Our old friend, Bob Glenn, promised to let us know about it in September and September is gone with no word from the Hon. Bob.

Many fathers have striven hard and even denied themselves to send their sons to college, and if the boys fail to produce a winning football team they will be ungrateful indeed.

What per cent. of otherwise sane men, do you suppose, would, under no circumstances, spend a night in a graveyard where nothing at all would likely harm them?

The end crowns all, and that old common arbiter, Time, will one day end it.—Shakespeare.

There is nothing truer. It matters not what position we occupy on this terrestrial sphere. Time will one day bring us down to the common level. Even though you may be a president, a captain of industry, a great statesman or an humble worker in the fields, the same fate awaits all. Each in the end must bow to the Grim Reaper and the once mightiest potentates of the earth will be on a par with the humblest peasant of the land—all consigned to the dust from whence they came.

One plank in the platform of the Feminists demands a single standard of morality. A noted Feminist writer frankly declares that it is not their intention to "drag" up man to the present level of woman. Logically, then, the only alternative left is to drag woman down. It has been claimed all along by the opponents of equal franchise that the result of woman's dabbling in politics would lower her in the estimation of man. This has been so stoutly denied by the suffragettes that we are not prepared for this admission on the part of the Feminists.

We agree with the Feminists, however, that there should be a single moral standard. It seems absurd that a member of one sex should be put under the ban for the same acts that a member of the other may commit with impunity. Such an unfair standard is nothing more than a relic of barbarism that has survived to the present day. Surely man is held accountable to the same degree for his sins, in the eyes of God, as woman. We do not believe the Deity discriminates between the sexes. If not, why should we?

Many a boy starts out in life handicapped because he doesn't know how to do any one thing well. Wherever he goes for employment he must start in at the very lowest wages because in his youth he never mastered any trade. If a boy will but master any one calling and become thoroughly proficient in that line, he need never be without work, as a rule. Furthermore, he can always demand good wages for proficiency as is always rewarded.

The printer's trade is not a bad one. A boy can begin that when quite small and by the time he is grown, if an apt student, he will have mastered the details and will be in a position to demand good wages. In these days a good monotype or linotype operator can make a salary of $100 to $125 per month. There are few other trades that offer such opportunities. True, the salary to begin with is not the largest, but that is the case with all the best trades.

Right now in the Journal office there is an opportunity for two or more bright boys to start in and learn the business. Some enterprising boys should grab these opportunities and work up to the top. A good reward awaits them in the future if they will but apply themselves and have patience. A great many of the top-notchers in the newspaper world started just that way. Many of our foremost editors and owners of newspapers were, at one time, printer's devils.

And besides the monetary recompense there is also an excellent education to be obtained from doing this sort of work. The enterprising boy will become a reader through constant contact with reading matter; and the way to get an education is to become a reader. It is also much better that the boy should be at work than hanging around on the streets smoking cigarettes and learning bad language. Let some father who has an idle boy give him this chance. It may mean the starting of a successful career in a fascinating business. Let the boy try it.

POINTED QUESTIONS.

"Ono Who Wants A Home" Wants Information.

Mr. Editor: Being a constant reader of the Journal and having the utmost confidence in the sincerity of its progressive editors, yet, as a new comer to this city, it has afforded me considerable amusement to read its editorials on "New Born New Bern."

Let me ask the progressive citizens of New Bern one question. Suppose an edition of the Journal circulates in some section of the North or West where, say, 25 families were seriously considering migrating to this fair city of New Bern. Without more ado, notwithstanding the outrageous freight rates, they would come to this city. Mr. Booster where would you put them? Let me know of, not twenty-five, but five houses in this city that a man of moderate circumstances can rent and make himself a home.

I am not a knocker, far from it, but for the past nine months I have been trying my best to find a comfortable home for myself and family, but so far have met with poor success.

Let the progressive citizens who have property, the boosters, and others who are advocating the enlargement, betterment and prosperity of "New Born New Bern" come forward, and show to the average man, who is the bulwark and strength of our country, come forward and show where a man of moderate circumstances can come to New Bern, provide for himself a home and in the future become an ardent advocate, of the slogan "New Born New Bern," which now seems to be, a misnomer.

Mayor A. H. Bangert and was bound over to the next term of Craven county Superior Court. Being unable to give bond for his appearance in the sum of fifty dollars the defendant was committed to jail.

Twigg is still in bad physical condition. After being arrested by a policeman he fought ferociously, and upon finding that he was no match for the officer he began biting himself and succeeded in tearing several large pieces of flesh from his hands and arms. These wounds are giving him trouble and in addition to this the drug has left him a nervous wreck.

