. Hughes was a perfect success in every way. No better place could have been secured in which to hold it.
The four large rooms were thrown into one and suitably furnished with small tables neatly furnished and decorated, as the name implied, with tulips.
The scene was a pretty one; the decorations, the colored lights, and the lovely ladies—all did their part in making it so.
The attendance was good the entire time, and as a consequence the financial result—a very important feature—was pronounced "perfectly splendid."

First Pea Shipment.

Mr. A. P. Whitehead, of Batchelors, N. C., shipped yesterday by the steamer Newberna, of the W. N. & N. Line, three boxes of peas to Chapin & Bros., Boston, Mass.
This is the first shipment of the season. We may now look for the crop soon to be marketed. The yield owing to the late cold is going to be extremely light and prices ought to be high accordingly.
The amount of cabbage going off are increasing in quantity every day and asparagus and other truck is going forward also.

Delegates Elect.

The following have been elected delegates, and alternate delegates, to represent the Parish of Christ Church in this city, at the Diocesan Council of the Episcopal Church, to be held in St. Paul's Church, Edenton, on the 24th May next:
Delegates: Daniel T. Carraway, George H. Roberts, Edward K. Bishop and Graham Davis.
Alternate delegates: John S. Long, Owen H. Gulon, John J. Disowsay and Wm. H. Chadbourn.

Slade Property Sold.

The Slade property according to advertisement was sold yesterday at auction.
The broad street lot was divided into two lots; each sold for $700. Mr. John Dinkins was the purchaser.
The house on Hancock street with the house on it sold for $1280. Mr. Thos. Daniels was the purchaser.
The vacant lot south of the house brought $545. Mr. J. J. Lamerter was the purchaser.

Mr. Walter R. Henry declines the Cascoos consularship. It does not pay enough. He wanted a $5,000 position. He is entitled to a better position than the one offered. He is one of North Carolina's ablest and best men.

NEW BERNE B. & L.

The Home Association Meets and Makes Its Members Richer by $34,000

The first series of stock in the New Berne Building and Loan Association met last night pursuant to a call to pay off the investing members in the first series of stock, to cancel the notes of borrowing members and to make some desired changes in the laws governing the association.
The two proposed changes were ordered to be made. Now a member can take as many shares of stock in any series as he pleases instead of being limited to 25 shares in each series as heretofore. The other change is to raise the admission fee 25 cents per share instead of 10 cents as now.

Astonishing as it may appear, there did not enough members come to the meeting to make a quorum, until some were sent after. Times must not be so very hard after all when the certainty of getting money fails to bring the crowd.
But at last the quorum was secured and the meeting held, it commenced just an hour behind the appointed time.
Statements were made showing the beneficial workings of the Association. How property improvements have been stimulated and people secured from free from incumbrance without having to be able to realize how it was accomplished.

The association has thus far loaned to its members $98,450; 20,250 of this was in the first series which was cancelled last night, and the remaining $58,200 is the subsequent series. Annually, since its organization, a new series has been started; the seventh was started last night. $14,050 was paid out in cash.
With the law spoken of 24 members have erected new buildings—residences and stores. Nine have used the money for improving old buildings; eighteen have purchased property; two have paid off mortgages, and small loans have been made to other purposes. This is what the books showed last night.

But there are other borrowers still, who temporarily used the money for putting up new buildings, etc., and paid it back without waiting for the stock to mature—while this does not show in the foregoing statements, they have none the less received the same real and substantial benefits. And the borrowers in the first series now have their homes free from incumbrance, and have secured them by monthly payments only a little higher than they would have paid if they had rented the property instead of purchasing it through the Building and Loan Association. And it has been an equally good thing for the investing members.

The stock matured in six and a half years, so for $78 paid in they receive $100. The average time they have been without their money is 3 1/2 years, and the profit on it amounts to 87.10 percent per annum for that time. And this is done profit to the member. The association has paid all taxes and every other expense.

These results speak for themselves. They are not five promises; they are facts. The association is a home institution and is as good as any savings bank in the country. It is in effect a compulsory savings bank, with the advantages of double profits to each one belonging to it.
There is no reason why it should not grow and flourish as never before.
