HUSKY CAPTAIN OF PENNSYLVANIA TEAM

Captain Young of University of Pennsylvania.

A regular human catapult is this husky young captain of the football team of the University of Pennsylvania. Young in name, young in years and young in experience as the big man, in the big team which the big Pennsylvania university turns out each year. Young as he is in experience as a captain—this being his first appearance in that role, he looks like the kind of a football captain who can whip his team into shape, and imbue it with the spirit of "getting there."

London Jeweler in Strange Suit.
An Eastbourne jeweler is being sued in London for the ruby and emerald necklace which a lady alleges she left with him for repair and which he asserted never came into his or his assistant's possession. The sensational turn in the case, reports The Jeweler's Circular, came when a neighboring jeweler went into the witness box, and, producing an emerald and ruby necklace, deposed that it was left with him in September, 1910, by a lady who had not troubled to call for it, and that to the best of his belief that lady was the plaintiff. The case stands over; but it is strange that while the jewel case, an uncommon one, answers the description given by the plaintiff, the judge stated that the necklace was not exactly what he would have expected to see from the description given.

Voltaire used to have a test to ascertain the sense of responsibility of an individual. He would say: "Suppose you could push a button and thus obtain your dearest wish—love, fame, wealth and power—and at the same time cause the death of an unknown person in China. Would you push the button?" Would you? The answer is yes or no, without any ifs and buts. But maybe you can get a slant at your own character by thinking it over.

Tuberculosis From Dogs.
Professor Cadot, of the Veterinary school at Alfort, France, has discovered that dogs not only contract tuberculosis, but can transmit the disease to their human masters. By way of comfort he declares, however, that canine infection is extremely rare. Cats and horses, according to Professor Cadot, are infinitely less liable to tuberculosis than dogs.

PENDLETON IS A TIGER STAR

Famous Athlete Has Won University Emblem Five Times—Was Football Captain Last Season.

Of the 1,500 undergraduates in Princeton university, only 44 have the privilege of wearing the varsity athletic P, according to statistics published there by the local athletic association. As freshmen are not allowed to compete on any varsity team there and as a large number of students are excluded for various other reasons, the statistics show that Princeton has only 900 men from which to draw candidates for her 16 varsity teams, and this number is cut-down further by a rule which prevents a student from being a member of more than two teams in the same year.

The distinction of having received the varsity letter more times than any other man in college is borne by Talbot T. Pendleton of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., the captain of the football team during the last season.

Talbot Pendleton of Princeton.

He prepared for college at Alexandria, Va., and has won the honor three times in football and twice in baseball. As he is a sprinter of unusual ability, he undoubtedly would have won a track P had he not been prevented from running by the two sport rule. The only other student now in college to have won the letter in more than one sport is Hobart H. A. Baker of Philadelphia. Baker has two football Ps and also the letter in hockey.

New Fight Club.

Denver is becoming the fight center of the United States. Two boxing clubs have been organized within a short time.

Nicknames of Noblemen.

Reference the other day by John Alexandra to the late duke of Sutherland as "Strath" has brought out that many English leaders bear remarkable nicknames. The marquis of Crewe is known throughout society as "Robin," doubtless because of his fondness some years ago for scarlet waistcoats. No explanation, however, is forthcoming for the name "Blue Monkey," commonly applied to the Marquis de Soveral. It is said that this extraordinary nickname was bestowed on the former Portuguese ambassador by King Edward, his intimate friend. Lord Lonsdale answers to the name of "The Groom," while another equally well known peer is known as "Porker."

Perpetual Error.

A printer's error in perpetuity! How many of tomorrow's congregations know that, when joining in the "Te Deum," they are carrying on, in one phrase of that song of praise, an ancient blunder? "Make them to be numbered with thy saints," so it runs. And so, when manuscript copies gave place to printed books, was it rendered in the mediæval Latin then in use, "numerali"—"to be numbered," as we say in English. Transpose the first and the third letters and you get "munerari," "to be rewarded." Which is what all prayer-books would be printing today, and congregations singing, were it not for that fifteenth century printer's error.

Stationer.

The name stationer, used to designate one who sells paper, ink, etc., came to be so used in the following way: Originally there were two classes of booksellers, those who had only carts in which they peddled their wares about the street, and those who had shops or stalls. These latter were distinguished from their wandering brethren because they remained stationary, and because of the fact that they did not travel about they were able to sell other goods besides books, such as pens, paper, etc., and in this manner the articles known as being sold especially by stationers became known as stationery.
