Chapel Hill Wildcats Close Season Turning Back Cary Team, 14 To 7

The Chapel Hill Wildcats closed their season with a victory over Cary, 14 to 7, at Carrboro's Lions Park. The victory decided third place in District Three play. It was a big night for teams in the northern section of the district. Roxboro, Durham Southern and Northern, Henderson, Oxford Orphanage and Hillsboro also won from their southern rivals.

Coach Bob Culton's Wildcats thus closed their season with a record of seven wins and three losses. Their conference mark was 6-3. Cary came into the game with a 5-2 district mark.

Cary's hustling team made things interesting Friday night, but trailed by two touchdowns before cashing into the scoring bracket late in the game.

Chapel Hill got the upper hand immediately with their 63-yard drive into paydirt at the game's outset and maintained pressure for the remainder of the game.

Starting from their own 37 after the opening kickoff, Quarterback Subir Roy stuck mainly to the ground as the 'Cats brushed downfield. Fleet Halfback Charlie Hubbard brought the push to a successful close by diving over from the two yard line. Larry Crabtree, a guard, successfully kicked the extra point, and the locals led 7-0 before the visitors had run an offensive play.

Cary was contained for most of the first half but moved well in the second two periods.

Chapel Hill scored the deciding touchdown in the third quarter on another sustained march, this time for 73 yards. Fullback Bob Madry scored the touchdown from a yard away, and the conversion was again good.

Cary drove deep into Wildcat territory in the last half only to fumble chances away. Finally, with about two minutes left to play, the visitors crashed across the goal line after driving 66 yards. Warren Feed tallied the six-pointer for the visitors.

The Wildcats' season ended on a familiar note: closeness of the score. In the 10 games, Chapel Hill scored 105 points, while their opponents tallied 97. While winning seven games and dropping three, then, they scored only eight more points than their adversaries.

MISS RUTH FAISON SHAW

Concocted By Miss Shaw

Prince Who Disdained Brushes Started Fingerprinting Idea

By NANCY C. WINBORNE Although finger paint is almost a household product, few North Carolinians are aware that this versatile and popular art medium was first concocted by a school teacher from Duplin County. She is Miss Ruth Faison Shaw of New York and Cape Cod, and more recently of Chapel Hill.

A native of Kenansville, the ingenious Miss Shaw is known in educational circles and allied professional groups in Europe, as well as in the United States. Her fame is due chiefly to her development of finger paint and the fingerprinting technique, but she is, she says, "primarily a teacher."

Brush Disdained The fingerprint, itself, was the outgrowth of a teaching experience. The challenge was a small Italian prince who attended Miss Shaw's school in Rome during the early thirties. The lad disdained the paint brush and seemed to feel a real need to smear. "So I made something for him to smear," she said jestingly, adding that the process was lengthy and subject to much trial and error.

While the patent on the original formula and the copyright on the name are held by Miss Shaw, she receives no royalties or other revenue from the commercially successful imitations. None of these, incidentally, compares in color or texture with the original. Her formula is secret, of course, but the "binder" is the same recipe used by Cleopatra to make her skin lotion. This recipe was unearthed at the Vatican by one of Miss Shaw's friends. Earth pigments used in the original formula come from various places: the green from Venice, the brown from Siena, and the blue from Gubbio near Assisi.

"Actually," says Miss Shaw, "fingerprinting is an ancient lost art. Remember the bison on the cave-man's walls? That's finger painting. One can see the skin texture of the artists fingers in the paint. The Chinese used it extensively during the 17th Century. In fact, she continued, a Chinese student once introduced himself to me as a friend from the 17th Century." Seems that he and Miss Shaw had finger painted together in a previous incarnation.

Much of her work in recent years has been in therapy and rehabilitation through creative expression. Miss Shaw prefers to use fingerprint as an education tool. She finds that normal people, as well as those who are emotionally ill, project their personalities through patterns, symbols and colors which reveal likes and dislikes, fears and repressed emotions. "Little girls usually use red or yellow; the very feminine ones prefer yellow—Mae West's favorite color is yellow. Boys prefer blue and the more intellectual types will use lots of green."

Besides her talents, Miss Shaw has brought to the University and to the State more than a thousand case histories dealing with personality diagnosis as revealed through fingerprinting. Some of these histories deal with military children; others deal with military personnel whom she taught in Army, Navy and Veterans hospitals. Still others were compiled during her years at Columbia and elsewhere in New York where she worked with the delinquency problem. Recently she worked in Topeka with the Menninger Foundation which "proved" the histories that she is giving to the University. Her latest and current work is that of Consultant in Therapy at the University.

Despite her gypsy foot, Miss Shaw always intended to return to North Carolina, specifically to Chapel Hill. "There's a reason," she says with a twinkle. "My grandfather Shaw, a graduate of the University Class of 1836, taught me to read. When I was little, I thought one could learn to read only at Chapel Hill and that it, too, was the place to go when one was old. I realized recently that old age was overtaking me and that if I were coming back, I'd have to hurry during the 17th Century. In fact,

New Meters Thinning Out Parked Cars

Parking meters went into operation in Chapel Hill today. Parking spaces this morning were, as the saying goes, "a dime a dozen."

Usually-crowded Franklin St. spaces were conspicuously available for downtown shoppers. Chief of Police Bill Blake reported that "quite a few" tickets were handed out this morning to motorists who ignored or forgot that it now costs to park here.

"That was to be expected on the first day," Chief Blake said. Twice-weekly collections of meter deposits will be made for the first time this week.

Carrboro Scout Drive Kickoff Supper Tuesday

A drive for the support of Scouting for the coming year will be formally "kicked off" tomorrow with a supper for the workers in the campaign in Carrboro, it was announced today by John Boone, chairman of the Friends of Scouting drive in Carrboro.

The supper will begin at 7 p.m. at Red's Cafeteria.

The kick-off supper will feature door prizes, information on the program of the Occaneechee Council for the coming year and the distribution of the prospect cards to the workers helping in the campaign.

Mr. Boone has announced that he expects to have about 60 people present so that the workers will have a minimum of prospects to contact. There will be meeting for the workers to turn in their reports later in the evening at a place which will be designated at the supper. The aim will be to have as much of the drive completed by 10 p.m. Tuesday as possible.

Chairman Boone emphasized that this is the one time during the year that the people of the community are called on to support the program of the Council which furnishes services to the local units through the program, the professional in Orange county, the Office in Raleigh, and local opportunities for training and participation by the leaders for the boys of Carrboro. Every citizen is urged to welcome the neighbor or friend that will call on them Tuesday evening or the following days and to contribute generously.
