

Got 'Clothesline Job' Done...

Davie Circle Weekly Enters Local News Scene

Latest journalistic endeavor to enter the highly competitive newspaper field in Chapel Hill is the Davie Circle Weekly, neighborhood news sheet now in its third week of existence, edited by young Walter Cannefax.

The mimeographed publication is distributed on Wednesday afternoons and carries the bargain subscription price of 10 cents a month. The editor, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cannefax of 26 Davie Circle, served notice on his readers of the price increase in his latest issue with the following statement: "Because of lack of material you will have to pay a dime a month. We are very sorry. We promise there will not be any more changes."

Publication cost of the paper totals nearly $4.00 a month, so that on the subscription price there isn't much room to get rich within the Davie Circle neighborhood. But the editor's father says that Walter, granting this, is glad to get the experience: "He says he may decide to go into newspaper work some day."

The publication contains a good sprinkling of customary newspaper features. For example: Out of three classified ads, the following might well be of neighborhood interest: "Help Wanted: Mrs. Robert Clark who lives on Stroud Hill would like someone to rake her leaves. Calle 5716."

And as a promotional postscript: "It really pays to advertise in our paper! Mrs. Sweet's clothesline job was done promptly by one of our readers."

The news budget of the current issue features a plug for the Empty Stocking Fund with a note that Mrs. McAllister's Girl Scout Troop is contributing toys for this project.

Jokes close off the single page endeavor: "A Texan was bragging about Texas to an Australian when a kangaroo hopped by. With his mouth open the Texan stared and then said: 'Well, I gotta admit that your grasshoppers are bigger than ours.'" (News, announcements, and ads, the editor notes, may be called in to 8-3411.)

A quarter of a million foreign plants have been introduced into the United States since the year 1898, when USDA started to keep a record of them.

SOME TURNIP—Mrs. Arthur Womble and her grand-daughter, Jean Womble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Womble of the Smith Level Road, hold a six-and-one-half pound turnip which sprung up from a straw: seed in an uncultivated field near their home. They believe the big vegetable is a record growth hereabouts.
