

Chapel Hill New Voter Registration Opens This Saturday; Continues For School Area

Voter registration for the May 7 Town of Chapel Hill elections will open in the polling places for the newly-created three local precincts this Saturday.

It will also be the final day of registration for new voters in the Chapel Hill School District, for which four School Board members will be elected in separate voting, also on May 7 in the same precinct polling places.

All persons living outside the Town of Chapel Hill but within the School District must register by the time the books close this Saturday in order to be eligible to vote in the School District election. However, according to a ruling by the County Board of Elections, persons living within Chapel Hill will not have to specially register for the School District election, if they are already registered on the Town's voting books or if they register for the Town election during the April 20-27 period that the books will be open. To date there have been only 16 persons outside of town registered for the school vote.

Precinct Locations
The books will be maintained in the North Precinct at the Chapel Hill Town Hall by Mrs. Henry Royall; in the South Precinct at the Woollen Gymnasium by Mrs. A. T. Miller; and in the East Precinct at Glenwood School by Mrs. Lindsay Neville.

For the Town of Chapel Hill the books will be open in the precinct polling places for new registrations on the two Saturdays between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. In emergency cases the registrars are authorized to accept registrations at their homes, except on Sunday, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday next week. For the School District the registration books will be open from 9 a.m. through sundown this Saturday.

This Saturday will be the first opportunity for persons in the newly-annexed sectors of Chapel Hill to register, and all must do so to be eligible to vote in the May 7 biennial municipal election and $500,000 bond issue referendum.

Changes In Precincts
Persons already registered will not have to do so anew, though many will vote in a different place this time, since the voting list under the old one-precinct system at the Town Hall has now been divided into appropriate lists for the three precincts.

Residence requirements for both town and school district elections are: one year in North Carolina; and 30 days in the town or district by May 7.

State Employees Here Push Pay Hike Hearing

University employees plan to push their fight against the recently set-up employee classification scale and proposed salary increase figures through a hearing before the General Assembly's appropriations committee in Raleigh.

A spokesman for the local unit of the N. C. State Employees Association said this morning that Clifton Beckwith, Executive Secretary of the State organization in Raleigh, would seek the hearing as soon as possible.

pay scale," said the spokesman—an Association officer.

He explained that many University workers would not be benefited at all by the pay increases. (See EMPLOYEES, Page 8)

'Fact Sheet' Unsatisfactory

Even after receipt of the State Personnel Department's "fact sheet" showing the proposed scale of raises, the local organization reiterated its opposition to the plan, which would give average pay hikes of 11 per cent. The fact sheets were received by many of the more than 2,000 local UNC workers on Tuesday.

"We are going to fight for the long-time service employees who will be frozen in their present salaries," said the Association spokesman. He reiterated that they felt there was considerable "inconsistency" in arriving at the classification pay limitations for the various local workers. "We protest the whole classification

Public Ceremonies And Parade Set By Navy, AF ROTC Units

The Air Force ROTC and Naval ROTC will hold a joint presentation of awards ceremony followed by a joint review and parade on Navy Field at noon next Thursday.

Normally, during the school year the two units conduct separate drills for their respective organizations. However, as the climax to the year's drill activities, and in honor of the recipients of Unit awards, the joint review has been scheduled for this year. The organization of the two units will combine to form a regiment, commanded by Midshipman Gordon B. Hall of the Naval ROTC Unit with Cadet Colonel Memory H. Elmore as the Regimental Executive Officer.

James L. Godfrey, Chairman of the Faculty, will represent Chancellor Robert B. House in receiving the review and in presenting awards to the Air Force ROTC Cadets and Naval ROTC midshipmen for excellence and distinctive achievement in various phases of their individual programs.

The public is invited to attend this ceremony and parade. This event will be the only one during the year in which the Navy and Air Force ROTC Units perform jointly.

Grandstand seats will be available and there will be adequate space for parking on the south side of Navy Field.

Mailed Money Theft Charged P.O. Employee

A veteran Chapel Hill postal clerk has been charged with theft of a letter containing money.

Chapel Hill Postmaster Paul Cheek said today that Homer C. Holloway Sr., employee in the local postoffice for the past 28 years, had been placed on annual leave from his job, pending further disposition of his status prior to trial in Middle District of N. C. Federal Court on the charge. Mr. Holloway has admitted the theft, according to the postmaster, and posted a bond for his trial at a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Henry Bane in Durham.

