There are many persons who have a reputation for mannerliness and charm who would shock even their closest friends at 7 in the morning. They regularly "get up on the wrong side of the bed," and until breakfast and exercise have put them right they are too unamiable and disagreeable to deserve anybody's friendship. This sort of unamiable behavior is the result of habit of laziness. It is simply too much trouble to be agreeable early in the morning, think these early morning crosspatches. And they sulk and fume to their heart's content, blaming their bad spirits on the morning air.
The morning, of course, ought to be the time of day when we all feel freshest and in the best possible humor. To be sure, some of us awaken so hungry for breakfast that we have little thought for anything else. Little children are sometimes uncomfortable until they have something to eat, and therefore they are cross. But as soon as we graduate from the little children class we should remember—or learn—that the effort to be courteous should take precedence of the effort to satisfy our appetites for toast and coffee.
The girl who thought she was in love until she thought of sitting opposite the object of her affections at three meals a day was the sort of girl who forgets about everyday courtesy. To her the idea that a man should be as agreeable to his wife during each meal of the day's three or the year's thousand odd was absurd. She knew that at home, in the privacy of her own family, she put the cloak of courtesy aside and "acted just as she felt." If she did not like the weather she grumbled about it.
If she wanted more clothes than her allowance would buy she said so. If the food did not come up to her standards or the service struck her as inadequate she complained about these things. She neglected to say "Thank you" to servants and family. When there were guests at her home or when she was a guest in some one else's home she was the model of mannerly deportment. Her honeyed smiles and soft words were famous. But she simply ignored the demands of everyday, homely courtesy.
Children should be taught to be just as thoughtful for their brothers and sisters, their mothers and fathers and uncles and aunts and grandparents and their family's servants as they are for strangers. Sometimes, when much prodding and reminding fail to elicit a "Thank you" from a small child, the inference is strong that the small child is not in the habit of saying "Thank you" at home for the small, everyday courtesies which its elders shower upon it. More than that, it seems likely that it seldom hears its elders use these two simple but meaningful words.
For children are imitative to a surprising extent, so far as manners are concerned. The small son of a father who treats his wife with unflinching consideration is almost always courteous to his mother, and so the small daughter of a woman who is courteous to her husband is not the small daughter who says carelessly, "Oh, that's just father," when she hears her name called.
Women have a big opportunity for being courteous in their dress. A woman's family is really just as deserving of neatness and careful dressing on her part as is the public or her friends. She sometimes forgets this when she dons ragged or soiled finery at home because it is "just home" and saves her neat and orderly clothes to wear in the street and in the houses of her friends.
Punctuality.
Some one has called punctuality "the politeness of princes." It also belongs to all who would pride themselves on an adherence to rules that have the consideration of others for their basis. That is the important thing—there must be a guiding star of unselfishness if your conduct is to be of the highest type.
At a formal dinner party at which a certain hour has been mentioned the guests should arrange to arrive ten or fifteen minutes beforehand, to remove wraps, be introduced to others and to have a short talk with the host and hostess. The dinner should be announced on the minute, and guests who are late should join the party at the table after being greeted by the hostess and extending an excuse that, of course, must be a very strong one. Usually lateness at any formal affair of this kind is inexcusable.
If an invitation be extended to you by a gentleman to take you to a dance or to the theater you should arrange to be ready when he arrives. He, of course, should plan his time to arrive conveniently early. He should certainly not be kept waiting very long while a woman sees how late she can be.
Punctuality in letter writing is also an important thing. When a letter is received asking you for information answer it immediately. When a question is asked, give a polite, punctual reply. It is a sign of consideration. Stay out of bed a few minutes later in order to do this or rise a little earlier in the morning. Do not let delinquency be one of your bad habits.
It is never too late to begin to form a good habit. Is punctuality one of your habits? If not, make it one.

WILL CONTROL HOG CHOLERA

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT DISCOVERS SERUM THAT PREVENTS DISEASE.
Washington, Sept. 13.—Inauguration of a country-wide campaign to eliminate or control hog cholera is urged in a special report today by Marion Dorset, of the Bureau of Animal Industry, who estimates that during the past year about $60,000,000 worth of hogs died of the disease.
After experimenting for more than 25 years the Department of Agriculture finally discovered a serum that will prevent the disease and which is now being distributed in 30 States. This work however, Mr. Dorset says, has not resulted in a noticeable diminution of the disease in the country as a whole.
In suggesting a nation's anti-cholera campaign the report urges that the serum be used as a basis. The success of the movement, it says, depends upon the establishment of efficient State and Federal organization which will work together but which must enlist "the full co-operation and support of the farmers."
Something must be wrong. There has been no crisis in Mexico for a couple of days.
