Mrs. Lucy Russell Embroiders On 'Rare Pattern' In Talk Here

Mrs. Lucy Phillips Russell, 95-year-old former Chapel Hillian and mother of Editor C. Phillips Russell, delighted an audience of 75 at a Bull's Head Bookshop Tea last Thursday with her recollections of old days in the village and comments on her recently-published book, "A Rare Pattern."

Asked how she found time to maintain her household and write the book, too, Mrs. Russell noted "After all, it didn't require any research." She had been making notes on the book over the last 25 years, the authoress recalled.

Speaking in a clear, unfaltering voice Mrs. Russell recalled her younger days when she attended the first University summer school in the country on the campus here, and how when it was originally planned, women were not to be permitted to attend it.

In the company of her aunt, Mrs. Cornelia Phillips Spencer, she was permitted as a young girl to attend both lectures at the University only on condition of absolute silence and that they would arrive before and depart after the regular class members.

63 Boy Scout Awards Presented At District Court Of Honor

Sixty-three awards were presented to Orange District Boy Scouts at the school year's first District Court of Honor here last night.

Top advancement in rank went to Robert Crook of Troop 39, who was presented his Star Scout badge by District Chairman L. J. Phipps. District Executive Frank Yandell gave a civic duty award to Steve Gibbons of Troop 826.

There were five advancements to the rank of first class, presented by Tom Murray as follows: Kenneth Strowd, Billy Mann, Wreun Davis, Billy Davis, and Warren Atwater, all of Troop 803.

Clarence Jones of Hillsboro presented Second Class badges to 10 scouts: Jimmy Barron of Troop 39; John Skinner and George Thompson of Troop 835; Henry Crabtree of Troop 450; and Archie Baldwin, Larry Kenny, Larry and Greg Coudriet, Ricky Spell, and Alex London of Troop 9.

THOMAS TALKS TONIGHT

The Carolina Forum will open its 1957-58 season of campus speakers tonight, when Socialist Leader Norman Thomas will appear at 8 o'clock at a public address in Carroll Hall, on the topic, "Do We Mean 147," a discussion of civil rights in connection with America's foreign policy and international relations.

Gridders' Suspension By Coach Tops Game News

Sports talk of the town over the weekend was not so much Carolina's 14-7 victory over Wake Forest, as Coach Jim Tatum's suspension of three Tar Heel gridgers on the eve of the game.

Word of the booting of the players was flashed early Friday afternoon, as a result of the Coach's catching the players drinking beer outside a downtown beer establishment on the previous night—or actually early Friday morning.

Suspended On Spot
The three were, of course, quarterback Dave Reed, tackle Leo Russavage, and reserve guard Bernie Donatelli. All were ordered when caught to turn in their uniforms, and told they were being suspended from the squad.

Coach Tatum publicly stated the boys were out for the season, but noted in a press conference after the Wake game that he might "change his mind."

It was known that a number of Carolina football players, including Reed, Russavage, and Donatelli, were all together in a local short order and beer establishment earlier in the evening, all drinking beer. Obviously, the report of their presence got to Coach Tatum who personally came to the scene after the establishment had closed.

At the time the Coach drove up the three players were still nearby and had some beer with them. He ordered them to get in the car with him and told them they were being put off the squad.

In his public statement the next afternoon Coach Tatum would not elaborate on the reason for his action, but said simply: "In breaking training rules on Thursday night before a Saturday game, these three boys showed no regard for their teammates or school and indulged in conduct unbecoming an athlete."

Leaders Hoping To Incorporate For Campaign

Plans for a long-range organization with the aim of constructing a swimming pool for the Negro community are being made by a local group of Negro men.

Adolphus Clark, retired UNC Library staff member, and community civic leader for many years, is president of the group and Hubert S. Robinson is its treasurer. It is expected the group will become formally incorporated if its plans to date materialize.

Several years ago an anonymous local person offered to give the necessary money to build a swimming pool for the Negro community if the citizenry could show that it would be able to maintain it. Leaders of the group now said they did not know whether or not the offer still held true, but that they intended to organize for the pool campaign in either case.

In recent years weekly bus trips to Raleigh have been set up for children of the community who wished to go swimming in the municipal park pool there. The prospect of a pool being constructed on the Negro Community Center property was included in a tentative proposal for funds that would have been provided through the public recreation program that was rejected by local voters in a referendum last spring.

