-If the present Legislature shall fail to do anything for the improvement of our country roads, the next best thing would be to lease the Legislature with all the lands in the State to a syndicate of capitalists for 49 years, during which time the roads shall be made into pikes for the advantage of posterity.

-Charles Dick, colored, had a trap set for rabbits, baited with green apple, but an opossum came along who had a fancy for that kind of food, but before he had feasted to the full he found that he was a prisoner-Charles came along and made the captive a fixed fact of history. The amount of good cheer to be had at the expense of that opossum cannot be estimated in dollars; in scents, perhaps it may be.

-Vessels on the sea may be impelled either by the winds or by steam, or by the two combined, yet in all the changes that have occurred since navigation began no substitute has been found for the rudder which the direction of the vessel is controlled. It is not enough that we go -we must go the right way-and unless we have the rudder in use the faster we go the sooner we reach our.

Murdered and Robbed.

A certain sensational sheet published in New York is advertised by cir cular here as containing an account of the "Murder and Robbery of Elizabeth Brown at Greensboro, N. C., by two unknown men." Our laws prohibit the sale of said sensational sheet in this town, and the announcement made in it that Elizabeth Brown was murdered, when she was not, only shows that the law prohibiting the sale of said sheet here is a proper one. It is quite probable-for the rascals are up to anything of the sort -that the perversion of the truth as to Elizabeth Brown may have been a measure of retaliation for the law which makes it criminal to sell that filthy journal here. It was bad enough that Elizabeth Brown was assaulted and robbed, but it is probable that such cases would be increased by a free circulation of the sheet in question, which makes boys and young men familiar with all horrible and said Causey will sell, for cash, at public aucblood curdling things.

Above all, the gentleman is truthful. He feels that truth is "the summit of being," and the soul of rectitude in human affairs. Lord Chesterfield declared that truth made the success of a gentleman. -Smiles.
