The Gals Really Were Stylish--Boy, And How!

Women from Chapel Hill are showing off the practicality of the new flapper-type one-piece frocks which are priced at $15—the price of the empty oat sacks purchased at the local outlet for the Farmer's Cooperative Exchange.

After a study of the qualities of various types of dress material, Mrs. Nies stated "We recommend Premium Quality Oats sacks for having the best quality. They're also distinctive for having an added eucalyptus leaf in the material."

NEW IDEA 'HATCHED' UP—Mrs. Mary Nies—one of the demure damsels wearing the new sack style for her Easter outfit—also shows off a fad in millinery which she 'hatched up' in the way of a hat. It features a concealed basket for the wearer's Easter eggs, cunningly concealed in a top compartment of the hat—as shown in photo at top of this page. News Leader Photo

Correction Necessary In Area Description

The public referendum on the joining of the Carrboro and White Cross School Attendance Areas with the Chapel Hill Special School Tax District will likely be held May 20—11 days before the spring Democratic primary election in the state.

In a special meeting at Hillsboro this morning the County Commissioners indicated in an informal discussion that this would be an agreeable date. Members of the Chapel Hill Citizens School Council and the Carrboro Citizens School Committee had both asked that the date be set as early in May as possible.

Date Not Formally Set

However, the actual designation of the election date was not formally designated today, pending an amendment to the legal description of the boundaries of the areas to be affected. It was discovered in today's meeting that the property of George and Lawrence Lashley in the White Cross area had been inadvertently left out of the resolution passed by the school Boards and presented to the Commissioners.

It appeared probably that the commissioners would be able to act finally on setting the date at their regular meeting for next month, April 9. The legal machinery required prior to holding an election will take 30 days, it was noted.

Commissioner Dwight Ray

School Area Vote Will Likely Be Held On May 20; No Objections Are Voiced agreed to arrange for the securing of election officials in Carrboro, where the precinct polling place will be at the Town Hall, and Commissioner Donald Stanford said he would do the same for White Cross, where the polling place will be at the Junior Order Hall.

No Objection

There was no objection voiced to setting the election date on May 20, though Commissioner Dwight Ray had previously suggested it might be held on June 28. A delegation representing the Carrboro Citizens Committee was present at the meeting. Odell Barham, spokesman for this group, also suggested that the referendum be set for Tuesday, May 20.

Following their discussion of the referendum the Board met with Division Highway Engineer Tom Burton of Greensboro and District Engineer L. H. Gunter of Graham to discuss road projects for the County for the final quarter of this fiscal year.

Methodists To Proceed Building Educational Wing On Their Church

Methodists of Chapel Hill's University Church voted yesterday to proceed with the securing of contracts for the new structure at once with a $190,000 project which it's hoped will be ready to construct an educational wing at for occupancy in a year.

Overall Cost About $230,000

The over-all cost of the job is expected to reach about $230,000. However, as presently envisioned the interior two-story brick building will be left incomplete above the basement level. When the remaining necessary funds become available, the Rev. Charles Hubbard said, the work will be finished.

On the lower level will be a fellowship hall or multi-purpose room, flanked by a kitchen and storage and dressing rooms. Sunday school rooms will go on the upper floors.

The new building will match the architecture of the present church and will project in front of the present educational wing of the site of the recently razed old Methodist Church. In size it will be about the size of the present church sanctuary.
