

Weekend In Review—The Community In Pictures

PONIES AT PICNIC—Favorite recreation for the children at Saturday afternoon's annual employees picnic for Carrboro Mills was the pony ride. Above, Don Smith of Carrboro leads while Don Neighbors rides.

READY FOR A RINGER—Fletcher Maynor of Carrboro took a good look through his horseshoe as the camera shutter snapped, then pitched a ringer. About 500 persons attended the yearly picnic outing held on the mill grounds.

IN CHOW LINE—Getting their plates of brunswick stew in one of the serving lines set up at the Carrboro Mills picnic are Mrs. Bertha Clark and her son, Melvin. Carrboro church women prepared and served the meal.

RAINS CAME—Half-way through the serving of the meal, a sudden downpour sent the picnic diners scurrying for cover. Above, crowded but content, a part of the group is shown in the rain.

TUGGING—AT CLEARWATER—Members of the Durham Lifesaving Crew, assisted by Sheriff's Deputy Earl Bush (foreground) tug on the grappling hook rope to haul a sunken raft float out of Clearwater Lake yesterday afternoon during their search for some of the personal effects of Mrs. Alva Matthews Tew, whose body was found in the Lake last month. News Leader Photo

OOPS—SLIPPED!—They almost had the water-logged raft up on the land when the grappling hook slipped on the rotten wood and sent the pullers on the tow line tumbling on the muddy beach. During their three-hour search the lifesaving crew hauled in the raft, a length of rusty old piano wire, a bunch of stumps and driftwood, and an old blanket, but nothing that would shed further light on the mysterious death of the Tew woman. News Leader Photo

GRAPPLES—Tossing out grappling irons in their search for the body of Mrs. Alva Matthews Tew in Clearwater Lake yesterday are members of the Durham Lifesaving Crew, standing almost at the spot where the body was found last week. The level of the lake was lowered about 30 feet of shoreline at this spot. News Leader Photo

STALWARTS FOR CAROLINA—Tom and Jack Maulsby of Chapel Hill, shown above with Carolina Line Coach Marvin Bass, will be big guns in the forward wall of the Tar Heel football squad this fall when the season opens against Oklahoma here on September 24. News Leader Photo

LUCKY BREAK—Bobby Kirk's late-model Buick auto was damaged only slightly on Thursday morning as it rolled off from its parking space in front of the Colonial Stores in the Glen Lennox Shopping Center, bounced through an open spot in the outside parking lane, down the bank across Highway 54 and nosed up into the ditch. The car narrowly missed hitting other vehicles in the parking lot and passing cars on the highway. Above, it's shown being hauled in by a local wrecker. News Leader Photo

VIEWING 'MOUSE' MODEL—Looking over a model of the "MOUSE," the government's proposed minimum orbital unnamed satellite of the earth, are Morehead Planetarium Manager A. F. Jenzano (kneeling, foreground), Prof. Norman Mattis of the University English Department, and Morris S. Davis, Planetarium, the model of the man-made moon which American scientists will attempt to place in the heavens in 1957 will be on display during the run of the Planetarium production of "Satellites," at least through next week.

BRUSHING UP ON PASSING—The Chapel Hill High School Wildcats will be working on their passing—and particularly on their pass defense—during practice sessions this week in preparation for Friday night's first home game of the season against Dunn. Above, Duck Ray snaps a buttonhook to Les Hoentzschel as Coach Bob Culton looks on. News Leader Photo

MISS NORTH CAROLINA—The fourth-place winner in the Miss America competition at Atlantic City this past weekend, Mrs. Roland Giduz of Raleigh, is shown as she posed for photographers at the beach on the morning after she was crowned Miss North Carolina on July 16. Mrs. Roland Giduz snapped this candid shot of her husband posing the beauty queen for the Carolinas Press-Record competition.