

In The Social Realm

A TIP TO MUSIC TEACHERS.

Oh, say,
You people who play,
Or sing,
Or do anything,
In a musical way,
Either at your own homes,
Or when you visit where
The entertainment offered
Is chiefly music fare,
Say,
Won't you please get the way
Of always telling listeners
The title of the piece
So that their pleasure in it
You may that much increase,
And likewise stop their saying,
For which they have good cause:
"Oh, that was perfectly lovely;
Please tell us what it was?"
Wow!
Will you mind that now,
And not let the ignorant grope around,
Unguided, in a jungle of sound?

BRILLIANT SOCIAL AFFAIR AT MAYSVILLE.

A wedding of interest to the many friends of the contracting parties was consummated at Maysville Thursday night when Miss Lila Jenkins, a charming and accomplished young lady of that place became the bride of R. S. Weeks, a prominent merchant of Maysville. The ceremony was performed at the Baptist church by Rev. J. R. Bifbro, of this city, and was witnessed by a large concourse of friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Weeks will make their home at Maysville.

NOT PEPPERMINT BUT STRONG

Illiterate Man Was Not to Be Convinced That He Had Really Smelt Nothing.

At a certain northern Chautauque gathering last summer a lecturer, at the opening of his address, came to the front of the platform and took a small vial from his pocket. "My friends," he said, "before I begin my address, I wish to test the ventilation of this auditorium. I am going to pour out this oil of peppermint. When the odor reaches you, raise your hands, so that I may see how rapidly it travels."

He emptied the vial, and almost instantly several hands on the front benches went up; then farther back the hands began to go up by the dozens, until at last the people in the last seats caught the odor, and raised their hands.

The lecturer thanked his auditors, and went on with his address. When he had almost finished, and was speaking of the effect of the imagination on our senses, he paused, and said with a smile that it was only clear water he had poured out of his vial.

The audience had been caught so neatly that even those who had held up their hands joined in the laugh. But one illiterate fellow, whose hand had gone up more promptly and emphatically than any other, did not quite understand.

"What they laughin' at?" he asked, audibly, of the man sitting beside him. "Why," explained the man, "you did not smell peppermint at all; it was only imagination." "Well," said the other, "I knowed it was somethin' that smelled mighty strong."—Youth's Companion.

Warned of Coming Death.

The story of the Lytleton ghost is one of the best of English family legends. Thomas Lord Lytleton dreamed one night that a bird flew into his room, which changed into a woman in white, and bade him prepare to die. "I hope not soon," he said; "not in two months." "Yes, in three days," replied the specter. He told of the dream at breakfast next morning (Thursday, November 25, 1779). On Saturday he was in excellent health, and thought he would "bilk the ghost." A few minutes before midnight on that day, just as he was undressing, he fell back dead.

One man in the west, according to report, is trying to invent some apparatus for buttoning women's waists up the back in lieu of calling upon poor hubby to perform the duty. Why not use a carpet stretcher?

Tariff Fraud in the Open.

One ancient and vicious tariff plea has dropped into the background during recent discussions of the Underwood bill. This is the plea for "protection to American labor."

American labor never had any protection save the price of a steerage ticket from Europe. There never has been anything, save the cost of ocean passage, to keep the most underpaid peasants of Europe and western Asia from entering into competition with American workmen at every point. American workers have sold their labor to a free trade market, and bought supplies in a "protected" market, carefully cornered by trusts.

U. S. Steel is Cheerful.

Judge Gary writes to Chairman Oscar Underwood to tell him that the United States Steel corporation is to resume work at once on the great steel and wire plant at Corey, Ala., upon which building operations were suspended two years ago when the first Underwood tariff bill was framed. This incident points a business fact more plainly than volumes of prosperity speeches. The biggest corporation in America does not look upon the Wilson-Underwood tariff bill as the harbinger of ruin and the destroyer of commercial welfare. Why should any "little fellow" feel bound to do so?

Senator Warren's Brilliant Idea.

Senator Warren's declaration that the dominant note of the party in power is "down with the farmer" indicates that he is positively shrewd-holmeslike in his perspicacity. What shrewder political move could the Democrats make than to put the farmer down and out so as no longer to be burdened with the support of the agricultural vote? Senator Warren is probably the greatest little lawyer bare of motives that is now included in the senate's widely varied assortment of members.

If living in a flat is degenerating enough to prompt people to draw cubist pictures, what is riding in street cars?

Blind man of London trims hedge better than seeing companions. The feat appeals strongly to self-shavers of normal vision.

Shamrock IV. will not be so bad, but what will the poor headline writers do when Shamrock XXXVIII comes over?

Strange that just the time when you hope the weather man is wrong he makes good on his forecast, and when you hope he is right he is wrong.

NEAR DEATH BY SMOTHERING

But Husband, With Aid of Cardui, Effects Her Deliverance.

Draper, N. C.—Mrs. Helen Dalton, of this place, says: "I suffered for years, with pains in my left side, and would often almost smother to death."

Medicines patched me up for a while but then I would get worse again. Finally, my husband decided he wanted me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, so he bought me a bottle and I began using it. It did me more good than all the medicines I had taken.

I have induced many of my friends to try Cardui, and they all say they have been benefited by its use. There never has been, and never will be, a medicine to compare with Cardui. I believe it is a good medicine for all womanly troubles.

For over 50 years, Cardui has been relieving woman's sufferings and building weak women up to health and strength.

If you are a woman, give it a fair trial. It should surely help you, as it has a million others.

Get a bottle of Cardui to-day.
