BEHIND THE SCENES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS

(By John Craddock)
Where did we get the two billion dollars to pay first-quarter installments on income taxes, twice the amount due at this time last year? Well, according to what economists so far have been able to discover, many people cashed war bonds; a disappointment for the Treasury and for those who want bond holdings by the public to stop inflation. Many borrowed money. This despite the fact that people are making more money than ever before, say the Government economists. The effect on business has been less than usual, though. Some citizens resorted to hoarding of purely luxury goods; but sales of other merchandise have held up right through the tax period. Some think it's because of "panic" by buying in fear of more rationing, and this, of course, is bad because it leads to inflation.

ACTION ON RUBBER—Action on one of the recommendations of the Baruch report to relieve the critical rubber situation was started when the War Production Board recently announced that five new war alcohol plants will be constructed in the grain belt. These new plants, previously authorized, will add approximately 100,000,000 gallons annually to the 250,000,000 gallons now being produced by the entire beverage distilling industry for synthetic rubber, containing and other war materials, according to Schenley Distillers corporation, which will operate one of the new plants. It is expected that part of the 700,000,000 bushel wheat surplus anticipated by July 1, 1943, will be converted into war alcohol by the pressure of surplus grain stocks.

THINGS TO COME—Waterproof matches, developed for the armed forces now, but presumably available to the rest of us in peacetime. Liquid plastics painted on the inside of containers and other war materials, according to Schenley Distillers corporation, which will operate one of the new plants. It is expected that part of the 700,000,000 bushel wheat surplus anticipated by July 1, 1943, will be converted into war alcohol by the pressure of surplus grain stocks.

POST-WAR AUTOS—Ever since the manufacture of civilian automobiles gave way to all-out armament production more than a year ago, American buyers have been led to believe that the first post-war models will feature radical designs. In the opinion of the man who helped the Army design the world-famed Jeep, Delmar G. Roos, however, these creations of "dream world" designers will not roll from assembly lines when normal production resumed. As Roos, who is vice president of Willys-Knight Motors, sees it, the car of the future—at least in those years immediately following the war—will be a more economical machine than those on the market now, but not differ radically from current designs. He says that the post-war car will have to aim for lower costs and adds that where the problem lies. These, he says, are the broad principles: Labor costs will be high, so materials will not be cheap; the public, facing high taxes, will have less money to spend on cars and gasoline, and these two will have to be brought together by the production of lighter cars and by simplification.

PURCHASE PRIORITIES—Many companies are trying to find ways to cushion the anticipated let-down in business that will come with the peace, and there has been lots of talk about how to do it. Many purchasing agents, on the other hand, are wondering how they'll be able to get their orders in immediately after peace and not have to "stand in line" to get the stuff they order. One solution has been developed by Radio Corporation of America, which has initiated a plan to take orders now for post war goods, giving those who place the orders a "priority" over those who wait. The plan now applies to theatre equipment; presumably as an experiment. A theatre owner may make weekly or monthly deposits with the company until it has paid at least 20 per cent of the estimated purchase price; or he may make a single down payment of an estimated 10 per cent. In either case, the theatre owner gets on the company's post-war priority list. RCA will thus have a backlog of orders; the theatre owners will have assurance of getting their goods without being caught in a post-war rush.

HITS ON BUSINESS—People are drinking more wine, but production this year will drop 30 to 35 per cent; the armed forces are taking the raisin-type grapes. N. A. Woodworth Co., Detroit war producer, has installed a beauty shop because its women workers couldn't get off-time appointments in downtown shops.

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

THE fashion magazine, "Harper's Bazaar", publishes two pages showing a row of young models... each in an original dress creation. Each is drinking an original creation in refreshment... ice-cold Coca-Cola. Thumb the pages of magazines and you see Coke in picture after picture. Note how shops and stores feature "Coke-Bars" for their customers' refreshment.

Coca-Cola had to be good to get where it is. The finished art of 57 years' experience is in its making. The result is a different kind of refreshment—all the difference between something truly refreshing and just something to drink.

The only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola, itself—the trade-marked product of The Coca-Cola Company. There's no comparison.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Both mean the same thing... "coming from a single source, and well known to the community".

Here, Miss Bonnie Cashin, designer for Adler & Adler, Inc., New York, relaxes in her studio. Just a few moments to relax with ice-cold Coca-Cola puts customer, designer, and model in good humor.
