GHOSTS.

They call you cold New England,
But underneath your snow
Is blood as red as roses
That in your gardens blow.

The God that lights your forests
With torch of cardinal flower,
Forbids that ever the Puritan
Escape his crimson hour.

The flame that skims brown furrows—
The scarlet tanager's breast,
Is sign to preacher and plowman
Of dreams that haunt their rest.

When witch and warlock perished
By faggot, scaffold and tree,
Their torturers slew their bodies,
But set their spirits free!

In freedom gliding, gloating,
Through the haunts their children claim
The swollen ghosts of the wicked
Grow fat on new-wrought shame.

The old, sweet lingers,
The demon of uncontrol,
And madness creeps and crouches
In every haggard soul.

And he who held moon revels
In Salem forests deep,
Well loves his hypocrite servants,
Nor seeks to spoil their sleep.

They call you cold New England
But surely even your snow
Is drift not of ice, but of ashes,
To guard the flames below!

"WITHIN THE LAW" PLEASED NEW BERNIANS

BYARD VEILLERS ABSORBING PLAY MAKES GOOD HERE.

Smokeless powder and a Maxim silencer were introduced for the first time last night at the Masonic theatre in Bayard Veillers absorbing play "Within the Law." This, in itself, was somewhat of a drawing attraction, but the audience, and it was one of the largest of the season, were more than glad that they attended for the piece proved to be one of the best ever seen in New Bern. The stage settings were perfect and the acting on the part of each member of the cast was incomparable.

The plot of the play centres around Mary Turner, a young girl who was wrongfully accused of theft and sent to prison. After serving her sentence she came out with the sole intention of "getting even" with the man who sent her there. This she did, but each time she kept "within the law," eluding the watchful eyes of the police and each time leading them up to the crucial moment and then letting them know that she was beyond their grasp.

Miss Mary Gray took the part of Mary Turner and her acting was beyond the slightest criticism. Joseph Cusack as Edward Gilder, son of Richard Gilder, who caused Mary Turner to be sent to prison, showed his ability as an actor and won frequent encores from the audience. As Agnes Lynch, Mary Turner's companion, Miss Frances Randolph, convulsed the audience with mirth a number of times and also handled her part well in the tense moments. Taken as a whole the entire cast was good in fact far better than many seen here in the past. Combined with a play of real merit and a cast of exceptional ability, it is little wonder that those who saw "Within the Law" last night were profuse in their praise of the production.

Last Word in Mid-Season Millinery

THE soft rather high crowned turban made of velvet and trimmed with wired moire ribbon has a premonition of spring modes in it. First, it is considerably taller than the average turban, and it is not brought quite so far down over the head. The crown is round, but made so by draping not by shaping in the frame. The standing trimming is very tall and, if we may credit rumors, will be followed in the early spring by even taller decorations for which it is preparing the way.

There is a wreath of standing fancy feathers almost concealed by the draping about the crown, and a little bouquet of small flowers at the side, set flat against the velvet, near the brim edge.

This is a beautiful model and a sensible hat for midwinter. For early spring, the chances are that the hat will run more to brim, and that the poise on the head will be changed, because it must be changed in the event of eccentric brims becoming the vogue.

If at this season it is necessary to supply oneself with something new in millinery, the pattern hat shown in the picture may be faithfully followed for design, and an up-to-date and up-to-the-last-minute style be assured to the wearer.

Many smartly dressed women are wearing soft, light falling veils such as that pictured here. Often they are of black, and often they are in colors. A color matching the gown or hat is considered chic.

There is no gainsaying the fascination of these veils when well adjusted. They are planned about the hat usually and thrown back. But one may see numbers of them on the promenade that are worn over the face.

A hat especially good for southern tourists, where more protection for the eyes is needed, is shown in the picture, with one of the fine, black lace veils thrown over it. For northern climates a panama hat is a good choice, but for a shape which must do duty for traveling, and faces all kinds of climates and weather, a hat made of taffeta is ideal. Often silk is combined with a straw or silk braid brim, and oftener with a brim of hemp.

The trimming of this model consists of several rather large, half-blown silk roses. One is posed at the left side on the brim at the base of the crown and two others at the back on the under brim. Small flowers in wreaths, placed next the hair, under the brims in new shapes promise to be very popular. In fact, the prophecy is that with ruffled taffeta gowns and new furbelows coming in, millinery will go back to ribbons and flowers for trimmings. It seems the more practical and business like the American woman grows, the more she likes pretty and feminine frivolities in apparel—for which let us all be duly thankful.

FAVORITE AMONG FRENCH COIFFURES IS THE CASQUE

AMONG those coiffures which are classed in a style known as the "Casque," one is illustrated here which seems to be much favored by French women. It is a good choice for the woman who has only a scant supply of hair; but is by no means confined to women with whom nature has failed to be generous in this particular. For the casque coiffure is a style that is liked for itself and not because it gives the effect of abundance where there is really dearth.

Where there is not much hair all of it must be waved to dress it in this style successfully. Otherwise the hair is to be parted off and combed away from the crown of the head, all around, and the hair parted off is waved.

Waving may be accomplished in several ways. The curling iron method for those who have time is most comfortable. It will not hurt the hair unless done too frequently. A second good method is that of rolling strands of hair, slightly dampened on kid rollers over night, and a third is to weave it back and forth on a heavy hair pin or a curler made for the purpose. But it may prove somewhat uncomfortable done in this way.

If the hair is clean, well brushed and slightly dampened before curling, it will usually stay in wave for several days, so that one must be willing to spend time with the curling iron or resort to one of the other methods occasionally. Curly hair will keep in wave a week.

When the hair has been waved, a portion of it is laid in a wide hat coil at the top of the crown and pinned to place. The remainder of the hair is combed over this, and all the ends fastened under at the base of the skull. There is no obignon, no coils or braids. The hair, in fact, makes a cap which fits loosely over the head.

The front is parted at one side. Sometimes a short light fringe is trimmed over the forehead—and sometimes the brow is left uncovered. One may arrange the front hair to suit individual taste and in the manner that is most becoming. The light fringe is fashionable and if well managed, it is pretty. Nothing is so beautiful as a smooth and uncovered brow, but beautiful brows are rather rare.

Many new coiffures are very high, and short curls are coming in. But with the advent of new styles there is more variety than for some time past, and no one can tell which style will prove the popular favorite.

New Bern People Have Absorbed Proof Of Deeds At Home.

It's not words but deeds that prove true merit.

It's not words but deeds that prove the deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills. For New Bern kidney sufferers, Have made their local reputation. Proof lies in the testimony of New Bern people.

R. A. Henderson, 136 George street New Bern, N. C., says: "I suffered from a dull pain across my loins, with an extreme lameness in my back. I also had inflammation of the bladder and the passages of the kidney secretions pained me. Doan's Kidney Pills procured at the Bradham Drug Co., removed the lameness and pain and improved my condition in every way."

When Mr. Henderson was interviewed some years later he said: "I willingly confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I have been free from backache and kidney complaint since I took this remedy. You are welcome to continue the publication of my statement."

Diarrhoea Quickly Cured. "I was taken with diarrhoea and Mr. Yorks, the merchant here, persuaded me to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. After taking one dose of it I was cured. It also cured others that I gave it to," writes M. E. Gebhart, Oriole, Pa. That is not at all unusual. An ordinary attack of diarrhoea can almost invariably be cured by one or two doses of this remedy. For sale by all dealers. (A)
