Voice of Democracy student oratorical contest will be held in the Chapel Hill area this month by the Chapel Hill High School.

Speak For Democracy." The talks will be judged for content, delivery, and originality. Locally the judges will be University Librarian Andrey Horn, Dr. J. Kempton Jones, and Elmer Oettinger of the University Community Center. At Lincoln High School Mr. M. D. Turner is in charge of the contest and at Chapel Hill High, Miss Jessie Belle Lewis. The state winners will participate in the national finals to be held this winter in Washington.

Western Auto Store Addition Almost Ready

An addition which will increase the size of the Western Auto Associate Store by about 25 per cent is almost completed.

Tom Ray, proprietor of the West Franklin Street establishment, said the brick building is being extended 22 feet to the rear by its owner, M. J. Dawson. On the second floor of the new section will be more apartments on the order of those already built in the building.

Mr. Ray said that his store has needed the additional space for a long time. For the time being, he said, the new area would be used for storage space, however later he hopes to convert some of the area to additional sales floor space.

Folklore Group Meeting Set

The North Carolina Folklore Society will hold its forty-fourth annual meeting at the Hotel Sir Walter in Raleigh on December 2. The program, as announced by A. P. Hudson, Secretary-Treasurer, of Chapel Hill, will include two talks and a song recital.

Miss Flora McDonald, Moore County home demonstration agent, Carthage, will exhibit rare quilts from Moore County and discuss the art of quilt-making. The translator and editor of "Hiroshima Diary," Dr. Warner Wells of Chapel Hill, will talk on the folklore of the Hiroshima A-bomb.

Betty Vaiden (Mrs. Charles S.) Williams, of Raleigh, who has won a large and appreciative audience by her folk singing, will present a group of North Carolina folk songs, accompanying herself on the autoharp.

Jan Saxon Will Be Presented On Fifth Petite Musicale Bill

— Excerpts From Sunday Sermons —

The Rev. Maurice Kidder, Church of the Holy Family

Subject: "The Double Edge Of Truth"

At the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of November we paused for one minute as we have for the past thirty-seven years. In that silence, during the years following World War I, men asked themselves the question "Would we do it again?"

In that minute of silence mankind writes under the double edge of truth. One edge defends that which is beyond argument, the other cuts down those dearest to him. This paradox has never been more completely stated than by Our Lord in Matthew 18:7, "offenses will come but woe unto him by whom the offense comes."

The experienced warrior understands this. His honesty compels him to admit that if he feels he must kill, he cannot blame his opponent for being willing to do the same. No matter what happens to him, if he lives he can say, though none should say it for him, "I got off easy." Armistice Day can

Memorial To President Chase Is Read At Faculty Meeting

A memorial to the late Harry Woodburn Chase, written by L. R. Wilson and read by Chancellor Robert B. House, was presented at a recent faculty meeting at the University.

Mr. Chase, former University president, died this year on April 20 at his home in Sarasota, Florida. He was 72 years old at the time of his death.

A copy of the eight-page memorial, signed by Mr. Wilson, Chancellor House, and A. C. Howell, secretary of the faculty who is now on leave, is being sent to all members of the Chase family.

Mr. Chase came to the University in 1910 as professor of Psychology. He became acting dean of the College of Liberal Arts in 1918. He was appointed chairman of the faculty in January of 1919, and was elected president in June of the same year. He was president until 1930, when he resigned to become president of the University of Illinois.
