Ex-Governor Holden, Ex-Governor W. W. Holden, is a card in the Evening Visitor, of Raleigh, makes another earnest appeal to the Legislature to remove his disabilities, but a number of our leading newspapers take ground against granting the request. None of them, however, seem to have any bitter feeling against the Ex-Governor, who, in various respects, has claims upon the sympathies of his countrymen. We are not prepared to express an intelligent opinion as to the merits of the petition. It is a little out of our line.

WASHINGTON, December 18.—The Interstate Commerce Commission to-day began a general examination and investigation of the tariffs of the roads and lines associated under the name of the Southern Steamship Association as well as all the roads in the South and South-west, South of the Potomac and Ohio and east of the Mississippi rivers. Judge Cooley in the opening investigation, stated that it was for the purpose of examining some of the rates made South of the Potomac and Ohio rivers and to consider in a friendly and informal way the manner of making rates in this territory. Two important matters, he said, were involved on this investigation: 1st. The extent to which exceptions prevail to the general rule of the long and short haul section of the law, and next the reasons applying to particular cases why these exceptions are deemed justifiable under the law.

Sol. Haas, traffic manager of the Richmond and Danville railroad, explained the changes made in rates by that company during the past two years. Some reductions and advances had been made, but on the whole they were slight. Mr. W. H. Shilliman, representing the Central railroad of Georgia, read a paper urging a more liberal construction of the long and short haul clauses of the law. The investigation will probably occupy the time of the commission for several days.
