These hot days make Fowler's lath houses opposite New Berne very popular; crowds cross the ferry every afternoon and enjoy the luxury of a bath in them.
Col. A. C. Davis has resigned the Superintendency of Davis Military school which he founded at LaGrange and afterwards moved to Winston. His brother Col. Jefferson Davis assistant Superintendent, succeeds him. Col. Davis' resignation is on account of ill health. This cause of resignation adds to the regret which Col. Davis' great number of friends and admirers feel at his retirement.
We thought the telegraph operator at Jacksonville who was not waked by the boiler explosion in the Parmelee saw mill was a pretty sound sleeper, but he is outdone by an express messenger named Edward Stevens, of Water Valley, Miss. While dozing in his chair Mr. Stevens fell from the car door and was not waked up. He was missed and after the car had gone twenty five miles a searching party was sent back for him and he was found still sleeping within two feet of the track. The train was running forty miles an hour when he fell off but he escaped with a few minor bruises. The Press despatches of the 27th tell this story.

RIVERSIDE YARDS.
The Poultry and Pet Animal Farm of F. E. Hege & Co.
A visit to Mr. Wm Dunn's farm will now show the preparations for the poultry yards, dog kennels, &c., which he and Mr. F. E. Hege, are to run under the firm name of F. E. Hege and Co., in a good state of progress.
Mr. Hege's residence, one which would duly grace any part of the city is nearly finished, the houses for the birds and animals are completed and the majority of the yards are neatly fenced off with woven wire fencing as they will be used.
There are twenty-seven of the poultry houses each one near the centre of its yard. The yards are 50x150 feet. There are six dog houses and yards, a pet animal house 35x50, two stories high, and with a cellar in which the incubators will be run.
The yards have an avenue ten feet wide leading through the centre from the road to the river and also a cross avenue of the same width. There will be a cook house for the pets, clover patch for the rabbits, a wind-mill and water tank will keep pipes which run to all the yards filled with water which will be constantly flowing from the pipes and then away when not used, and every convenience will be supplied for all the little inmates—birds and animals.
The gate to the main entrance will be a fine one as also will be the sign which will surmount the gate. The sign is large and elegant, gold lettered on blue-sand back ground.
The sign reads: "Riverside Kennels and Stock Yards, F. E. Hege and Co., New Berne, N. C. This is the side of the sign towards the road, which consequently greets the visitor as he enters. The reverse which presents itself to the visitor view as he is leaving reads "Come and see us again." We were informed that the sign cost $50.
We have not so far alluded to the bull-frog quarters. As we have previously announced, a pond of about one acre in extent at the rear will be devoted to bull frogs and they are expected to pay a handsome profit. Mr. Dunn is now corresponding to get information about the different breeds, &c., for he it known that even in a wild State there are varieties of bull-frog the same as there are of chickens, and Mr. Dunn no doubt means, like he does in everything, to have the best that is going. He is the only man we believe that brought World's Fair prize winning chickens to this section.
The place chosen is an admirable one for the business and it will soon be one of the most interesting places around to visit. Indeed it is beginning to be quite interesting even now. Mr. R. L. Simmons, editor of the Tar Heel Poultryman, of Shelby, who visited it while the equipment was in progress was highly pleased with what he saw.
Mr. Hege is an experienced man at the business and Mr. Dunn has been successful at whatever he has undertaken. We look for nothing but a good career for the Riverside Kennels and Poultry Yards.

OUR MAIL FACILITIES.
Almost a Day Might be Gained in Northern Communication—
The Advantages.
We recently showed that mail which leaves New Berne on the W. N. & N. mail train in the afternoon lacked only about an hour of making connection with the A. C. L. train and going directly forward to its northern destinations that night and that if this connection were made it would, in effect, give us a double daily outward bound mail. As it is now (except during the short time in summer when the shoo-fly train is run) we can reach the north only by mail a day, because as the mail lies over in Wilmington, it is the same as if it lay there until the next morning and then went off by the A. & N. C. railroad. The recent change in the schedule of the A. C. L. line has brought the trains still nearer together but connection is still missed. Our mail, when it reaches Wilmington on schedule time arrives there at 7:20 p. m. and the A. C. L. train leaves at 7 p. m. This is so close together that some way ought to be devised to keep it from being a miss.
Having missed this train our mail lies in Wilmington until nine o'clock the next morning, thirteen hours and forty minutes, and moreover this does not represent all the time lost, the night train is a fast one; the day train a slow one; so that by the time the mail reaches New York a difference of seventeen hours and thirty-three minutes exists in favor of the first train.
Suppose, for illustration, mail was started from here on the W. N. & N. train at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. It would now reach Wilmington at 7:20 p. m. and lie over that night. Then it would leave Wilmington at nine o'clock Tuesday morning and reach Washington at 11:10 that night, Baltimore at 12:48 Wednesday morning and New York at 6:53 Wednesday morning.
If it could get on Monday night's train at Wilmington the same mail would leave there at 7 o'clock Monday night, get to Washington City at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, that is it would be in Washington City exactly two hours before it now leaves Wilmington; it would get to Baltimore at 8:20 Tuesday morning—forty minutes before it now leaves Wilmington, it would arrive in Philadelphia Tuesday morning at 10:46, and in New York at 1:23 Tuesday afternoon instead of 6:53 Wednesday morning, a gain as we said of 17 hours and 23 minutes, lacking only 6 hours and 27 minutes of being a whole day gained and it might in the accomplishment of business transactions be for practical purposes a whole day gained.
If this arrangement were in effect a trucker could notify the commission merchant by that mail of the shipments he had made up to that time. The notice would reach the commission merchant before the truck and knowing what was coming he might be enabled to see his customers and get it better placed than if he knew nothing about it except as it was taken off the boat or cars. Large shippers often notify the house they ship to by telegrams, so it does not make so much difference to them, though the expense of telegraphing might in many instances be saved to them.
Every merchant and other business man knows the advantage he would gain from such a fast mail arrangement.
We have said nothing to either post-office or railroad officials about this matter, and do not know how they would view it—whether they would count the obstacles in the way, formidable or trivial, but there is one thing that occurs to us. It does not seem that a freight train can, in the very nature of things, run with regularity sufficient to guarantee any certainty of making any close connection even if a schedule were arranged for it. But if the schedules of the freight and the regular passenger train were reverse-logged that the passenger train (with a slight modification of schedule) could take the hours of the freight and carry the mail then there would be connection that could be relied upon.
Each one of our merchants and business men can judge for himself how much advantage this fast mail service would be to him and consequently how high a value he places upon it and how much effort he is willing to make to secure it.
Such improvements do not come without seeking. If we are satisfied to continue along in the same old ruts the authorities at Washington will certainly let us do so. If the effort is made, possibly with both the government and railroad officials, to bring this improved mail facility about it might be accomplished. We ought to have not only this fast mail but a constant double daily mail on both roads.

