

THE DAILY WORKMAN.

Ex-Senator Mahone.

This political trickster has become so bare-faced and indecent in the means by which he seeks to regain a lost position and perorate a waning influence, that men of politics and of no politics alike are glad to see him lose his grasp upon the machinery of the government. The New York Tribune, representing the party with which Mahone professes to affiliate, says: "Gen. Mahone has never taken the pains to confine his political activities within the limits of common decency. For years past his chief business in life has been to keep Virginia Democratic by a small margin, in order that his annual beggar's mission to the North might be made remunerative by the double plea of urgent necessity and reasonable hope. New York Republicans have found the perpetuation of his crafty, and selfish, and malignant despotism was not a profitable investment; the party elsewhere is rapidly making the same discovery, and if foresight were among his most highly developed qualities, he would not wait to be kicked into obscurity."

The Tangled Web of Life.

The failures of men are often in one line, and their success in another—they fail in health whilst they secure fame, they are bereaved whilst they grow in health and in influence, they weep in their home whilst they are crowned by the public. Their successes and trials of life, it may be observed, come in directions we least expected. The prize we fought for is missed, while some other triumph is realized that we never contemplated. The disasters we feared are never suffered; whilst some strange cup is given us to drink. The days of prosperity, the days of adversity sometimes follow each other in immediate and startling contrast; and sometimes the epochs of fortune and tribulation are wide apart, a youth of ease being followed by an age of grief, or a stormy entrance upon life ending with a sunset of peace and glory. But one way or another, gladness and grief find their way into life, and the two elements are more exactly determined than we sometimes think.

The Power of Sympathy.

Who can estimate the power of human sympathy? It has restored hope and courage to many a crushed and despairing soul, turning defeat into victory. Yet the world is sadly in need of this benediction. There is lack of it where it should be always in abundance, for no one is impoverished by its exercise and bestowal. If the heart is right it responds instantly to every demand made upon it, and is enriched by what it bestows. God gives man no other such opportunity of doing good.—Central Chris. Advocate.

The Wonderful Healing Preparations of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid.

Wherever a preventing, healing, cleansing, and deodorizing action or wash is required use Darby's Prophylactic Fluid. Any inflamed surface, external or internal, treated with the fluid will be quickly relieved. It has effected cures that had resisted the best medical skill.

The Ideal Newspaper.

Making of newspapers is a business and why should not newspaper men be allowed to manage their occupation in a business way? They cater to the public taste; they bid for public patronage, and to this they must furnish what the public wants. If the public does not want an ideal newspaper, so much the worse for the public. The same public that rejects the ideal boot and ideal bonnet has time and again spurned the ideal paper from it and would have none of it. Stock in an ideal newspaper is usually worth all the way from fifteen cents to one dollar downward.—Yankee Blade.

Neighborly?

The family had just moved into the neighborhood, and their social status had not yet been defined, when a small boy appeared at the nearest house and politely said: "Ma's compliments, and ken yer loan her a fryin' pan?" The frying pan was duly loaned, and in a few moments back came the boy. "Ma's compliments—ken yer let'er have a pound o' pork to grease the pan?" After some deliberation the pork was given, and the neighbors were rehearsing the circumstances when again came the boy: "Ma's compliments, and hev yer a sup o' tea to wash down the pork?" But they drew the line at tea.

A glass of water before the meal and especially before breakfast, is an important aid to digestion. The "hot water cure" for dyspepsia is something more than a notion, although cold (not iced) water may be taken with equal effect by those who have sufficient vitality to react. A glass of water before breakfast washes away the accumulation of mucus which covers the gastric walls after the night's repose, and thus prepares the stomach to receive and act readily upon the food taken in.

An Elegant Substitute

For Oils, Salts, Pills, and all kinds of bitter, nauseous Liver Medicines and Cathartics is the very agreeable liquid fruit remedy—Syrup of Figs. Its advantages are evident, it is more easily taken more acceptable to the stomach, more pleasantly, effective, and more truly beneficial to the system than any other remedy. Recommended by leading physicians.

A colored laborer on the Lynchburg and Durham Railroad was killed at Perrows trestle, about ten miles from this city, on Monday, by being accidentally struck by a hammer which flew from the hands of another negro who was driving a spike. His name could not be learned.—The Lynchburg News.

Wise Words.

Never be in a hurry, but always be in haste.
The mouth is the window to the intellect.
Where there is no hope there can be no endeavor.
A good name is rather to be chosen than riches.
Never be contented with a bubble that will burst.
Never take the harsher way when love will do the deed.
A helping hand at the right moment would save many ruin.

