TAKE UP ENGLISH CUSTOM

Serving of Afternoon Tea Has Become General With American Hostesses —Repeat Made Simple.

The custom of serving tea has become almost as general with Americans nowadays as with their English relatives. The difference in large cities especially is that tea hour is frequently spent at fashionable tea rooms or hotel restaurants. The various occupations or pastimes which attract women to the shopping districts or the theaters in the same neighborhood incline women to "drop in" for light refreshment near where they chance to be. At the large hotels there is likely to be a table set with tempting confections, spun sugar baskets and flowers that delight the eye, while the pastries are displayed.

In the home the matter of serving tea for the family group or the casual caller is a simple hospitality easy to adopt. With a tea kettle and an alcohol lamp the beverage may be brewed in a few moments. Lemon, sliced, and loaf sugar are the general accompaniments, and only wafers that may be bought need be added. It is considered better form nowadays not to serve hearty or "mussy" dainties for callers wearing gloves.

The daintiness of appointments is essential. A large mahogany or wicker tray, in lieu of a silver one, holds the service, which is brought into the room at the time of serving. Small stands with two or three shelves for holding as many plates of crackers or buns are a convenience for serving. It is also good form to use small linen or damask napkins smaller than are used for luncheon or breakfast. These may be hemstitched or scalloped and are in the best style when ornamented with a small embroidered initial.

WORN UNDER THIN CLOUSES

Dainty Accessory Made on the Lines of the Old-Fashioned Corset Cover, No Longer in Favor.

There are a number of dress accessories which a clever woman can put together with her own fingers which will smarten a wardrobe wonderfully—things which are very costly if bought in the store. Among these are the fancy under waists made on the lines of the old-fashioned, tight-fitting corset cover. These under waists are very necessary with thin blouses, and not only must they be very decorative, but a support as well, as flimsy net and chiffon blouses demand something to give line to the figure.

These smart waists are made of heavy, coarse net, and bones are set in a casing at the seams. They reach just to the waist line. Although the ready-made ones come without sleeves, one may add the little sleeve cap which is so useful in disguising the presence of the shield.

Irish lace is a favored trimming to outline of the neck, and is set in medallions across the shoulders and bust. They may be made of heavy butchers' linen trimmed with chun or torchon lace. Others may be embroidered in eyelet design. They should fasten in front.

GOWN FOR THE DEBUTANTE

Nothing Could Be More Appropriate Than This Dainty Afternoon Frook of Shadow Lace.

The spirit of youth with its elusive charm has been the inspiration of the designer of this dainty afternoon frook of shadow lace. Bodice and skirt are worn over a white slip, the sleeves are left transparent. The bodice is extremely plain, having for sole trimming a double frill "val" lace edging, running directly down the center front and held by a row of pearls. The elbow sleeves have a narrow ruffle of lace, as finish, joined to the sleeve by fine seaming, and the neck is finished by a narrow lace-edged collar of fine batiste. The skirt has a triple flounce of the lace. Girdle and neck bow are of soft white satin.

Careful Manicuring. When the nails have grown sufficiently long to be filed it is necessary that they be treated carefully and gently for quite some time, in order that the tender cuticle and nails are not broken during the work. A small, thin, flexible file should be used in filing, and I would advise a girl who is trying to rejuvenate her fingers to use only home made preparations on them.

If the finger nails will break in spite of all that is being done for them, they should then be anointed thickly at night with the following paste: One-quarter of an ounce of pistachio oil, eight grains of fine table salt, eight and a quarter grains each of powdered resin and alum and 20 grains of white wax; melt the wax over a water bath, then stir in the oil, remove from the bath and beat in the powders, which should have been previously sifted together.

"Tango" Petticoat. Quite the newest thing in the petticoat line is the "Tango." It is made of two widths, the seams at the sides, skirt to the knee.

In fitting lenses its necessary to "Hit a very small target." Most anyone can hit a barn. J. O. Baxter, Jeweler and Optician.