Revelation of the charges came as a considerable shock to postal employees and local citizens alike. Postmaster Cheek, citing Mr. Holloway's record of employment since June 1, 1928, said he had been "a good employee" to his knowledge. Now in his 29th year of postal service, he would have been eligible for retirement in two years at age 55.

According to the postmaster the charges were brought by two postal inspectors following their investigations here recently.

KELLOGG GRANT TO FOUNDAIN—Ben E. Fountain Jr., of 46 Hayes Rd., Associate Secretary of the N. C. Amidst Recollections . . .

Rotary, Kiwanis Clubs Observe 28th Birthday In Joint Meeting

Rotarians and Kiwanians of Chapel Hill staged their annual inter-service club banquet last night amidst a round of recollections of the founding of the two groups here 28 years ago.

Both were formed in 1928 by parent clubs from Durham—the Rotarians in the spring and the Kiwanis Club, the following summer. Of the more than 150 men currently in the two clubs here, only seven remain as charter members.

They are, in Rotary, William M. Pugh, W. E. Thompson, J. Maryon Saunders, and Robert L. Fowler. Charter Rotarians still in that Club are J. S. Bennett, Y. Z. Cannon, and Collier Cobb Jr. The Kiwanians were introduced by Mr. Saunders and the Rotarians by Vic Huggins.

Program Chairman Dr. Marvin Erans introduced the 22-man student chorus of the University Dental School, conducted by Dr. Roger Sturdevant, which sang for the evening's entertainment program.

Mr. Saunders, in recalling the year of the Clubs' founding, noted that the dial system of telephones was installed in the town that year. There were 1,000 telephones then, as compared to about 7,500 numbers now, he pointed out. The University's student population then was 2,500, as compared to over 7,500 today.

Year Stadium Opened
Mr. Huggins, a UNC student in 1928, recalled it as the year that Dr. E. M. Hedgpeth was President of the University Medical School's first-year class and also the year that the Carolina yearbook was dedicated to Paul Green.

In the fall of the year, he added, Kenan Memorial Stadium, donated by University benefactor William Rand Kenan, was formally dedicated at the UNC-Virginia Thanksgiving day classic before a "sell-out" crowd of 28,000. The Tar Heels barely won the contest in an alleged "overtime" as Virginia came from behind to bring the final score to 14-13.

'Warmed Up' To 25 In Summer . . .

Dr. Taylor, Returned From Antarctic, Says 'Chapel Hill Was Never Lovelier'

By MARGARET PADGETTE

Eighteen months in winter underwear may be a pretty grim thought, but it was worth it to Dr. Isaac M. Taylor of Morgans Creek Road, who returned two weeks ago from Antarctica—better known to the layman as the South Pole.

Dr. Taylor was one of 93 Navy men stationed on Ross Island in McMurdo Sound, which was set up as a supply base for the station being built at Little America. This will be a part of the International Geophysical Year, which begins in July.

Was Camp Surgeon
Camp surgeon for the personnel based on Ross Island, Dr. Taylor said that aside from accidents, the extreme cold accounted for most of the medical attention needed, and that was surprisingly little.

Precautions of every sort were taken to combat the cold, and the Navy started training the men in the care of their clothing and equipment during the summer, so by the time below-zero weather set in, they were prepared.

Dr. Taylor found the Polar Continent "a fascinating place," but desolate and lonely to the point of depression. Vegetation consists of moss and lichen, which grows in the "melt pools," left on the rock where ice has melted. There is no dirt known here.

Dr. Taylor says there is a definite seasonal change in Antarctica—winter is dark and cold, spring and fall are twilight and cold, and summer is light and cold. Winters in the deepest south he couldn't get enthused about, for the temperature hovered around a chilly 70 degrees below zero. It's hazardous just to go outside, he said.

The wind whips the snow and ice in 50-mile-an-hour gusts. However, the summers he found "very pleasant." The temperature rose to about 25 degrees, though things never quite got thawed out.

Civvies To Take Over
All the bases down South will be turned over to civilian scientists during the IGY, with the probable exception of McMurdo Sound, which will continue to be maintained as a supply base.

Dr. Taylor said many countries are represented down there for the IGY, including Soviet Russia, but he had never seen finer relationships in an international setting.

Although Dr. Taylor volunteered for duty in Antarctica, he says he's not too anxious to return for as long a tour as this one was—to which Mrs. Taylor added an enthusiastic "Me, too!"

Said Dr. Taylor, "Eighteen months is a long time away from home, and I've thought many times since I got back that I've never seen Chapel Hill looking lovelier!"