The World's Quinine.

The yearly production of quinine is estimated to be about 4,500,000 ounces. This is chiefly furnished by eighteen factories—one in Holland, two in England, two in Italy, three in France, four in the United States, and six in Germany. Quinine is also supplied by the Government plantations in India; and experiments in producing it in the vicinity of Tife in the Caucasus, have been so successful that the Russian Government is arranging for the cultivation of cinchona on an immense scale.

Bishop Potter, of New York, was solicited for aims on the strength of a letter which proved to have been written by his father twenty years before. He refused to give anything gratuitously, but offered ten dollars for the letter. The beggar refused the offer. It had furnished his chief means of support during the twenty years, and he had not done a stroke of work during that time.

Learning will accumulate wonderfully if you add a little every day. Do not wait for a long period of leisure. Pick up a book and gain one new idea, if no more. Save that one and add another as soon as you can. Says the old Scotch adage, "Many a little makes a mickle."

Faith With Two Hands.

I can only indicate how faith acts. It has, as it were, two hands. With the one hand it is constantly rolling upon Christ every worry, every sorrow, every trouble, every trial, every crushing and overwhelming demand, so that never a thing comes to the soul for a moment or touches it, but that the soul at once relieves itself of the burden by casting that burden upon the Saviour. O have you learned that secret? If not, ask the Holy Ghost to teach it to you, and to enable you moment by moment to live this blessed life, never carrying the burden more, but the moment you are aware of the pressure of any anxiety, rolling it instantly and forever on Christ.

Then, secondly, the other hand of faith is constantly appropriating so that hour by hour, as the heart is sensible of present need, the hand is reaching out of Christ just that grace it requires. Thy patience, Lord, in moments of impatience; thy gentleness, Lord, in moments of irritability; thy strength, Lord, in moments of weakness; thy peace, Lord, when storms swirl around the soul.

O learn to appropriate from the fullness of Jesus, hour by hour, what you require; and then, just as we are told the depths of the ocean are untroubled by the storms which sweep the surface, as we are told that in the midst of every whirlwind there is a point of rest, as we are told that amid the friction of ascending atoms in every candle there is one place of unbroken stillness—so the soul that has learned this secret of rest and of living in the will of God is in a mighty entrenched castle, and receiving assistance from the resources of God, that soul may go through and through the whirlwind and the storm of sorrow, but in its depths it will have perfect rest.—Life of Faith.

is intended to promote the best of the country as well as the town. Much of its matter is prepared expressly for its columns. Having been established in

is now old enough to be known as a fixture. The Daily Workman began its life when the business of Greensboro was small, and in an unsettled condition, but has lived through all the seasons of trial and depression, and is ready to live through the season of improvement which seems now to be upon us. Our leading have appreciated the efforts of the Daily Workman, and to their encouragement is due the fact that it not only has lived through the difficulties of the past five years, but is in a condition to live and prosper and be useful in the years to come.

Greensboro Nurseries,
GREENSBORO, N. C.

THESE NURSERIES have been in operation for more than 20 years, and are second to none in class of stock and variety of Fruit. We have taken great pains to collect every plant suited to the South and the West. Our stock consists in part of Apple, Peach, Pear, Cherry, Plum, Apricot, Russian Mulberries, English Mulberries, Grapes, Strawberries, Raspberries, Currants, Shads and Ornamental Trees, Evergreens, &c.

We have the entire control of the "CONNET'S SOUTHERN EARLY" Peach. See what some of the most prominent men in Greensboro have to say of it: McLeansville, N. C., Dec. 3, '84. This certifies that I have sold to Ward & Young the exclusive right to a certain Seedling Peach Tree, which they have named "Connet's Southern Early." ALFRED CONNET. This, the 14th day of July, 1884, our attention was drawn to a fine peach, not only in size, but in richness of flavor superior to any peach that we have seen this year—a seedling, called "Connet's Southern Early." ROBT. M. SLOAN, Agent Southern Ex. Co.

JAMES H. LINDSEY, President National Bank. J. D. WHITE, P. M. I endorse the above fully, and add that it has all the lusciousness of an August peach. D. W. C. BARNOW, Mess. Ward & Young, Greensboro, N. C. Dear Sirs:—I can truthfully say that the peach you now offer to the public is a new variety is one of the largest and finest flavored peaches I ever saw so early in the season. J. A. BOWMAN, P. O.