As an initial step in their campaign the pool committee leadership said it planned to go before the Chapel Hill aldermen tonight to ask if the pool might be located on the town-owned University property if it could be privately-financed.

Miss Ross Dies In Durham

Miss Daisy Ross, 74, of Durham, formerly of Chapel Hill, died yesterday at 5:40 p.m. at her home, 1500 Lathrop St., Durham. She had been seriously ill for a week.

Surviving are three sisters, Miss Juanita Ross and Miss Ruby Ross, both of the home, and Miss Lillian Ross of Burlington.

Miss Ross was born in Alamance County, the daughter of the late William R. and Mary Cheek Ross. She had made her home in Durham for the past three years. She was a member of the Macedonia Lutheran Church of Burlington.

She was connected with the University of North Carolina for 35 years, serving as assistant purchasing agent at the time of her retirement in 1953.

Memorial services will be held tomorrow morning at 11 at the graveside in Pine Hill Cemetery in Burlington. The Rev. Henry Schroder, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, will officiate.

Post Article Features Jim Tatum

Carolina Football Coach Jim Tatum comes in for full-dress feature scrutiny in a 5,000-word article on him in the issue of the Saturday Evening Post which went on sale today.

In it sports writer Mal Mallett of Winston-Salem reviews the Tar Heel football coach's widely-publicized career over the past 20 years, emphasizing his two years at Carolina, and comes up at the end with a write-up that readers will regard as generally favorable. The article starts with the sensational heading, as follows: "Jim Tatum of the Tarheels . . . Swagging Jim Tatum, North Carolina's bullheaded coach, takes no comfort in how his boys play the game—nothing but winning counts with him. 'How can you be proud of a losing team?' he asks.

Excerpts from the story follow: "Handsome and swaggering, six-foot-three and broad of shoulder, Tatum arrived at Chapel Hill in 1956 with the best ten-year record of any major-college coach. North Carolina had turned to him after suffering through six straight losing seasons. The losing continued during Tatum's first year last fall, with the Tar Heels taking only two and tying one of their ten games.

"Is winning overemphasized in the bigtime game? Tatum has responded, 'I don't think winning is the most important thing. I think it is the only thing,' and, 'Isn't it big time when you're winning and small time when you're losing?'"

"Tatum also has said, 'It's a sad occasion when academic leaders don't have a sufficient education in athletics to appreciate the benefits which athletes receive from the field of sports.' However, he doesn't hold that mere participation is of value. 'You always hear that a losing coach is building character,' Tatum declares. 'I say you can't build character in losing'"

Church Youth Groups Observes Halloween By UNICEF Rounds

Teen-age church groups of the community will observe Halloween Thursday evening with house-to-house rounds of the community for the benefit of the United Nations Children's Fund.

Donations will be sought by the UNICEF trick-or-treaters to aid children and mothers in 95 countries and territories by sending milk, vitamins, and medicines for their relief. Fourteen local organizations are joining in the Chapel Hill and Carrboro campaign.

Mayors O. K. Cornwell and R. B. Todd have added legal standing to the occasion by official proclamations denoting this Thursday, Oct. 31, as UNICEF Days in the municipalities.

In Carrboro youth members from 12 to 23 are invited to join in the drive by meeting at the Carrboro Methodist Church at 7 p.m. The solicitation will continue until 9:30. Collectors are invited to come in costume, and should get official UNICEF identification tags before starting their rounds.

A party will be given for all who participate at the University Methodist Church in Chapel Hill after the evening's collecting by the Young Peoples Service League of the Chapel of the Cross. Identification tags will be the only required admission.

The sounding of police and fire sirens will remind householders of the beginning of the evening's collecting.

Halloween Costume Judging Set

Prizes for the best costumes will be awarded in four categories at this Thursday evening's community-wide Halloween party for children, to be staged by the Jaycees at 7 o'clock in the Fowler's Food Store parking lot.

Ty Boyd will be master-of-ceremonies for the judging and chairman of the eight-man committee which will handle this part of the program. Merchandise prizes given by local businessmen are to be given for the best costume and to the runner-up in each of these age categories: up to four years; four to eight; eight to 12; and over 12.

In addition the youngsters will be treated to free pony and auto rides, apple bobbing, a wishing well, popcorn stand, and the Halloween House of Horrors.

'ICECAPADES' PERFORMANCES

The 'Icecapades' shows will be given at 8:30 nightly through this Wednesday at the State College Coliseum in Raleigh. Tickets are on sale at the Coliseum box office from $1.50 to $3.00.
