

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF LAND.

Under and by virtue of a certain mortgage deed executed by Maxwell Bros. Lumber Company to Amos F. Becton on the 4th day of May, 1906, as appears of record in the office of the Register of Deeds of Craven county, N. C., in Book 159, at page 422, default having been made in the payment of the bond secured by said mortgage, the undersigned, Amos F. Becton, mortgagee, will, on Saturday, January 17, 1914, at about twelve o'clock m., at the Court House door in New Bern, N. C., offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash the following described land, which is that mentioned and conveyed by the said mortgage and is situated in Craven county, N. C., and in No. 3 Township, and is more particularly described as follows:

Being the first piece or parcel of land sold and conveyed on May 4, 1906, by the said Amos F. Becton to L. R. Maxwell, J. B. Maxwell, A. J. Maxwell, H. G. Maxwell and C. C. Maxwell, partners trading under the name and style of Maxwell Bros. Lumber Company, and the same being a part of the Morris lands and the Clark entry and the Simpson entry, which entry is also known as the Wadsworth patent, the same being specifically described in the said deed made by Amos F. Becton as aforesaid. This 11th day of December, 1913.

RAM'S HORN BROWN

There is a lot of preaching being done that the devil likes to hear.

The man who does the least for the church often tries the hardest to run it.

It will pay to try praising your wife awhile—even if it does frighten her at first.

It doesn't take many statistics to prove that the man who lives wrong can't die right.

You will be very tired before you find the man who has never killed some goose that laid the golden egg.

There are women who might as well have married a hatrack or a doormat, for all the help they get from their husbands toward making a home.

Could Noah have had his way there are probably a good many animals that have turned out pretty well that would never have been taken into the ark.

The backslider likes the preaching that wouldn't hit the side of a house, while the true disciple is delighted with the truth that brings him to his knees.

SO WHY FRET?

Are your wages too small? In Europe people are content with making a living.

Are you hungry? The children of India are starving for want of a crust of bread.

Are you cold? The soldiers of Valley Forge walked barefoot on the ice and snow.

Are the lights too dim? David wrote his psalms by the light of a smoky torch.

Are you sick? Suppose you had lived two thousand years ago, when sickness was fatal.

LUXURY OF A TROPIC SEA.

Bathing in January With the Water at 90 Degrees.

Those who live in temperate and cold climates do not realize the effect of the sun's direct heat on the sea. The luxury of bathing in an ocean that has a temperature of 108 degrees, writes Mr. E. J. Banfield in "My Tropic Isle," is not for the multitude who crowd the cities that the sun touches triumphantly and aslant.

On Nov. 21, 1909, we bathed at Moe-Jee, north Queensland, in shallow water, on the edge of an area of denuded coral reef fully two miles long by a mile broad. For three hours a considerable portion of the reef had been exposed to the glare of the sun, and the incoming tide flooded the stored up heat from coral and stones and sand.

The first plunge provoked an exclamation of amazement, for the water was several degrees hotter than the air, and it was the hottest hour—3 o'clock in the afternoon—of a very hot day. No thermometer was at hand to register the actual temperature of the water, but subsequent tests at the same spot under similar conditions proved that the surface stratum of about one foot was at 108 degrees F., from four to six degrees hotter than the air. Below that the temperature of the water seemed ordinary and corresponded with that of the water a hundred yards from the shore.

On another day, Jan. 10, 1910, between noon and 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the sea, scientifically tested, was found heated to 90 degrees. With the bulb buried in the sand six feet from the water's edge, the mercury rose to 112 degrees very quickly and remained stationary.

PLUCK THE FOREIGNER.

That Appears to Be the Patriotic Motto in Switzerland.

A foreign resident in Switzerland was fined 10 francs because his little girl had plucked three buttercups growing on a piece of land on which she and some half dozen children had for years been accustomed to play. The land had recently changed hands, and its new owner had put up a notice forbidding the plucking of flowers. A passing gendarme had found the children fragrant delicto and had forthwith instituted proceedings against the little foreigner while letting the natives go scot free.

The child's father appealed against the sentence and by dint of hard fighting, which entailed, of course, expense, forced the higher court to reduce the fine from 10 francs to 3-4, e. one franc for each buttercup.

When I tried to learn the ways and whereabouts of this case I was told by a Swiss that one-half of every fine levied goes to the gendarme who reports the offense for which it is levied, and also the Swiss gendarme cannot fairly be expected to be quite as alert in taking proceedings against natives as against foreigners.

Further, I was told by an American that in Switzerland all foreigners rank as Egyptians and that the one Scriptural injunction that is faithfully obeyed there is that which ordains that Egyptians shall be spoiled.—From "The Latter Day Swiss" in Cornhill Magazine.

Proven Himself Competent.

An English nobleman engaged a tall and powerful Highlander to act as gamekeeper on his estate. Having been a considerable time at his post and not having caught any poachers, the nobleman suspected his gamekeeper of carelessness. So one dark night he disguised himself and went out with a gun to pouch on his own grounds. He had fired only one or two shots when he was suddenly pounced upon from behind and his gun wrenched away. Then kicks and blows were showered upon him until he fell down half insensible. The Highlander then walked away quietly, and when the nobleman recovered sufficiently he crawled home and took to his bed for two weeks. He has now no doubts whether the man can perform his duty or not.

Ever Take It?

"Merely another way of saying that it jars you like the step that isn't there, eh?"—Houston Post.
