LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Travel on the railroads is good in all directions.

There was no quorum of the City Commissioners last night.

Mr. J. R. Webster, of the Reidsville Weekly, was here last night.

Mr. Crawford Walker, who was here some days ago, is at Winston on a brief visit.

Remember the Concert next Monday and Tuesday night at Benbow Hall, by the celebrated "Till Family."

What about closing up on Thanksgiving Day? Come out and settle the matter in favor of a decent and thorough observance of this special autumnal festival and let us give our thanks in the best way we know of.

Messrs. Harris, Ogburn, Ball, Deans, McCulloch, McDowell, Gray, Dosier, Julian, Morgan, Pickett, Watson, Cecil, Galloway and Mrs. Galloway, took passage here this morning for the Methodist Protestant Conference at Henderson.

Rev. Dr. Smith, on Sunday morning last, expressed gratification that two of our drug stores had decided to close up during church hours on the Sabbath, and hoped the time would soon come when all the drug stores would do likewise, and go further by closing for the whole day.

A general meeting of the stockholders of the Savings and Deposit Bank of N. C., is called to meet at their Bank Building, one door north of W. R. Murray's store, in the city of Greensboro, on Saturday, December 1st, 1888, at 10 a. m. Please be present by person or by proxy.

The Daily Workman.

Vol. 6. Greensboro, N. C., Tuesday November 20, 1888. No. 150.

Odd Fellows take notice. An important amendment to the by-laws will be considered to-night.

A brass band composed entirely of ladies, is reported by the Twin City Daily as parading the streets of Winston.

The Young Men's Prayer Meeting at the Baptist church to-night at 7 o'clock will be a general prayer-meeting, and the ladies, as well as the gentlemen, are cordially invited. A special invitation is extended to strangers.

There is a time for every purpose under the sun, to plant corn, potatoes, beans, cabbage, etc., etc. First find a good place to plant, then plant at the right time. A good place to plant your advertisements is in the DAILY WORKMAN; the time to plant is now.

Critically Located.

A most absurd story has been widely circulated, says the News-Observer, "not only in this country but in England, to the effect that citizens of Raleigh have discovered that their town is built directly over a rushing, subterranean river of enormous size, not far beneath the surface of the earth, and that they are greatly alarmed in consequence. It originated in a hoax telegraphed the sensational papers of the country and dated from this city, alleging the discovery of such a river at Whiteville, in Columbus county. The report was a mere fabrication, as we have said, concocted solely for the purpose of creating a sensation and in utter disregard of anything like truth."

We suspect that some citizen of Raleigh is chargeable with the whole thing; that the dispatch was dated Raleigh, and that in consequence Raleigh became the locality of the said "rushing subterranean river."

But it is a fact that not only the people of Raleigh, but of Greensboro and all other places on this green earth, have a subterranean river beneath them quite as terrible as the one spoken of in the sensational telegram. And yet some people seem not to be alarmed about it.

Richmond Exposition

For the information of persons wishing to attend the Richmond Exposition we give the following rates and conditions: Tickets are on sale every day at all stations on the Richmond & Danville R. R., at one fare for the round trip with cost of one admission to the Exposition added, making the round trip cost the purchaser 20 cents more than the regular fare. The limit of these tickets is nine days in addition to date of sale. Purchasers should be careful to have tickets stamped at the Exposition grounds, otherwise they will not be honored by conductors for the return trip. When special trains are run the limit will be two days in addition to date of sale, and the fare one cent per mile with cost of admission to the Exposition added. Of these special excursions, the public will be notified in advance.

Incidental Proof.

A good and simple proof that warming pans for beds in cold weather were in use in the 17th century is found in a recent condensed life of Oliver Cromwell. The writer is in pursuit of quite a different object from that of the warming pan; it is the question as to whether the Protector, as he is called, was a man of prayer, some contending that he was an austere, cruel, warlike man, utterly out of harmony with the idea of the praying habit. To show that he did pray, and pray persistently, the servant girl, who was carrying a warming pan to Cromwell's bed room, on reaching the door discovered that he was on his knees in the devotional attitude. She retreated, and after waiting a considerable time, returned; but he was still on his knees at the bedside.

Now this incident, while it was related for quite a different purpose, is a strong circumstantial proof that warming pans were in use in England in the days of Oliver Cromwell. And the circumstances illustrate another fact, that the history of one thing necessarily throws light on other things, and is therefore valuable often beyond the main subject of which it treats. And this is one argument to show the value of history to those who study it.
