Porter And Mr. Jurkat Married In Quaker Ceremonies

The wedding took place on May 31, at the Durham Meeting House when Miss Porter, a junior in the United Methodist Church, and Mr. Peter Jurkat, Graduate in Mathematical Science, were married.

The traditional Quaker ceremony in which no minister officiates, the contracting parties exchange vows to each other in the presence of the meeting and the congregation.

The North Carolina Society of Friends met at the Meeting House to the Friends Meeting, of which Porter is a member. The meeting was sponsored by the Friends Meeting and all those present signed the wedding register. The bride's wedding gown was simple, with a long full skirt of heavy silk. She wore an embroidered bolero and matching mantilla which she removed after the vows were said. The two attendants were Marie Miller, who wore a bouffant lavender gown, and Michael Merbaum.

A reception was held in the lawn of the Meeting House after the ceremony. The young couple will spend the summer in Philadelphia, but will return to Chapel Hill at the beginning of the fall semester.

Samuel J. Blackwoods Are Back From Germany

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Joyner Blackwood and their son, Joe, returned last week from Germany, where they spent three years while Mr. Blackwood was in the U. S. Air Force.

Mr. Blackwood, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Blackwood of Route Two, was stationed at Senbach Air Force Base, which is near Kaiserslautern. He and his family returned to this country by plane.

Their son, who is two years old, was born in Germany, and this is the first time his grandparents have seen him.

Mr. Blackwood will attend summer school at the University here and this fall he will transfer to State College, where he will study electrical engineering.

Pullen-Kelly Ceremonies Set

Roy Armstrong To Take Morehead Post Here

Roy Armstrong has been named Executive Secretary to guide the Morehead Foundation scholarship program expansion, succeeding Robert A. Fetzer.

Mr. Armstrong has resigned as Director of University Admissions effective July 1 to accept the post. Fetzer will remain with the foundation as resident secretary.

The Morehead scholarships, valued at $5,000 each for four years of study here, have gone to 179 young students in the past seven years. The total Morehead endowment will be substantially increased to expand the funds for scholarships.

John L. Morehead, a member of the foundation's board of trustees, said the expansion will be carried out by "slowly and carefully adding out-of-state preparatory schools to our list of eligible institutions and enlargement of the full-time staff."

MORSES VISIT UNC—Among the many proud parents in Chapel Hill last weekend to see their daughter graduate from the University were Sen. and Mrs. Wayne Morse of Washington, D. C., seen with their youngest daughter, Amy, who received her B. S. degree in nursing.

Elizabeth Seawell - Has 'Certain Something Children Respond To - They Remember Her!'

By MARGARET PADGETTE

Most of the younger folks in Chapel Hill have, at one time or another, been taught by Miss Elizabeth Seawell, who completed her 30th year in the local schools last week.

Miss Seawell has long been known for giving her students a thorough foundation in English grammar, and the discipline in her classroom can well be envied!

Many of her old students have returned to tell her how much they can appreciate what she had taught them. And more than one Chapel Hillian away at college has written her for a copy of her English grammar notebook.

The local school administration regards Miss Seawell as one of its most valuable teachers. Schools Superintendent C. W. Davis says, "The subject matter she teaches and the way she presents it to her students is so excellent anything

I could say about Miss Seawell would be good."

Had All Except '57

With the exception of the Chapel Hill High School Class of 1957, Miss Seawell has had as a pupil every child who has gone through Chapel Hill Elementary School since she joined the faculty in 1928. "I'm getting quite a few children of former students now," she said.

Miss Mildred Mooneyhan, principal of the Chapel Hill Elementary School, said she has never ceased to be amazed at the number of former students who have come back to visit Miss Seawell. "If they don't remember another teacher they had here," she said, "they always remember Miss Seawell!"

"She has a certain something that children respond to," Miss Mooneyhan went on, "and it's something too few teachers have. You might say it is a combination of her love for children, her kind nature, the extensive knowledge she has of her subject, and her consistent discipline."

"When she tells her pupils something, they know Miss Seawell means it! Her sense of fair play has a profound influence on her children, too."

Miss Seawell is originally from Sanford and she graduated from Woman's College and attended Columbia University. She and her mother are now living at The Glen.

MR. LLOYD DIES

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Durie Clarence Lloyd, 81, who died yesterday at his home on Route One.