The negro still sticks to his story that he had not taken cocaine and had only had a few drinks of whiskey. However, this statement is given not the least credence.

WILL OPERATE SPECIAL TRAINS

NORFOLK SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY WILL BRING LARGE CROWDS.

H. S. Leard, general passenger agent of the Norfolk Southern Railway Company, arrived in the city last evening for a short business visit and to look after the company's interests here.

While in conversation with Clyde Eby, president of the Eastern Carolina Fair Association Company, Mr. Leard stated that the Norfolk Southern Railway Company would offer reduced rates over its lines to New Bern during the week of the Fair and would assist in any possible way in making the event a complete success.

Wednesday and Thursday will be the "Big Days" and on those days special trains will be operated from Morehead City, Kingston and Oriental. These trains will not leave New Bern until midnight and those who come to the city on them will have an opportunity of spending the entire day and half the night.

Mr. Leard will return this morning to Norfolk, Va.

TRIED TO BE TACTFUL.

Yet Little Glory's Scheme Didn't Work Out According to Rule.

"Children," said Mr. Timkins, who had been suddenly moved to deliver a little sermon as he swallowed his second egg at breakfast, "whenever you hear anybody say anything mean or unpleasant, act as though you hadn't heard it. Talk about something else and pretend you don't hear. That's what we call tact."

When Mr. Timkins got home that afternoon from the office he observed that somebody had strewn his favorite golf clubs and all his golf balls over the front yard. Summoning his six-year-old daughter Glory, he said sternly:

"Glory, did you get all dad's golf things out and put them here where anybody could steal them?"

"Dad," replied Glory with perfect composure, "isn't it too bad our ice cream freezer's out of order, 'cause Mary can't make any ice cream?"

"Glory, did you dig up all this turf knocking those balls around?"

"And Uncle Randolph came and took mother for a ride in his auto," continued the six-year-old. "When are we going to get an auto, dad?"

"But, Glory," said Mr. Timkins, "I want to know about these golf clubs. Did you strew them around here? Why don't you answer?"

"Well, yes, I did," said the young person, "but I was trying to change the subject, 'cause I didn't want you to know that I heard something mean and unpleasant."—New York Post.

MUNICIPAL PAWNSHOPS.

In the Mont de Piets the Parisian Has a Model Institution.

The story of the Mont de Piets, the great pawnshop of Paris, reads like a romance. It is the survival of an old bank conducted by a religious order established to fight usury. This benevolent enterprise was given up to be started afresh under the direction of the government in 1801, when Napoleon was near the height of his glory. The profits go to the state and to charity—to the public aid department and to the hospitals of Paris. These charities benefit about $70,000 a year.

The storage facilities of the Mont de Piets are admirable. The Frenchman may pawn his feather bed. When it comes back to him it, as well as mattresses, blankets and all bed furnishings, has been thoroughly disinfected. The rate of interest on loans is small, and it encourages by all means the redemption of the goods on which money has been advanced. As the Mont de Piets advances money only on a conservative valuation—as a rule to the value of two-thirds of the article pawned—there is generally a surplus to go to the pawnier if the pledge is sold.

Municipal pawnshops in Berlin charge 12 per cent. in Brussels 7 per cent and in Madrid 6 per cent.

In London for small loans the pawnshop rate is from 400 to 1,000 per cent per annum.—Indianapolis News.

Too Numerous.

A darky employed as an office boy in Kentucky came to work one morning with a face that looked as though it had been run through a meat grinder.

"Henry," demanded his surprised employer, "what in the world has happened to you?"

"Well, sah, boss," explained Henry. "I got into a little argument 'at night wit' another nigger, and one thing led to another t'welf' F up and hit at him. Well, sah, it seemed lak dat irritated him. He took and blacked both of mah eyes and bit one of mah ears mighty nigh off and split mah lip and knocked two of mah teeth loose, and den he throwed me down and stamped me in de stomach. Hinst, boss, I never did git so sick of a nigger in mah life!" Saturday Evening Post.

The Ancient Coffins.

The coffins of the ancient Egyptians were made of marble and stone. The Romans used similar receptacles for their dead, and Alexander the Great is said to have been buried in a coffin of solid gold. In parts of England glass coffins have been found. The Athenian heroes were buried in coffins made of cedar, owing to its aromatic and incorruptible qualities, while the first record of wooden coffins in England dates back to the days of King Arthur. This monarch was supposed to have been buried in the hollowed trunk of a gigantic oak tree.
