University Finds Space Storing Of Supplies

University has obtained space for storing supplies replacing those destroyed in a fire on the campus. Officials are investigating the possibility of building new facilities, preferably on the campus. The fire on the campus destroyed the University's storeroom. Other sections were not damaged, but the interior of the section—holding varied household items ranging from iron piping to toilet tissue—was gutted. The fire was believed to have started from a malfunctioning electric motor.

Personal Injuries Kept At Minimum

Personal injuries have been kept to a minimum during the current winter season. Police officials in Orange County and Chapel Hill report they have heard of no serious accidents as a result of the snow and ice. However, drivers can readily testify that there have been many cars in ditches and stuck along the roads.

Records Show Nine Inches, But Inconvenience Of Snow Hard To Measure

One accident which has been referred to locally involved a University policeman early Sunday morning who was directing traffic when the accident occurred. Campus officer Fred Free was arrested and charged with reckless driving in the case was Marine Lt. Girard Edgar Boudreau of North Augusta, S. C. Meetings and other events planned for the Community have been cancelled or postponed.

Tar Heel Letters Delivered Day After Mailing-- Usually How Fast Mail Went

By DAN ANDERSON
If you send a letter from one place in North Carolina to another, it's likely—but not certain—to arrive the day after you mail it.

That's the main point proved by a test of Tar Heel postal efficiency made by The Chapel Hill News Leader with the help of 25 other newspapers across the State.

In all, 41 letters were mailed, and it took them an average of just above 26 hours to get to a residential address in Chapel Hill. The longest delivery time was 49 hours 15 minutes for a letter mailed at 10:30 a.m. December 11 in Winston-Salem and received at 11:45 a.m. December 13 in Chapel Hill. A letter each from Kannapolis and Henderson tied for the shortest delivery time—17 hours 30 minutes.

Mr. Evans said that no decision has been reached on whether to build back the present structure, located on the campus near Phillips Hall, or to build an entirely new building on a new site. "We hope to build a new one off the campus some place," he said. He noted that the present stores are in a "congested" area. He said that accountants are still working on the records to determine actual loss in the fire. A report is due this week, he said. Early estimates placed the loss at around $80,000.

The second longest a letter took to arrive was 48 hours; one mailed at 11:30 a.m. in Lumberton December 1 came in to the Chapel Hill mailbox at 11:30 a.m. December 3. The other Lumberton letter took 43 hours, and latecomers from Elizabeth City, 43 hours 30 minutes; from Lenoir 42 hours 30 minutes; from Raleigh 46 hours 45 minutes. Those were elapsed times from when enclosed slips said the letters were mailed to when they were delivered in Chapel Hill.

Christmas Question
It's a question whether the Post Office can keep up to this mark when the Christmas rush gets heavy, and early mailing certainly would be wise. But the results, based on deliveries early in the month, may be taken as typical of the regular run of the mail.

Who's To Blame?
Proof that mail delay isn't always the fault of the postal service was found in one enclosed slip; it had been marked with a certain date, but that had been crossed out and another, three days later, was substituted. Without embarrassingly naming the place where this happened, it still may be said that people who mail letters may err as much as the service that carries them.

Once A Day
One effect of this, of course, was to cause seeming delay in some deliveries. Mail comes once a day, late in the morning, to the house, and a letter that reached the Chapel Hill Post Office at, say, 11 a.m., when the carrier was already on his rounds, had to wait until the day after. But the point of the survey was to find out how common mail gets delivered, and the same thing would happen to any letter.

Details of the mailing test appear in an accompanying table. In general, they should reassure Tar Heels that their mail does go through, satisfactorily fast.

Two More Calls Threaten Bombings

Two more crank telephone calls warning of bombings at the University were reported Friday, following two others only by a matter of hours. Dr. Fletcher Green, head of the UNC History Dept., received a call about 8:20 a.m. Friday from a person who said, "There is a bomb in your building." Dr. Green said the person, who sounded like an adult male, hung the receiver immediately.

