Extra $25 Cash Bonus And Big 'Club Vote Offer' Spur On News Leader Subscription Contestants

SENDING 60-FOOT WIRE—Miss Claudia Cannady, (seated) manager of the local Western Union office, sends a 50-word telegram of good wishes, signed by about 800 students and townspeople, to the Carolina football team at South Bend, Indiana, on Friday night before Saturday's Notre Dame-UNC football game. Looking on are Mrs. Mary Catherine Roberson, (center), also of the Western Union staff, and Lee Strickland, UNC coed from Atlanta who was in charge of the public telegram for the sponsoring University Club. The 60-foot-long night letter wire took about three hours to send because of some transmitting difficulties. It was wrapped in a Carolina Blue ribbon, specially mailed to South Bend by Miss Cannady for this purpose, and delivered to the team the next day just before game time. News Leader Photo.

Note To Subscribers

Your News Leader should be delivered on YOUR DOORSTEP by 6 p.m. each Monday and Thursday. The carrier boys have been directed to deliver each paper on the doorstep, and not in the yard or street.

If your paper is not delivered by 6 p.m. on the days of issue, or is not delivered properly, please telephone the News Leader office, 8-444, between 6 and 6:30 p.m. and the circulation manager will arrange for prompt delivery.

Scout Leaders Installed; Local Men Are Honored

J. M. Foushee Becomes New Head Of District

Nearly one-hundred Scout leaders and their wives, representing every Scouting area in Orange County, turned out for the district's annual "Ladies Night" dinner meeting held on Thursday evening at Camp New Hope.

The session was presided over by G. Paul Carr of Hillsboro, district chairman. The Rev. Henry Stokes, pastor of the Carrboro Baptist Church, gave the invocation. Jimmy Wallace, Scoutmaster of Chapel Hill's Troop Nine, led in group singing.

In the recognition phase of the program, a feature of each annual meeting, Ernest Bell, Scoutmaster of Troop 438 of Hillsboro, received the Scoutmaster's Key. The award, one of the highest available to adult leaders in Scouting, was made by Lee M. Brooks of Chapel Hill, member of the Executive Board of the Oconeechee Council, of which the Orange District is a part.

James E. Wadsworth of Chapel Hill presented Instructor's Certificates to Lindsay Neville and Dr. William Straghan of Chapel Hill and Vance Icenhour of Hillsboro.

New district officers for 1955 were installed by Spurgeon P. Gaskin of Raleigh, Council Scout Executive. They are: John M. Foushee of Chapel Hill, Chairman; James E. Wadsworth of Chapel Hill, Vice Chairman (re-elected); Ira Ward of Hillsboro, Vice Chairman; and Frank Umstead of Chapel Hill, Commissioner.

W. D. "Bill" Campbell of Southern Pines, Council President, spoke briefly. A feature of the meeting was the presentation of Scouting slides by Charles Milner of Chapel Hill and Richard Davis of Hillsboro.

TERRY STAPLETON

Troop 9 Scouts Are 'Prepared'

Boy Scouts of Troop Nine showed themselves well "prepared," in keeping with the Scout Motto, when an emergency arose on a camping trip this past weekend.

Terry Stapleton, new member of the troop and son of Mrs. Mary Alice Simmons of Valley Park, suffered a neck injury when another boy ran into him last Saturday night during a game. Eighteen Troop Nine Scouts were encamped in the woods several miles north of town near Calvander.

The boys, under the direction of Assistant Scoutmaster Tex Burleson, improvised a stretcher and carried Terry a couple of miles to the highway while Jimmy Jamerson and Bobby Maddry rushed to a phone to call an ambulance. An x-ray at Memorial Hospital showed there were no broken bones. See SCOUTS 'PREPARED,' Page 8

The Tipoff: How To Spell 'Gulley' . . .

Seven-Year-Old Buccaneer Finds 'Pirate's Loot' Near Home; Draws 'Treasure Map' For It

By DAN WALLACE
Seven-year-old buccaneer Mike Casey knew just what to do when he found a basket of jewelry hidden in a field last week.

Mike, who is the son of Prof. and Mrs. Ralph Casey, discovered the basket while taking a backyard shortcut from his house at 306 Ransom street to the home of a friend on West University drive. He was following a hedge row when he spotted the basket, partly hidden by leaves, in the bottom of a gulley.

A find that would delight any young buccaneer, the basket contained silver bracelets, rings a camera, a shiny leather photograph case and souvenir articles. The visit to his friend forgotten, Mike took the "loot" to a nearby lot and hid it in some weeds "taller than I was." He hurried home to draw a treasure map.

When he asked his mother how to spell "gulley" and some neighbors' names, her curiosity was aroused, and upon being questioned he explained that he was drawing a treasure map. She asked, "what kind of treasure are you looking for?"

"I'm not looking for any treasure," Mike replied, "I'm hiding some."

With her interest sparked, Mrs. Casey asked, "then what kind of treasure are you hiding?" Mike, like any other buccaneer who is proud of his exploits, talked freely, but not without excitement.

"I found a lot of jewelry stuff—I found a bracelet in it and a whole lot of other junk!"

This was becoming more than interesting, Mrs. Casey said, and after explaining the facts of property ownership, she sent him after the "loot" and then they both went knocking on neighbors' doors trying to locate the owner.

No one claimed the basket of jewelry, and it appeared that none of the neighborhood kids were involved. Mrs. Casey then called the police and turned the case over to them.

A spokesman for the police department reported today that the missing owner is yet to be found.

The basket is a souvenir-type shopping basket of woven wood-strips, and the bracelets, rings, pins—none of which have precious stones—and the other articles seem of the type found in souvenir shops.

Some of the pieces are from England, Guatemala, the Orient, and the U.S. Among the articles is a ticket envelope from the Dutch air lines, and a signet ring engraved with the name "Fuller" and the word "dymaxion."

When found, the basket had its lid broken off and the contents were apparently unweathered. Some articles were wrapped in tissue paper and others were in cardboard boxes. None showed signs of exposure to rain or sun.

The police have no clue as to the owner of the jewelry, and one officer thought that these articles may have been discarded by someone.

FIRST PIANO QUARTET

The First Piano Quartet will appear in concert on Thursday at 8 p. m. in Memorial Hall.

HOMECOMING PARADE—Twenty units, headed by the Chapel Hill High School band, made up Friday afternoon's gala CHHS Homecoming parade, which marched through downtown Chapel Hill and Carrboro. The Dramatics Club float (top left) featured a Pilgrims and Indians theme on the prescription for beating the Oxford Exchange Red Devil. In the center inset is Martha Hubbard, CHHS Freshman and Homecoming queen; The jivey football field float of the Rhythm and Blues Club, graced by a large part of its membership, is shown at the top right; and (lower left) another attractive float was that of Hilllife, the school yearbook, featuring football player Ruffin Harville and cheerleader Sharon Sullivan breaking through the front cover of the annual. The senior class had the smallest and almost the loudest entry—a tiny gas-powered scooter piloted by upperclassman Don Fowler carrying his own Homecoming queen Sammy Ray in his caboose. At the lower right is the geometrical entry of Miss May Marshbanks' Math IV class, showing students Alma Dykstra, Eddie McKnight, and Barry Hughes. "It's Plane, We're Solid," says the math students geometrical sign slogan. News Leader Photo Layout
