ESORORITY DEBS

Estimated 770 Women Enrolled Here

Total coed enrollment for the UNC fall term has reached an approximate total of 770, including 514 undergraduates.

This figure falls short of the female enrollment for last year's spring semester by 248 women. McIver Dormitory houses 116 of the ladies, Alderman 115, Carr 65, Kenan 130, Smith 55, Spencer 86, and the Nurse's

Dormitory 203. Fifty-five of the junior coeds will be reclining for the night at a height only two and one half feet from the ceiling on the top of double decker

6,500 Students Are Expected At University

With the start of fall classes today, enrollment at UNC is expected to rise to more than 6,500 men and women. Last spring's enrollment was 5,927.

Official figures, showing a complete braakdown of enrollment, are usually available a week after classes start.

Opening day found men in 14 of the 19 male dormitories sleep ing three in a room. Coeds in more than 50 dormitory rooms are grouped in threes.

More than 1,300 freshmen and 600 transfer students received their first glimpse of Carolina life last week at fall orientation and Freshman Camp.

At orientation assebblies, Chancellor Robert House urged ney students to "find the way to excellence in yourself, in your associttes and in the subpect matter itself. Here the real test comes whether you are of university capacity and spirit, or whether you are not interested."

Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver told students of the importance of student government as "the proving ground of character and leadership." Weaver cited the traditional presence on the campus of the "indispensable condition of learning: freedom of in quiry, freedom of expression, freedom to differ, freedom from orthodoxy, freedom of students to think, decide and act for themselves all under the influence of direct ed study, devoted teaching and a noble tradition.'

WITHOUT

STRAINED SMILE

We Say

Welcome!

So your summer was a fantasy of sunshine and swimming. Or perhaps it was marked by hectic weeks at camp. Or maybe, in your special memory book you've recorded moonlight and the beach. Perhaps your summer meant bright flowers and happiness . . . or perhaps you remember broken romances and rain. Maybe your summer meant hard work or colorful travel travel to the corner store or across the continent or across the sea. No matter how the summer influenced your outlook whether it gave you a touch of continental ways, contentment, bitterness, achievement or frustration a whole new world of experience will be yours in Chapel Hill. And J. B. Robbins takes this opportunity to welcome you. Without a false, strained smile: Welcome, one and all.