At 12:45 p.m., Chapel Hill Police Chief W. D. Blake received the second bomb threat of the day and the fourth in two days. Chief Blake said the caller hurriedly and excitedly told him that a bomb was set to go off in Bingham Hall. Chief Blake said he could not understand whether the caller said "in room 228 or at 2:28 p.m." Chancellor W. B. Aycock and others searched the building and found no bombs. All classes but one in the building were called off for the day. Wednesday night, one caller said least six examinations had been scheduled for the day.

Carrboro Negro Man Released After Probe Of Wife's Death

Carrboro police officers today had released a Carrboro Negro after holding him briefly for investigation of his wife's death last night. Officer Albert Pendergraft said that investigation has shown that 36-year-old Cora Foushee died of natural causes. She was dead on arrival shortly before 9 p.m. Sunday at N. C. Memorial Hospital. According to the officers, Mrs. Foushee died of a heart attack after a family fight with her husband, Prevet Henry Foushee, at their home on Broad St.

Officer Pendergraft said the woman ran from the home after the fight and to her father's home nearby. She died there of the heart attack, he said. Foushee was jailed during the investigation and then released, he said.

A Chapel Hillian In The Snow

"There is a wonderful, secret thrill of some impending ecstasy on a frozen winter's night. The whole city no matter how ugly its parts may be, becomes a proud, passionate Northern place. Everything about it seems to soar up with aspirant, vertical, glittering magificence to reach the stars."—Thomas Wolfe

Orange Scout Unit Sets Ambitious '59 Program

The board of directors of the Orange Boy Scout District has set an ambitious 1959 program. The board of directors of the Orange Boy Scout Council this week set their sights on increases in 12 phases of Scout endeavor in Orange County. Meeting at Lenoir Hall, the group established goals in the 12 phases which reflect, according to one official, "ambition and optimism." The increases are sought in everything from the number of Cub Scout packs in the county to the number of adult leaders. Sandy McClamroch of Chapel Hill assumed chairmanship of the district, replacing L. J. Phipps, who had served for two years. Mr. Phipps received numerous expressions of gratitude from the gathering. Also taking office were Ralph Howard, Carrboro, Clarence Jones, Hillsboro, and John Efland Jr., Efland, vice-chairmen.

The group set the following goals: Two-deep Scout leaders, in which a leader is backed by another, 37. This is an increase from the 24 leaders of the past year. Number of unit leaders trained—20. Number of advancements in rank—450. Number of subscriptions to the Scout magazines, Boy's Life—416. Number of Cub Scouts—325. Number of Boy Scouts—375. Number of Explorer Scouts in units—100. Number of Explorer units—five. Number of Cub Packs—12, an increase from 11. (See SCOUTS, Page 6)

Several Families 'Unadopted' As Stocking Fund End Nears

Orange County's Empty Stocking Fund is entering its final week, with several needy families remaining unadopted. The Chapel Hill Junior Service League must provide for all the families, and has asked for help in successfully completing the county-wide Christmas assistance program. Boxes containing food and toys for families already adopted must be taken to the Sinclair Service Station garage in the Glen Lennox shopping center no later than tomorrow at 5 p.m. There is still time, officials noted, to call 9-9112 for a family to help, and then pack a box before the deadline. If you can not adopt a family, any cash donation will be utilized by the League to provide for the unadopted persons. These contributions should be mailed to Empty Stocking Fund, Box 374, Chapel Hill, or left at the Empty Stocking Booth on East Franklin Street, which will be open through December 20. This booth is being staffed by ladies from ten of our local churches. Recent adoptions have been made by: Mrs. Kay Kyser, Order Eastern Star No. 185, Smith Dorm, Mrs. W. B. A leader in North Carolina's fight against mental illness, Rep. Umstead in July, 1958, was named to the board of the American Fund for Psychiatry. He has helped develop the psychiatric research and training center at the University and has worked toward improving patient care in the state's mental hospitals. Rep. Umstead has been a member of the UNC Board of Trustees since 1939 and a member of the executive committee since 1946. He is also on the executive committee of the General Alumni Association.