Valuable Papers Found.
The tin trunk which contained the important papers and money that were stolen from Guy S. Lane's store last Sunday night were accidentally found a few hundred yards from the store, hidden among some bushes. The money was all gone but the papers, checks, etc., were all there so far as recollected.
The trunk was open and papers were wet but not so badly damaged as to be unusable.
The parties committing the crime seemed to be afraid of papers, and left them not far from the road on the way from the store to New Berne.

A Card Expressing Appreciation—Future Movements.
ED. JOURNAL: Allow me to say to your readers of the New Berne Journal, that I am unwilling to accept so much kindness at the hands of any people and depart without expressing a profound feeling of gratitude towards them. While we very greatly regretted the absence of the pastors of the city, we more appreciated the kindness of their congregations and substitutes. As such, Rev. Mr. Stood is giving general satisfaction so young as he, and this is much to a few words, in this cultured age.
Rev. A. Ishida and myself spent some four days at the residence of Mr. J. A. Meadows, upon the invitation of his accomplished wife, whom I am sorry to say was absent for her health. But she had prepared for us, and Mr. Meadows gave us every attention and more than supplied our wants. We shall ever remember him as a big hearted and clever gentleman in every way, and well calculated to make one and all feel at home and happy about him.
Our success was largely owing to the clever way that the editor remembered us while in the faithful discharge of their office duties. We are already looking forward for another opportunity to mingle with the kind people of your community.
We lecture at Beaufort, Tuesday, July 31st and shall enjoy the very kindly extended hospitality of the pastor Rev. Mr. Bumpus, and will lecture August Wednesday night 1st at Morehead city.
At the latter place it is likely we will lecture in the Assembly Hall. If so, Mr. Ben Perry has kindly agreed to give us the lights. I presume that all who know the city know Mr. Perry, because of his noble spirit manifested to all by his gentlemanly manners.
We go from Morehead to the New Berne District conference at which place we expect to lecture and make dates with the pastors for lectures for the month of August.
Faithfully and Fraternally,
W. H. EVANS.
Trip to Asheville.
ED. JOURNAL:—Thinking you would like to hear something of the excursion to Asheville I give you a short one.
We left New Berne Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock sharp, and arrived in Asheville at about 10 o'clock p. m. same day.
The crowd was made up of about 350 people from New Berne, Greenville, Kingston, Lagrange, Goldsboro and Raleigh, and vicinity of each town. I have been on several excursions and never have seen such an orderly crowd of people did not see a drunken man nor any disturbance of any kind and it was remarked on all sides that it was the most gentlemanly and well behaved body of people that ever visited Asheville. The managers, Mr. A. N. Daniel of Wilson and Mr. R. E. Popkin of Goldsboro, deserve lots of praise for their good management and kind treatment. They are all edge gentlemen and know how to care for, and handle a large body of people, any one wishing to go to the mountains hereafter need not hesitate to go under the management of these men.
After arriving in Asheville the crowd dispersed, some to Battery Park, Swannanoa and other hotels and boarding houses which there is abundance of. Next morning the livestock had a picnic, horses and carriages were sent down and well patronized.
The scenery of Asheville and vicinity has a national celebrity. The mountains are lofty and are clothed with verdure to their tops. The roads wind in every direction revealing new sights to the eye at each turn. I could write all day on this subject, but as you do not like long communications, I will hold up after saying something about cousin Geo. Vanderhill's magnificent home which he is building about four miles from the centre of the city. I cannot describe it as it should be, I find that it is nearer complete than I expected to find. The outside looks to me to be almost finished on some portions of it, and I learned that the outside will be finished some time next year. He is also taking interest in farming and the dairy business and what hands he has on the farm is valued at $195,892
52 horses valued at 5,720
90 mules " 9,000
190 cattle " 3,740
60 hogs " 300
150 sheep " 400
Farming utensils valued at 25,100
All other personal property 10,878
After his house is completed and added to the tax list Lincoln county and the State will get a nice snug little revenue from it.
I reckon I have said enough and will close by saying we arrived home Friday night at 10 o'clock and would have been here sooner had it not been for an accident on the electric line which caused some delay.
